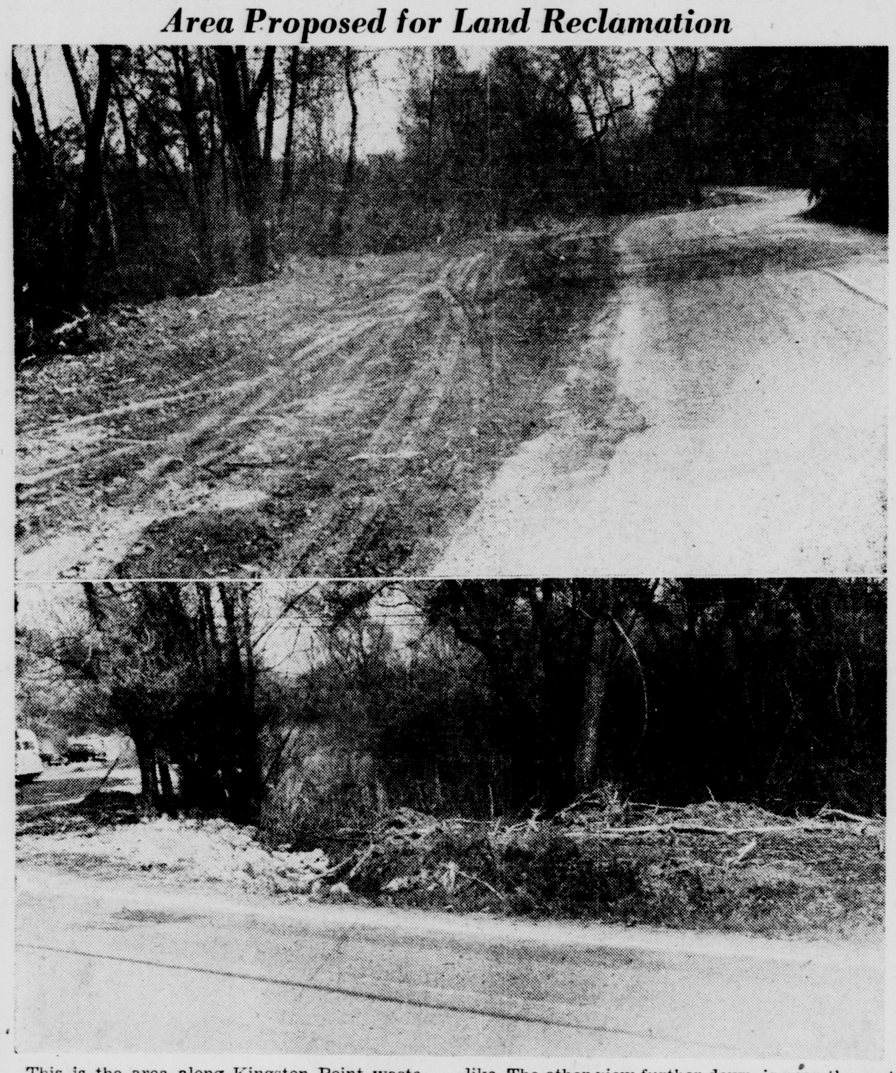
Area Proposed for Land Reclamation



This is the area along Kingston Point wastelands that has been suggested for a local sanitary land fill project as a solution to the city's refuse disposal problem. At top, a section along North street shows what the filled in area would look like. The other view further down, is near the spot where city buses turn around and shows the growth of trees and brush in the Kingston Point swamp area. Debris was shoved into a low area and was covered with dirt and levelled off, as indicated in the top photo. (Freeman photos)

Virtual Pact Is Reached On Indochina Peace Talks

Reds' Drive Ends; Rest For French

Union Forces Parachute Tons of Supplies to Dien Bien Phu; Zone Still Functions

Hanoi, Indochina, May 3 (AP)—The Communist-led Vietminh halted their third massive infantry assault on Dien Bien Phu last night. The breather for the weary and battered French Union defenders extended into today.

A terse French high command communique early today said the night at the besieged northwest Indochina fortress was "calm," with only "light harassments" of key French positions by rebel artillery and mortars.

The French took immediate advantage of the break in the fighting to parachute tons of ammunition and supplies into the beleaguered fortress.

Vietminh Regroups

The command said that the Vietminh, after suffering "extremely heavy losses" in smashing through three strongpoints of the fortress, apparently had taken time out to regroup.

In fierce hand-to-hand fighting, the French had turned back the rebels who overran and occupied a part of the southern strongpoint "Isabelle." But in the main defense complex, the position of the French remained critical. Their northeastern, eastern, and western strongholds had been wiped out by massive Vietminh infantry charges.

The narrow dropping zone for the fortress, its lifeline with planes dropping ammunition and war materiel, was still functioning despite the enemy's general attacks and continuing pressure.

The French announced that scores of tons of ammunition and supplies were parachuted as the Vietminh attacks temporarily waned.

At Close Range

The battle raged at close range for hours Saturday night and Sunday as the garrison force, outnumbered about 6 to 1 and squeezed into a trap less than a mile across, fought for their lives with bayonets, knives and hand grenades.

The French army command said its losses were heavy but claimed the enemy toll was "extremely" high.

The fortress, France's last stronghold in northwest Indochina, had withstood 51 days of constant hammering by the Vietminh, including two previous attempts to overwhelm it by sheer force of numbers.

Hope in Geneva Is Held Conference May Bring End to Conflict; Dulles Heads Home

BY EDDY GILMORE

Geneva, May 3 (AP)—East and West reached virtual agreement today on the setting up of a peace conference to end the bloody fighting in Indochina.

The Soviet Union agreed, French sources said, to a western proposal that representatives of the Communist-led Vietminh be invited to the conference by the Soviet Union instead of by Communist China.

The western Big Three foreign ministers and Foreign Minister Nguyen Quoc Dinh of Viet Nam formally agreed to admit Vietminh representatives with the understanding that this would not imply recognition of the Vietminh regime as state.

The Russians and the West already had agreed that nine parties would attend the conference—the Big Four, the Chinese Reds, the Vietminh, and the three Associated States of Indochina, Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

No Sign of Break

Smoothing out of the issue of Vietminh status came as the Korean deadlock showed no sign of a break and some of the western foreign ministers began heading for home.

U. S. Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith took over leadership of the American delegation as U. S. Secretary of State Dulles headed for Washington by plane. Dulles scheduled a stop at Milan to meet Italian Premier Mario Scelba for a talk on the stalemated European Army Treaty and Italy's wrangle with Yugoslavia over Trieste.

Australian Foreign Minister Richard G. Casey also left for home today, and other foreign ministers were expected to turn their conference duties over to deputies in the next week or two. Russia's V. M. Molotov was understood to have said he would be here two more weeks.

Reached This Morning

A French announcement said that agreement on the participation of the Vietminh representatives in the Indochina parley was reached this morning at a meeting of Dinh with Smith, British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault.

The Viet Nam foreign minister formally stated his government's readiness to meet with representatives of the Vietminh regime, now waging bitter war against French union troops in Viet Nam.

The Big Three representatives and Dinh agreed to consult each other during the course of the conference.

The Soviet agreement to invite the Vietminh representatives was given after Ambassador Jean Chauvel of France had handed Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko a note proposing this procedure. Earlier, the Soviet union had suggested that Red China invite the Vietminh representatives.

Dulles' Statement

Just before leaving, Dulles said in a formal statement he believed peace in Indochina "will be more readily obtained if it can be fitted into a framework of collective security."

The Southeast Asia area, he said, "is an area where the principle of collective security should be applied as it has been applied successfully in other areas of the world, notably Western Europe. I shall continue to seek to promote that result."

Dulles said he felt the Korean phase of the conference had made a "good start." Two points basic for agreement on the Korean problem were elections supervised by the United Nations and the principle of proportionate representation, he said. Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand, meanwhile, disclosed he has been carrying on discussions with some of the big powers in an effort to win support for the idea of an Indochina cease fire by stages. He said he had not made any formal proposal, but hoped he might be helpful.

Stang Says Council Not to Take Action

Disposal Project Is One of Reclamation, Mayor Repeats, Not Dump

Mayor Frederick H. Stang said today that "no action is to be taken nor was any contemplated" at tomorrow's Common Council meeting on a proposed sanitary land fill project for the Kingston Point area.

The city will not act on any such project to solve its problem of disposing of refuse until after a public hearing and the people are satisfied as to the merits of any such plan presented.

If any person or group wants to present a petition, he said, it will be forwarded to the proper authority and properly considered "before anything further is done."

To Present Facts, Figures

Facts and figures will be presented at the hearing and probably a film will be shown to explain what is sought to be accomplished by such a project, he said.

"I give the people in the area assurance that such a project is not to be a dump in the accepted sense of the word. It is to be a reclamation project."

The mayor suggested last Friday that swampland in the Kingston Point area could be reclaimed under such a sanitary land fill project as was done years ago on the site of the present Block Park

Check to Center Around Army Careers of 10 in Sports World

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Staff members of a House subcommittee conferred today with army representatives about reports of "coddling" professional athletes in the service.

The meeting was held in preparation for a formal hearing which a subcommittee on defense activities headed by Rep. Hess (R-Ohio) will open Wednesday afternoon.

The investigation will center around the army careers of 10 athletes, including such big names as former welterweight champion Ray Robinson and New York Yankee pitcher Edward C. (Whitey) Ford. Most of them are back in civilian life.

Chairman Hess said he wants to find out whether many athletes are just going on being athletes while they are in the army, rather than serving as soldiers like anybody else.

It is no reflection on the 10 individuals under investigation, said Hess, but rather an inquiry on the assignments the army gave them. Their names were picked from a much longer list drawn up by the subcommittee.

Others Are Named

Besides Ford and Robinson, whose real name is Walter Smith, the hearings will concentrate on these other eight athletes:

Richard S. Brodowski, Boston Red Sox pitcher; Alexander J. Konikowski, New York Giants pitcher; William H. Mays, Giants outfielder.

Edward J. and John T. O'Brien, twins in the Pittsburgh Pirates infield, boxer Isidore F. (Chico) Vejar Jr., featherweight champion Sandy Saddler, and Yankee second baseman Alfred M. (Billy) Martin.

None of these athletes has been asked to testify, Hess said, but added: "Some of them may want to testify after the hearing starts."

This week, he said, the army's side of the story will be presented by Brig. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, who is in charge of army personnel at the Pentagon.

McCarthy Unsure How Many He Will Call as Witnesses

Senator Says He Might Call Pace, Symington and Some of His Colleagues

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Secretary of the Army Stevens flared today "I'm not covering up anybody at any time" when Sen McCarthy suggested someone in the army was "covering up" Communists.

The clash came with Stevens in the witness chair on the eighth day of Senate-hearings into the McCarthy-Army row. McCarthy was seeking to explore the case of Maj. Irving Peress, the army dentist who got an honorable discharge despite refusal to sign loyalty papers.

Ray H. Jenkins, special counsel to the Senate investigations subcommittee, objected to McCarthy's line of questions. Jenkins said the present hearings must "steer clear" of the question of the loyalty of any individual who came under scrutiny during McCarthy's inquiry into alleged subversive activities in the army.

McCarthy argued it was a "crucial" matter and the "whole heart" of his controversy with army officials.

No Specific Answer

10 Persons Are Injured In Bronx Parkway Crash

New York, May 3 (AP)—Ten persons were injured, one seriously in a complicated accident involving four automobiles last night on the Bronx River Parkway.

Three of the cars jumped the four-foot wide safety island. One struck an auto coming in the opposite direction and another bounced off a light post, shot across the highway and landed in a ditch.

Police of the Bronx Park station said the three cars had been moving south while the fourth was moving north.

At 10:15 p. m., they continued, a southbound auto operated by David Cheek, Sr., 33, of 2736 8th avenue, swerved left from the right hand lane, causing the second car, operated by Armand Cerrone, 56, of the Bronx, to veer in the same direction.

His car moved in front of the third vehicle, operated by Generar Hunter of Mount Vernon, and was struck in the rear, forcing it across the safety strip, police said.

As Cerrone crashed head-on into the fourth car, operated by John Howard, 48, of the Bronx, Cheek's car mounted the safety island, careened about 100 feet and struck the light post, police said.

Hunger's car also jumped the safety island, but quickly came to a halt.

Neither Hunter, Howard nor Cheek was injured, police said. The others were taken to Fordham Hospital.

Most seriously injured was Cerrone's 13-year-old daughter, Lucille. Hospital authorities said she had suffered a possible skull fracture.

Also hospitalized, for treatment of cuts and bruises, were Cerrone; his wife, Mary, 44; three nieces, Ellen Batista, 24, Mary Williams, 23, and her sister, Maxine, 20, all of the Bronx; David Cheek, Jr., 10; and Carrie Cheek, 21, both of 2736 8th avenue.

Traffic on the northbound lanes was diverted into Fordham Road for 30 minutes while southbound traffic was rerouted into Pelham Parkway for almost two hours. The scene of the accident was at the Pelham Parkway overpass.

No police action was taken against any of the drivers.

Baruch Gives Opinion

New York, May 3 (AP)—Bernard Baruch, author of one of the first plans for atomic control by international inspection, said today President Eisenhower's proposal for a world atomic pool won't solve the basic problem of security. He said the idea might expand peaceful atomic uses, but "the dangers of atomic attack would not be lessened. The atomic arms race would not slacken." It was the first discussion of the Eisenhower plan by Baruch, who played a key United Nation's role in the west's long, unsuccessful effort to established an internationally-policed system of atomic arms control.

Five Children Die

Williamsport, Pa., May 3 (AP)—Five sleeping children died in a fire that hit their home early today. The sixth child of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard J. O'Brien escaped with burns of the back, right arm and head. Neighbors discovered the flames. Firemen, upon their arrival, removed the dead children from a single upstairs bedroom. Efforts to revive them at Divine Providence Hospital failed.

Dies of Injuries

Liberty, May 3 (AP) — Mrs. Muriel Oksner, 55, of New York city, died today in Maimonides Hospital of injuries received last night in an automobile accident. Her husband, Arthur, 57, was reported by the hospital in fair condition. Oksner was driving a car south on Route 17 near here that collided headon with a vehicle operated by Merlin V. Duffy, 54, of Poughkeepsie. Duffy received minor injuries.

Delegates Named To Attend Annual Methodist Parley

106 Kingston District Churches Will Have Representation at 155th Session

Forty-five ministers and 106 churches of the Kingston District of the New York Conference of the Methodist Church will be in attendance during the 155th annual session starting Thursday at Broadway Temple-Washington Heights Methodist Church, 4111 Broadway, New York, it was learned today.

Heading the delegation from the Kingston District will be Dr. D. George Davies, district superintendent, who, today announced a partial list of ministers and lay members who will be on hand for the annual conference sessions.

Highlight of the annual conference will be the announcement of pastoral appointments to the 354 churches of the body scheduled for next Sunday, May 9, the closing day of the meetings. Reports also will be made by conference agencies. Ministers, lay delegates and church leaders will plan measures for the coming year and adopt resolutions concerning church administration and policy.

Dr. Davies announced this morning that the 155th annual conference is expected to be attended by about 350 persons, including both clergymen and laymen.

In addition to the Kingston District, the New York Conference also comprises the Districts of New York, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie.

Local Delegates

Among the local and area delegates scheduled to attend the conference session according to Dr. Davies are:

Dr. Ralph M. Houston, Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, St. James Methodist Church; Dr. Clyde H. Snell and Mrs. Daniel Secor, W. N. Ryder, ClintonAvenue; the Rev. Ivan F. Gossoo, George E. Lowe, Trinity Methodist; Dr. Fred H. Deming, East Kingston; J. W. Lent, Glasco; the Rev. Fenton C. St. John, Wilson Tinnie, Port Ewen.

Also, the Rev. John Grob, Ashokan; George Berry, West Hurley; the Rev. George P. Werner, L. F. Fellows, Saugerties; the Rev. Kenneth Dearystyne, Woodstock; Harley Shultis, Wittenberg; the Rev. GOP Leaders See Excellent Average

Forecast About Eisenhower Program Is Make After Meeting

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Republican leaders predicted today that Congress will have "an excellent batting average" on enactment of President Eisenhower's legislative program by the time it adjourns.

Senate Majority Leader Knowland (Calif.) and House Speaker Martin (Mass.) made the forecast to newsmen at the White House after their regular Monday morning conference with the President.

The leaders also reported that Eisenhower told them Secretary of State Dulles will give top Republicans and Democrats in Congress a confidential briefing on the Geneva conference. Dulles is due back in Washington tomorrow and Knowland said the secretary probably would report to the leaders about Thursday.

Showed Impatience

On the legislative program, Knowland and Martin were told by a reporter that at his news conference last Thursday the President showed some impatience over the pace at which the program has been moving through Congress.

Knowland replied that Eisenhower never has indicated any impatience to the Republican leaders.

Knowland said both branches of Congress are further along at this point than they have been in other years.

SomeImprovement Is Noted Uptown —Erected by BPW

A sign directing north-bound truck traffic over East Chester street between the hours of 7 a. m. and 11 p. m., was erected at Broadway and East Chester street this morning and apparently had almost immediate results.

Police Commissioner William Singer, contacted at noon at Bernie Singer's store at 73 North Front street, said that "not too many" trucks passed that point this morning and that other traffic was able to keep moving without delay.

He noted, however, that this was a comparison of Monday morning traffic with that of Friday and it will be necessary to note the traffic flow over the period of at least a week before definite conclusions can be drawn.

Erection Authorized

The Board of Public Works, last Wednesday, authorized the erection of the sign after receipt of a letter from Louis W. Kantrowitz, representing the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association, asking something be done to ease the heavy truck travel in the city.

The sign directs trucks over East Chester street to Route 9W rather than allowing them to proceed over Broadway, Clinton avenue and North Front street to the Thruway.

Alabama, Ohio Will Ballot For Senate; Other Contests

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Contests for the U. S. Senate in Alabama and Ohio feature primary elections tomorrow as voters go to the polls in five states.

These principal nominations are at stake as the political season 1954 style, steps up its pace:

OHIO: Governor, U. S. senator, 23 U. S. representatives.

INDIANA: 11 U. S. representatives.

FLORIDA: Governor, 8 U. S. representatives.

NEW MEXICO: Governor, U. S. senator and 2 U. S. representatives.

Most of the five states have up for nomination candidates for lesser state offices.

Many aspirants already are certain of victory at tomorrow's polls because they have no opponents. But Republican and Democratic choices for the same office will still have to fight it out in the general election this November.

Alabama's headline billing is the struggle by Sen. John Sparkman, the Democrats' 1952 choice for vice president, against three Democratic opponents who want his U. S. Senate seat:

Laurie Battle of Birmingham, who gave up his House seat to try for the Senate; John G. Crommelin of Wetumpka, a retired admiral; and William C. Irby Sr. of Jacksonville.

Battle is expected to put up the toughest race against Sparkman, and the major issue is civil rights. Battle says Sparkman promised northern Negroes one thing and the Alabamans something else in 1952. This Sparkman denies, saying he consistently fought the

Virtual Pact Is Reached On Indochina Peace Talks

Union Forces Parachute Tons of Supplies to Dien Bien Phu; Zone Still Functions

Hanoi, Indochina, May 3 (AP)—The Communist-led Vietminh halted their third massive infantry assault on Dien Bien Phu last night. The breather for the weary and battered French Union defenders extended into today.

A terse French high command communique early today said the night at the besieged northwest Indochina fortress was "calm," with only "light harassments" of key French positions by rebel artillery and mortars.

The French took immediate advantage of the break in the fighting to parachute tons of ammunition and supplies into the beleaguered fortress.

Vietminh Regroups

The command said that the Vietminh, after suffering "extremely heavy losses" in smashing through three strongpoints of the fortress, apparently had taken time out to regroup.

In fierce hand-to-hand fighting, the French had turned back the rebels who overran and occupied a part of the southern strongpoint "Isabelle." But in the main defense complex, the position of the French remained critical. Their northeastern, eastern, and western strongholds had been wiped out by massive Vietminh infantry charges.

The narrow dropping zone for the fortress, its lifeline with planes dropping ammunition and war materiel, was still functioning despite the enemy's general attacks and continuing pressure.

The French announced that scores of tons of ammunition and supplies were parachuted as the Vietminh attacks temporarily waned.

At Close Range

The battle raged at close range for hours Saturday night and Sunday as the garrison force, outnumbered about 6 to 1 and squeezed into a trap less than a mile across, fought for their lives with bayonets, knives and hand grenades.

The French army command said its losses were heavy but claimed the enemy toll was "extremely" high.

The fortress, France's last stronghold in northwest Indochina, had withstood 51 days of constant hammering by the Vietminh, including two previous attempts to overwhelm it by sheer force of numbers.

Hope in Geneva Is Held Conference May Bring End to Conflict; Dulles Heads Home

BY EDDY GILMORE

Geneva, May 3 (AP)—East and West reached virtual agreement today on the setting up of a peace conference to end the bloody fighting in Indochina.

The Soviet Union agreed, French sources said, to a western proposal that representatives of the Communist-led Vietminh be invited to the conference by the Soviet Union instead of by Communist China.

The western Big Three foreign ministers and Foreign Minister Nguyen Quoc Dinh of Viet Nam formally agreed to admit Vietminh representatives with the understanding that this would not imply recognition of the Vietminh regime as state.

The Russians and the West already had agreed that nine parties would attend the conference —the Big Four, the Chinese Reds, the Vietminh, and the three Associated States of Indochina, Viet Nam, Cambodia and Laos.

No Sign of Break

Smoothing out of the issue of Vietminh status came as the Korean deadlock showed no sign of a break and some of the western foreign ministers began heading for home.

U. S. Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell Smith took over leadership of the American delegation as U. S. Secretary of State Dulles headed for Washington by plane. Dulles scheduled a stop at Milan to meet Italian Premier Mario Scelba for a talk on the stalemated European Army Treaty and Italy's wrangle with Yugoslavia over Trieste.

Australian Foreign Minister Richard G. Casey also left for home today, and other foreign ministers were expected to turn their conference duties over to deputies in the next week or two. Russia's V. M. Molotov was understood to have said he would be here two more weeks.

Reached This Morning

A French announcement said that agreement on the participation of the Vietminh representatives in the Indochina parley was reached this morning at a meeting of Dinh with Smith, British Foreign Secretary Eden and French Foreign Minister Bidault.

The Viet Nam foreign minister formally stated his government's readiness to meet with representatives of the Vietminh regime, now waging bitter war against French union troops in Viet Nam.

The Big Three representatives and Dinh agreed to consult each other during the course of the conference.

The Soviet agreement to invite the Vietminh representatives was given after Ambassador Jean Chauvel of France had handed Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko a note proposing this procedure. Earlier, the Soviet union had suggested that Red China invite the Vietminh representatives.

Dulles' Statement

Just before leaving, Dulles said in a formal statement he believed peace in Indochina "will be more readily obtained if it can be fitted into a framework of collective security."

The Southeast Asia area, he said, "is an area where the principle of collective security should be applied as it has been applied successfully in other areas of the world, notably Western Europe. I shall continue to seek to promote that result."

Dulles said he felt the Korean phase of the conference had made a "good start." Two points basic for agreement on the Korean problem were elections supervised by the United Nations and the principle of proportionate representation, he said. Prince Wan Waithayakon of Thailand, meanwhile, disclosed he has been carrying on discussions with some of the big powers in an effort to win support for the idea of an Indochina cease fire by stages. He said he had not made any formal proposal, but hoped he might be helpful.

Stang Says Council Not to Take Action

Disposal Project Is One of Reclamation, Mayor Repeats, Not Dump

Mayor Frederick H. Stang said today that "no action is to be taken nor was any contemplated" at tomorrow's Common Council meeting on a proposed sanitary land fill project for the Kingston Point area.

The city will not act on any such project to solve its problem of disposing of refuse until after a public hearing and the people are satisfied as to the merits of any such plan presented.

If any person or group wants to present a petition, he said, it will be forwarded to the proper authority and properly considered "before anything further is done."

To Present Facts, Figures

Facts and figures will be presented at the hearing and probably a film will be shown to explain what is sought to be accomplished by such a project, he said.

"I give the people in the area assurance that such a project is not to be a dump in the accepted sense of the word. It is to be a reclamation project."

The mayor suggested last Friday that swampland in the Kingston Point area could be reclaimed under such a sanitary land fill project as was done years ago on the site of the present Block Park

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Staff members of a House subcommittee conferred today with army representatives about reports of "coddling" professional athletes in the service.

The meeting was held in preparation for a formal hearing which a subcommittee on defense activities headed by Rep. Hess (R-Ohio) will open Wednesday afternoon.

The investigation will center around the army careers of 10 athletes, including such big names as former welterweight champion Ray Robinson and New York Yankee pitcher Edward C. (Whitey) Ford. Most of them are back in civilian life.

Chairman Hess said he wants to find out whether many athletes are just going on being athletes while they are in the army, rather than serving as soldiers like anybody else.

It is no reflection on the 10 individuals under investigation, said Hess, but rather an inquiry on the assignments the army gave them. Their names were picked from a much longer list drawn up by the subcommittee.

None of these athletes has been asked to testify, Hess said, but added: "Some of them may want to testify after the hearing starts."

This week, he said, the army's side of the story will be presented by Brig. Gen. Herbert B. Powell, who is in charge of army personnel at the Pentagon.

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Secretary of the Army Stevens flared today "I'm not covering up anybody at any time" when Sen McCarthy suggested someone in the army was "covering up" Communists.

The clash came with Stevens in the witness chair on the eighth day of Senate-hearings into the McCarthy-Army row. McCarthy was seeking to explore the case of Maj. Irving Peress, the army dentist who got an honorable discharge despite refusal to sign loyalty papers.

10 Persons Are Injured In Bronx Parkway Crash

New York, May 3 (AP)—Ten persons were injured, one seriously in a complicated accident involving four automobiles last night on the Bronx River Parkway.

Three of the cars jumped the four-foot wide safety island. One struck an auto coming in the opposite direction and another bounced off a light post, shot across the highway and landed in a ditch.

Police of the Bronx Park station said the three cars had been moving south while the fourth was moving north.

At 10:15 p. m., they continued, a southbound auto operated by David Cheek, Sr., 33, of 2736 8th avenue, swerved left from the right hand lane, causing the second car, operated by Armand Cerrone, 56, of the Bronx, to veer in the same direction.

His car moved in front of the third vehicle, operated by Generar Hunter of Mount Vernon, and was struck in the rear, forcing it across the safety strip, police said.

As Cerrone crashed head-on into the fourth car, operated by John Howard, 48, of the Bronx, Cheek's car mounted the safety island, careened about 100 feet and struck the light post, police said.

Hunger's car also jumped the safety island, but quickly came to a halt.

Neither Hunter, Howard nor Cheek was injured, police said. The others were taken to Fordham Hospital.

Most seriously injured was Cerrone's 13-year-old daughter, Lucille. Hospital authorities said she had suffered a possible skull fracture.

Also hospitalized, for treatment of cuts and bruises, were Cerrone; his wife, Mary, 44; three nieces, Ellen Batista, 24, Mary Williams, 23, and her sister, Maxine, 20, all of the Bronx; David Cheek, Jr., 10; and Carrie Cheek, 21, both of 2736 8th avenue.

Traffic on the northbound lanes was diverted into Fordham Road for 30 minutes while southbound traffic was rerouted into Pelham Parkway for almost two hours. The scene of the accident was at the Pelham Parkway overpass.

No police action was taken against any of the drivers.

Dies of Injuries

Liberty, May 3 (AP) — Mrs. Muriel Oksner, 55, of New York city, died today in Maimonides Hospital of injuries received last night in an automobile accident. Her husband, Arthur, 57, was reported by the hospital in fair condition. Oksner was driving a car south on Route 17 near here that collided headon with a vehicle operated by Merlin V. Duffy, 54, of Poughkeepsie. Duffy received minor injuries.

Baruch Gives Opinion

New York, May 3 (AP)—Bernard Baruch, author of one of the first plans for atomic control by international inspection, said today President Eisenhower's proposal for a world atomic pool won't solve the basic problem of security. He said the idea might expand peaceful atomic uses, but "the dangers of atomic attack would not be lessened. The atomic arms race would not slacken." It was the first discussion of the Eisenhower plan by Baruch, who played a key United Nation's role in the west's long, unsuccessful effort to established an internationally-policed system of atomic arms control.

Delegates Named To Attend Annual Methodist Parley

106 Kingston District Churches Will Have Representation at 155th Session

Forty-five ministers and 106 churches of the Kingston District of the New York Conference of the Methodist Church will be in attendance during the 155th annual session starting Thursday at Broadway Temple-Washington Heights Methodist Church, 4111 Broadway, New York, it was learned today.

Heading the delegation from the Kingston District will be Dr. D. George Davies, district superintendent, who, today announced a partial list of ministers and lay members who will be on hand for the annual conference sessions.

Highlight of the annual conference will be the announcement of pastoral appointments to the 354 churches of the body scheduled for next Sunday, May 9, the closing day of the meetings. Reports also will be made by conference agencies. Ministers, lay delegates and church leaders will plan measures for the coming year and adopt resolutions concerning church administration and policy.

Dr. Davies announced this morning that the 155th annual conference is expected to be attended by about 350 persons, including both clergymen and laymen.

In addition to the Kingston District, the New York Conference also comprises the Districts of New York, Newburgh and Poughkeepsie.

Local Delegates

Among the local and area delegates scheduled to attend the conference session according to Dr. Davies are:

Dr. Ralph M. Houston, Mrs. Thomas Reynolds, St. James Methodist Church; Dr. Clyde H. Snell and Mrs. Daniel Secor, W. N. Ryder, ClintonAvenue; the Rev. Ivan F. Gossoo, George E. Lowe, Trinity Methodist; Dr. Fred H. Deming, East Kingston; J. W. Lent, Glasco; the Rev. Fenton C. St. John, Wilson Tinnie, Port Ewen.

Also, the Rev. John Grob, Ashokan; George Berry, West Hurley; the Rev. George P. Werner, L. F. Fellows, Saugerties; the Rev. Kenneth Dearystyne, Woodstock; Harley Shultis, Wittenberg; the Rev. GOP Leaders See Excellent Average

Forecast About Eisenhower Program Is Make After Meeting

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Republican leaders predicted today that Congress will have "an excellent batting average" on enactment of President Eisenhower's legislative program by the time it adjourns.

Senate Majority Leader Knowland (Calif.) and House Speaker Martin (Mass.) made the forecast to newsmen at the White House after their regular Monday morning conference with the President.

The leaders also reported that Eisenhower told them Secretary of State Dulles will give top Republicans and Democrats in Congress a confidential briefing on the Geneva conference. Dulles is due back in Washington tomorrow and Knowland said the secretary probably would report to the leaders about Thursday.

Showed Impatience

On the legislative program, Knowland and Martin were told by a reporter that at his news conference last Thursday the President showed some impatience over the pace at which the program has been moving through Congress.

Knowland replied that Eisenhower never has indicated any impatience to the Republican leaders.

Knowland said both branches of Congress are further along at this point than they have been in other years.

SomeImprovement Is Noted Uptown —Erected by BPW

A sign directing north-bound truck traffic over East Chester street between the hours of 7 a. m. and 11 p. m., was erected at Broadway and East Chester street this morning and apparently had almost immediate results.

Police Commissioner William Singer, contacted at noon at Bernie Singer's store at 73 North Front street, said that "not too many" trucks passed that point this morning and that other traffic was able to keep moving without delay.

He noted, however, that this was a comparison of Monday morning traffic with that of Friday and it will be necessary to note the traffic flow over the period of at least a week before definite conclusions can be drawn.

Erection Authorized

The Board of Public Works, last Wednesday, authorized the erection of the sign after receipt of a letter from Louis W. Kantrowitz, representing the Kingston Uptown Business Men's Association, asking something be done to ease the heavy truck travel in the city.

The sign directs trucks over East Chester street to Route 9W rather than allowing them to proceed over Broadway, Clinton avenue and North Front street to the Thruway.

Alabama, Ohio Will Ballot For Senate; Other Contests

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Contests for the U. S. Senate in Alabama and Ohio feature primary elections tomorrow as voters go to the polls in five states.

These principal nominations are at stake as the political season 1954 style, steps up its pace:

OHIO: Governor, U. S. senator, 23 U. S. representatives.

INDIANA: 11 U. S. representatives.

FLORIDA: Governor, 8 U. S. representatives.

NEW MEXICO: Governor, U. S. senator and 2 U. S. representatives.

Most of the five states have up for nomination candidates for lesser state offices.

Many aspirants already are certain of victory at tomorrow's polls because they have no opponents. But Republican and Democratic choices for the same office will still have to fight it out in the general election this November.

Alabama's headline billing is the struggle by Sen. John Sparkman, the Democrats' 1952 choice for vice president, against three Democratic opponents who want his U. S. Senate seat:

Laurie Battle of Birmingham, who gave up his House seat to try for the Senate; John G. Crommelin of Wetumpka, a retired admiral; and William C. Irby Sr. of Jacksonville.

Battle is expected to put up the toughest race against Sparkman, and the major issue is civil rights. Battle says Sparkman promised northern Negroes one thing and the Alabamans something else in 1952. This Sparkman denies, saying he consistently fought the

Every Day for Mother

By FRANK TRIPP

Next Sunday is Mother's Day. This is no quarrel with the grand idea and all for which it stands. It is just to ask why not every day mother's day? Who can remember any day his mother ceased to care for him?

There may be folks who need a red letter on the calendar to make them think of mother. They don't happen to be among my friends. Yet it's swell for all of us to think a little more about mother on a special day.

It prompted me to write a piece, to lead your reverie along with mine. Perhaps somewhere to reach a thoughtless one who, in his selfish world of rush, may leave a lonely mother broken-hearted Sunday next.

Of course, I had the world's most wonderful mother. So have you. This sublime paradox, about which men never quarrel—that everybody's mother is the greatest woman in the world—is mortals' sovereign tribute to motherhood.

I CANNOT write about your mother, so I proudly write of mine. Next to the most precious love and care that human could bestow, I remember best my mother's homely humor and her sparkling wit. Aphorism was her forte.

Among her sayings was one she oft applied to those who neglect their mother; then at her death wring their hands and make great show of grief. 'Twas blunt, but oh how often true—"a bawling calf soon forgets its mother."

It's not our tears for mother's loss that prove our reverence for her. It is what we do for mother in her living days that best bespeaks our love. Even that's vainglorious.

It's paying little on the biggest debt we owe, just to proclaim affection for the woman who gave us life and nursed us to our strength. Love of mother is inborn. It seems to be our gratitude that needs be roused.

I NEVER QUITE believe the man who says he harbors not a single regret; that he did everything he could have done for his mother. While my mother lived I thought that too, but now I can think of so many things I wish I had done. If only it had not seemed that mother would forever be—that there'd be time, that some day I'd do this or that.

And then one day my mother was gone. Her lips were sealed, her eyes were closed. Her crippled hands would stroke my greying brow no more.

If that day has not come to you, go now and clean the slate. Wipe from it every put-off good intent. Go give to mother everything you know her due.

BEST THING to do is give yourself to mother whilst she lives. Mother wants that most of all. For when she's gone, no matter what the palace you have built for her, no matter what the comfort you provide her now, you'll most regret the time you could have spent in her embrace—and didn't.

We experience only once this transcendent loss. When that time comes neither anguish, show, nor days we set apart, can erase the contrite memory of things we failed to do for mother.

So let's make every day Mother's Day.

National Hearing Week Observance May 2 to 8

A new approach to the problem of deafness has developed over the 26 years that the American Hearing Society has sponsored National Hearing Week, which will be observed this year from May 2 to 8, according to Howard W. Ives, manager of Sonotone of Kingston.

Today a person can live a normal life "and is generally not considered handicapped at all if he accepts the help now available," even if he has only a small percentage of hearing, Ives said.

Hearing aids have developed from "a monstrosity of trumpets, batteries and satchels" to tiny one-piece affairs, he said.

Ives pointed out that Sonotone now has an all-transistor hearing aid that women can wear in their hairdos, an especial convenience for use with strapless evening gowns and bathing suits.

Another advance has been the improvement of methods of teaching lip-reading so that a person without any hearing can often manage to carry on necessary conversations. Lip-reading has to a large extent eliminated sign language, Ives pointed out.

The problem of helping babies born with defective hearing is being solved as a result of research pioneered at John Hopkins University, Ives said. Tests using this method have determined the degree of deafness in babies as young as two months.

Alabama, Ohio Will Ballot

civil rights program aimed at ending racial segregation.

Other Democrats are lined up for Alabama's governorship nomination including James E. "Big Jim" Folsom, former governor who is trying a comeback, Lt. Gov. James B. Allen of Gadsden, Elbert Boozer of Anniston, Winston Cullatte of Selma, Bruce Henderson of Miller's Ferry, James H. Faulkner of Bay Minette, Henry Sweet of Bessemer, and Jack Owen of Tuscaloosa.

Alabama's Democratic victors may be a shoo-in this November, since the Republicans haven't yet decided whether to put up candidates for the top offices.

In Ohio the feature attraction is the Republican contest for the term of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft which has two years to run. Slugging it out are Rep. George H. Bender, a congressional veteran who says he has Eisenhower Administration support, and William Saxbe, speaker of the Ohio House, who has termed Bender a "ward-heeler type politician."

Whoever wins here will run against Sen. Thomas A. Burke, former Cleveland mayor, who now holds Taft's seat by appointment and has no Democratic opponents in his try for an elected victory in November.

Ohio's Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who broke the record when he won a fourth term to the state's top executive post, is now out for a fifth two-year term. His Republican opposition this fall will be James A. Rhodes, state auditor and former Columbus mayor, since for the first time in 40 years the two parties' candidates for the gubernatorial nomination are unopposed.

Indiana has a party-control fight to pep up its primary. This centers in the Ninth District, where Republican Rep. Earl Wilson faces a stiff opponent for renomination in State Sen. Ed Whitcomb.

Stands With Faction

Wilson, now in his 14th year in the House, stands with the Republican faction led by Gov. George N. Craig. Whitcomb is lined up with the "Old Guard" group headed by U. S. Sens. Homer Capehart and William Jenner, who now control the state organization. The party split started two years ago when the senators backed Taft for President and Craig went for Gen. Eisenhower.

Otherwise Indiana's Primary Day was expected to be relatively quiet, with the state's nine other Republican congressmen facing no challengers for renomination and the lone Democratic congressman, Rep. Ray J. Madden, only nominal opposition. However the Democrats have candidates in all 11 House districts and think they can upset at least four Republicans in November.

Florida Primary

Florida's primary sees three Democrats after the two remaining years of the term of the late governor, Dan McCarty, who died in office. The candidates, who face a run-off primary May 25 if they get enough votes tomorrow, are Acting Gov. Charley E. Johns, Leroy Collins and Brailey Odah.

Republicans are seeking nominations in only two of Florida's eight congressional districts, whose representatives now are all Democrats. There are no opponents in either the primary or central election for four Democratic congressmen.

The primary in New Mexico is a Republican show, although a hot fight for governor and senator is forecast between the two parties in November.

Three Republicans, Warren R. Cobean, Thomas H. Childers and Joseph Rendon, are having it out for the two congressional nominations. The winners will have to take on the state's two present representatives, John J. Dempsey and Antonio M. Fernandez, both Democrats who had no primary opponents.

The bulbous onion and its numerous relatives, such as garlic, leek, chive, etc., belong to the lily family.

Court Apologizes

Detroit (AP)—Harold Mikkelson and Milton Santwire were arrested for loitering in an after-hours drinking place. The occasion was a membership party of the Civil Rights Congress, which is on the attorney general's list of subversive organizations. They meekly pleaded guilty and accepted $10 fines and a year's probation. Later the two were revealed as FBI undercover agents when they were surprise witnesses at a trial of Red leaders. Judge Frank G. Schemanske called the pair before him: "This court owes you an apology," he said. "For what you did at that Communis trial the country owes you a vote of thanks."

Will Announce Prizes

New York, May 3 (AP)—The annual Pulitzer prizes for journalism and literature will be announced this afternoon at Columbia University. The awards, given for work done during the previous calendar year, were established by the will of the late publisher Joseph Pulitzer. Winners are chosen by the trustees of Columbia with the help of a special advisory board.

Alabama's Democratic victors may be a shoo-in this November, since the Republicans haven't yet decided whether to put up candidates for the top offices.

In Ohio the feature attraction is the Republican contest for the term of the late Sen. Robert A. Taft which has two years to run. Slugging it out are Rep. George H. Bender, a congressional veteran who says he has Eisenhower Administration support, and William Saxbe, speaker of the Ohio House, who has termed Bender a "ward-heeler type politician."

Whoever wins here will run against Sen. Thomas A. Burke, former Cleveland mayor, who now holds Taft's seat by appointment and has no Democratic opponents in his try for an elected victory in November.

Ohio's Democratic Gov. Frank J. Lausche, who broke the record when he won a fourth term to the state's top executive post, is now out for a fifth two-year term. His Republican opposition this fall will be James A. Rhodes, state auditor and former Columbus mayor, since for the first time in 40 years the two parties' candidates for the gubernatorial nomination are unopposed.

Indiana has a party-control fight to pep up its primary. This centers in the Ninth District, where Republican Rep. Earl Wilson faces a stiff opponent for renomination in State Sen. Ed Whitcomb.

Stands With Faction

Wilson, now in his 14th year in the House, stands with the Republican faction led by Gov. George N. Craig. Whitcomb is lined up with the "Old Guard" group headed by U. S. Sens. Homer Capehart and William Jenner, who now control the state organization. The party split started two years ago when the senators backed Taft for President and Craig went for Gen. Eisenhower.

Otherwise Indiana's Primary Day was expected to be relatively quiet, with the state's nine other Republican congressmen facing no challengers for renomination and the lone Democratic congressman, Rep. Ray J. Madden, only nominal opposition. However the Democrats have candidates in all 11 House districts and think they can upset at least four Republicans in November.

Florida Primary

Florida's primary sees three Democrats after the two remaining years of the term of the late governor, Dan McCarty, who died in office. The candidates, who face a run-off primary May 25 if they get enough votes tomorrow, are Acting Gov. Charley E. Johns, Leroy Collins and Brailey Odah.

Republicans are seeking nominations in only two of Florida's eight congressional districts, whose representatives now are all Democrats. There are no opponents in either the primary or central election for four Democratic congressmen.

The primary in New Mexico is a Republican show, although a hot fight for governor and senator is forecast between the two parties in November.

Three Republicans, Warren R. Cobean, Thomas H. Childers and Joseph Rendon, are having it out for the two congressional nominations. The winners will have to take on the state's two present representatives, John J. Dempsey and Antonio M. Fernandez, both Democrats who had no primary opponents.

Court Apologizes

Detroit (AP)—Harold Mikkelson and Milton Santwire were arrested for loitering in an after-hours drinking place. The occasion was a membership party of the Civil Rights Congress, which is on the attorney general's list of subversive organizations. They meekly pleaded guilty and accepted $10 fines and a year's probation. Later the two were revealed as FBI undercover agents when they were surprise witnesses at a trial of Red leaders. Judge Frank G. Schemanske called the pair before him: "This court owes you an apology," he said. "For what you did at that Communis trial the country owes you a vote of thanks."

Will Announce Prizes

New York, May 3 (AP)—The annual Pulitzer prizes for journalism and literature will be announced this afternoon at Columbia University. The awards, given for work done during the previous calendar year, were established by the will of the late publisher Joseph Pulitzer. Winners are chosen by the trustees of Columbia with the help of a special advisory board.

INDIA AND INDO-CHINA

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India has stated that American planes ferrying French combat troops to Indo-China will not be permitted to fly over Indian territory. In taking this stand he is within his rights as leader of a neutral nation. Whether or not his action is wise and in the interest of his country is another question.

If the Communists win in Indo-China its people will be farther than ever from getting their independence. In no instance where the Communists have come to power has real independence or personal liberty been granted. At the moment their success in Indo-China seems to be sounding the death knell for its freedom.

But the bell is not tolling for these people alone. Communist success there could mean that all of Asia would be overrun by communism. India is far from safe from possible aggression and its present neutrality would be poor protection.

Every effort is needed at the moment to forestall a Red victory in Indo-China. The position of India on refusing American planes permission to fly over Indian territory on these missions is a hindrance rather than a help. Prime Minister Nehru may live to regret the day that he put a barrier in the way of those who are attempting to help check communism.

So far Nehru's barrier is theoretical only, for the routes of these planes are not passing over his country. But it could make trouble.

SPY STORY

Few spy stories of fiction have been more thrilling than the true story of Mrs. Vladmir Petrov, who was freed from Russian agents by the intervention of the Australian government.

A short time ago Mrs. Petrov's husband, a Russian diplomat, fled his post and delivered information about a spy ring to Australian officials. His wife issued a statement saying that he had been kidnapped. Many who read the statement believed that she had been forced to make it.

Later the Russians were going to take her to Moscow. A large throng of Australians went to the airport to see her depart. She was dragged aboard a plane and was heard to cry out for help. When the plane landed in another part of Australia police officials disarmed her Russian guards and set her free. She was given time to make up her mind and elected to remain in Australia as a refugee.

It is good to know that Mrs. Petrov made her escape, that she will not be forced to pay for her husband's decision to break with Communist tyranny. There may be repercussions about Australia's action in helping her but free men all over the world will agree that the Australian officials behaved in a humane and courageous manner.

Everyone loves a spy story—especially a story such as this one which had a happy ending. At least everyone hopes it has thus ended.

What goes up must come down, we have always been told. Gravity we can understand, but the one-way path of prices is harder to follow.

SMOKE SCREEN

By severing diplomatic relations with Australia and taking other stern measures, some of them economic, the Soviet Union is not merely revealing the depth of the wound suffered when Vladimir Petrov, MVD official, defected and sought political asylum.

The Russians are trying mightily to suggest that Australia is guilty of some serious diplomatic infraction.

Actually, in granting asylum to Petrov and his wife, Australia is following time-honored practice in free countries. In enlarged form, this was the principle at stake in the Korean truce fight over repatriation of Red prisoners.

The Russians complain about Australian treatment of diplomatic "couriers" who tried to spirit Mrs. Petrov out of the country. In truth these were nothing but armed strong boys who were doing a modern shanghai job. They merited no consideration as "diplomats."

This new Kremlin move is undoubtedly the first in a propaganda drive to discredit the damaging disclosures now sure to follow Petrov's dramatic defection.

'These Days'

LEAD AND ZINC

There has been considerable discussion during the past year or so on the relationship of metals and minerals to the effort to lower the American tariff. Some internationalists, such as Harold Stassen, are so anxious to lift the economies of other nations that they, perhaps witlessly, hurt our own. As in most things, a sense of proportion seems to be indicated.

I cite lead and zinc as objects worthy of our attention because should we go to war, these essential commodities will have to be mined on the American continents and may have to be transported on land once the sea lanes are closed down, as they well might be.

Lead and zinc are produced widely in the United States, including such states as New York and New Jersey, which one does not think of as mining states. The principal lead and zinc-producing areas are, of course, in the Rocky Mountain States.

The lead and zinc industry is always in peril from the dumping of low-priced imports on our market. This can result in the closing of American mines. There are those who might assert that if the American miners cannot produce these commodities in competition, let us say, with African miners, the Americans should shut down. On the other hand, in time of war, should the sea lanes be unavaflable. shall we have to have a wildcat frenzy to reopen these mines and to get them working again?

The United States Defense Materials Procurement Agency is reported to have advanced up to $680,000 for the development of Algerian lead production. The company in Constantine, Algeria, is French-owned and it was reported that it would repay the loan by deliveries of lead. This might or might not be a good deal for this country, provided the American mines remain open and are available in time of war.

Otto Herres, chairman of the National Lead and Zinc Committee, quotes a news item from Northern Rhodesia which gives some picture (in 1952 and it is not likely to have changed much) of the American miners' difficulties:

"The African Mine Workers Union called its 23,000 members out on strike today to support demands for a two shillings and eight pence (37c) per shift raise. . . . During negotiations the union rejected a fourpence (5c) per shift raise offer by the companies. The average pay of an African underground worker is four pounds sterling ($11.20) a month plus room and board."

American wages for comparable workers are approximately $360 a month. Wages run about $1.94 an hour. In a word, the American mine worker receives for one day's work about the same amount as an African receives in a month.

Our economy has become so complex because of the condition of permanent war that it is impossible to view any problem from a peacetime standpoint. For instance, the Malay Peninsula and adjacent countries are important to us not only politically but because Singapore controls our supply of raw rubber. In time of peace, whatever the political conditions in Malaya, we should probably be able to purchase supplies of raw rubber; but in modern warfare, the sea lanes could be shut down or imperiled either by the schnorkel submarines or the air power of the Soviet Universal State. Then, we should again become wholly dependent upon synthetic rubber. No matter how optimistic a politician may be about the future, prudence dictates that a country such as ours must be prepared for such an emergency.

The same is true about lead, zinc, vanadium, titanium and every other important metal and mineral. It is foolhardly to trust to our ability to keep the sea lanes open. We may or we may not; we shall only know about that should war actually take place.

The usual State Department argument that American industry can match low wage-scale industries abroad because Americans are more efficient is incorrect. A coolie can operate a semi-automatic machine as competently as a Harvard graduate and I have seen the coolies do it in China. That is not the issue. The issue is how can we keep our mines open if foreign governments dump goods into this country without regard to price. The only practical answer today is that in any industry where the danger of shutting down is real and imminent, the tariff should be used to keep the American industry open.

That Body of Yours

GAMMA GLOBULIN IN POLIOMYELITIS

Older physicians watch the experimental work being done by investigating physicians into the causes of cancer, poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) and other diseases with a great deal of interest and the results of the use of gamma globulin throughout the civilized world. It will certainly be a great victory for medical science if gamma globulin and procaine prove to be life-saving.

In Review of Clinical Medicine for Children, Drs. F. Ragazzone, M. Guisti, A. Pazzglia, Italian investigators, report that since May, 1951, they have been treating poliomyelitis patients by injecting gamma globulin into the large blood vessel of the heart (the aorta) and procaine into the veins in an intense passive immunization in the early stage in the disease. The procaine has a protective action on the nerve and blood vessel apparatus during the same phase of the disease and during the phase of recovery and convalescence.

These physicians classify their patients as having severe cases when both legs are involved, very severe cases when there is bulbar (paralysis) and all four extremities are invoved, moderate when only one group of muscles is affected.

They inject from 4 to 14 cc. of gamma globulin into the aorta (sometimes with plasma after an injection of from 5 to 10 cc of procaine into the aorta). This is repeated 3 or 4 times in the following days. At the same time the injection of procaine is given into the veins, not into the muscles. This treatment is supplemented by antibiotics (germkillers) and vitamins B1, C and E, and is continued for three or four to 15 to 20 courses.

"When injections into the aorta are too dangerous for patients in whom all the extremities (both legs, both arms) are involved, the injections into the veins alone are used; in mild cases the gamma globulin is injected into the muscles."

Physical therapy (massage, passive exercises and electricity) are used after the painful phase has passed. These physicians treated 95 patients with poliomyelitis. Disease was very severe in 31 patients severe in 24, moderate in 20. All but two cases received some benefit from the above treatment.

Athough it is too soon to make a definite statement regarding the use of gamma globulin and procaine in poliomyelitis, the above results give us good ground to feel that research physicians everywhere are on the right track and that gamma globulin and procaine may meet our expectations.

The New New Look

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

Washington — (NEA) — The American delegation at Geneva is playing its diplomacy by ear. The United States probably never went into any international conference with a less clear idea of what might be gotten out of it.

The fact that the fighting in Indochina was still going on as the conference opened, plus the instability of the French political situation, make any predictions on the outcome impossible.

For instance, when Secretary of State Dulles left Washington, he planned to come home at the end of the first week. But up to the time his return plane was scheduled to leave Geneva, there could be no certainty he would be aboard.

The original plan for the conference was to take up the Korean peace first—for as much as 90 days—then go on to the Indochina question. French insistence on moving up the Indochinese talks could easily upset that schedule and make it necessary for Dulles to stay at Geneva indefinitely.

Whether Dulle's early departure from Geneva would tend to reduce the chances of conference success is argued both ways. On the one hand, the Russians might say for propaganda purposes that his departure showed the United States did not want peace and did not want to relieve tensions in the Far East.

On the other hand, there is even betting that if Dulles leaves the conference, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov will leave not far behind. On this theory, British and French Foreign Ministers Anthony Eden and Georges Bidault would leave shortly thereafter—if not before.

The three just couldn't afford to lower their prestige by staying on after Dulles had departed.

If the Geneva conference is turned over to working technicians there is a possibility that peace for Korea and Indochina might be dragged on for years like the Austrian peace negotiations.

There were two reasons why Dulles thought he could leave Geneva early. First was that Geneva was only overnight by air from Washington. He could return any time he was needed.

The second reason was that he did not feel it necessary for him to be present during all the negotiations on the Korean peace treaty. He could see the peace train on the conference track—then leave.

Though no advance text has been given out, there has been general agreement among the 16 United Nations defending Korea on the acceptable terms for a peace treaty. No other goal than complete unification or a free and independent Korea to the Yalu has ever been considered.

There is some difference on how this unification may be attained. That's the job to be worked out at Geneva. It centers around the question of whether new elections shall be held in all of Korea to set up a new government, or whether the present Republic of Korea government under President Syngman Rhee shall be continued in South Korea, with new elections held only in North Korea.

To achieve unification and have it accepted by the Communists, the United Nations have one principal bargaining point. That is the ultimate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korean soil.

The sticker here is that the Chinese Communists want to talk about troop withdrawal first, with elections to come later. The UN position is that unification must come first, to be followed by troop withdrawal.

The United States has made only three commitments to President Rhee on Korean peace:

1. The United States will not force the Republic of Korea to accept a peace not in the best interests of the Korean people.

2. If after the Geneva conference has gone on for 90 days and it is apparent no satisfactory peace can be made, the United States and Republic of Korea will withdraw from the conference and "consult further regarding the attainment of a free and independent Korea . . ."

3. Under an American-Korean mutual security pact, if Korea should then be attacked, the United States "will act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes."

Communists Are Riding Propaganda Wave, Because of Anglo, French Weaknesses

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Geneva, May 3 — International conferences have their ups and downs, and this is one of those stages in which things are decidedly down. Sometimes it looks as if the entire Western alliance is just a myth and as if the Communists are riding high to bigger and bigger propaganda victories.

This comes about because one sees here the transparent weaknesses of both France and Britain who shy away from even the mildest proposals for collective action and collective security in Asia and reveal an awe of, if not a submissiveness to, Moscow's demands. It makes one wonder how long Uncle Sam can keep on pouring billions into the coffers of Allies who, with the best intentions in the world, feel helpless with their own public opinion to stand up in the clinches.

As one surveys Europe and Asia to find the real Allies of the United States today, it looks as if Spain—which has granted us air bases—will not quibble about our right to throw an atom bomb back at Russia if we are attacked. It looks as if Turkey, with her excellent Army, will stand firm. It also looks in Asia as if we could depend upon the really powerful Army of South Korea and the armies of Pakistan, the Philippines and Japan when a crisis comes.

But as for France and Britain, they have apparently gone isolationist and seem unconcerned about the possible loss of Southeast Asia to the Communists and would make a deal tomorrow with Moscow if they could do so gracefully and without too much offense to America. Prime Minister Churchill's latest speech, too, indicates he is willing to make a deal in Europe with Soviet Russia. It is significant that, for the first time in all his utterances, he wishes "happiness and ever-increasing and ever-expanding prosperity" to the Soviet government as well as the Soviet people and wants to see them both "play a proud and splendid part in the guidance of the human race."

This is the first time since 1945 that any western statesman has had such flattering words for the murderers in the Kremlin who are responsible for 140,000 American casualties and who have committed flagrant acts of aggression in both Asia and Europe. This Churchill speech sounds more like Chamberlain at Munich in 1938 than the expression of a resolute or formidable unity among the western allies in 1954.

What is most disconcerting here is the way Anthony Eden ran out last week on his pledge made to Secretary Dulles in London before the Geneva conclave began. At that time, it was understood that Great Britain would support a Southeastern Asia collective pact like NATO. Nobody asked Britain to announce any military commitments at this time. In fact, the French appeal for immediate military aid in Indo-China had been turned down by both Britain and the United States as not the right step to take at the moment, since Britain and America alone could not hope to get the support of Asian peoples by such a move. What America sought was a permanent setup like that in Europe. Secretary Dulles asked in vain that the British send a representative to Washington to explore the possibility of setting up a standing committee of governments for a Southeast Asia alliance, similar to the one established for the Korean situation and for NATO. This was a powerful countermove and it worried the Communists, so they got busy and stirred up Nehru of India, who in turn stirred up some of his satellites in a suddenly convened conference at Ceylon. There only Pakistan stood up against his efforts to torpedo the Dulles plan.

But it was London's turnabout which caused the most commotion here, and it seemed as if the British government were more anxious not to offend Nehru than the United States.

Meanwhile, French Forign Minister Bidault has tried valiantly to keep the situation fluid so his cabinet would not be overthrown in the midst of the negotiations here. He has struggled to put forth some kind of plan for the partition of Indo-China. To the American delegation, the word "partition" has been an anathema. Then, out of a clear sky and without advance warning to the delegation here, President Eisenhower discussed at his press conference the idea of partition in principle. It was promptly seized upon here as meaning a repudiation of what Dulles was trying to do.

Actually there wasn't much difference between what the President said and what the Secretary was trying to accomplish as an ultimate objective— namely, to achieve a "modus vivendi" in a military sense— but the European press distorted it into an Eisenhower willingness to accept a surrender of southeast Asia. It would be much better if the White House made no comments at all in these delicate situations while a conference of such importance is in progress, as even the most innocent words are misinterpreted deliberately by the anti- American press in Europe.

The cause is by no means lost here, however, and it is a good thing Secretary Dulles has decided to go back to Washington for a brief interval, because American public opinion needs to be informed on exactly what the issues are here and members of Congress need to be told how some of them have been inadvertently weakening the hand of their own delegation in Geneva. For, whether it is called "partition" or a "truce line," the important thing is for the allies to be able to say that they will defend such a line and that any transgression across that line will mean war, just the same as any aggressive action across the line drawn in Europe and across the 38th Parallel in Korea today means war. For it's the only way out—to draw a line in Asia as well as in Europe and tell the Communists to stay behind it under penalty of massive retaliation.

But what if our European allies do not go along and want to continue to appease the Communists? Then comes the "agonizing reappraisal" of American aid to Europe of which Secretary Dulles spoke several months ago. Maybe the time to make the reappraisal is nearer than most Europeans think.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, May 2—Regarding the efforts of Arthur J. Goldsmith of the Waldorf Tower and his clandestine political following to elect senators from other states, let me cite today a letter from Goldsmith to a young man who was put up to run against Pat McCarran in the Nevada Democratic primary in 1950. There will be other information in this instalment further exposing a ruse put out by The Associated Press which had the purpose of covering Goldsmith's tracks. That ruse was a handout from one of Goldsmith's stooges trying to create an impression that "southwestern" fortunes were doing the very thing that Goldsmith's secretive clique of eastern millionaires were trying to do in western states, New England, West Virginia and Tennessee. That is to swing elections with secret slush-funds.

A letter dated July 10, 1950, from Goldsmith to George Franklin, Jr. of Las Vegas, said he would pass along information to Franklin as it came to him. Then it told Franklin that "M", meaning Senator McCarran, was in Europe on Oct. 9, 1949, and so neither voted nor was paired on the "Korean Aid Bill."

"In other words," Goldsmith told Franklin, "when he tries to indicate how right he has been in wanting the United States to protect itself in the Far East, it can be called to the public attention that on a major measure dealing with the problem he did not even bother to indicate his position." Of itself, of course, this letter merely establishes the connection.

Another letter, dated two days earlier, from Frederick C. McKee, 724 Oliver Bldg., Pittsburgh, "chairman" of a letter-head front called "Committee on National Affairs," with headquarters in Goldsmith's apartment in the Waldorf Tower referred to a personal meeting with Franklin in New York. Franklin had come to New York from Nevada on a political mission with a woman married to a man who had been born in Russia. This woman, who was very active in Nevada politics for a brief time, arranged the pilgrimage to the Waldorf Tower. In Las Vegas she had organized something called "The Atlantic Union" and George Franklin, Jr., had been elected local president.

McKee, whose name occurs often in Goldsmith's tangled and mysterious political affairs, told Franklin that "we very much appreciated the privilege of meeting you and hearing your clear-cut presentation of the Nevada situation."

"I am enclosing a list of the contributors to Senator McCarran's 1944 campaign which I copied from the records in the Archives Bldg., in Washington," McKee continued. "It is rather peculiar that all the large out of state contributions are reported with one initial only. Am enclosing some printed matter which we used effectively in the Pittsburgh area in 1942 and which might offer some suggestions for use for some of the material which Dr. Birkhead is sending."

Birkhead is a weary old professional practitioner in the same field of politics who ran a layout called the Friends of Democracy, which employed John Roy Carlson, described by a U. S. court in Chicago as a professional liar and sneak. The Friends of Democracy is out of the New York telephone book now and the disposition of its "files" which Carlson sometimes referred to is not known to me.

The total contributions to McCarran for both the primary and the election were only $7,510. The largest single donation was $5,000 from the senatorial campaign committee of the national Democratic party. There were only two contributions for $500, both from Nevada citizens, two of $250, each, and of the total, only $905 came from outside the state.

On the other hand, a mooching letter from the "Committee on National Affairs," dated May 15, 1950, and signed with McKee's rubberstamp, as "chairman," said: "We need money now because the outcome of the primary in several states this summer rather than the elections in November will determine who will represent those states in the Senate."

So these impudent interlopers had the gall to claim a right to use outside money to elect senators in states where they had neither residence nor, as far as any evidence indicates, even business interests, which in theory, at least, are not entitled to a vote.

"If McCarran wins the primary, he is almost assured of election. Had enough of him? Or do you want six years more of the same? We think the gentleman should be retired to private life—and we are working toward that end.

"Do you agree with us? If so, please send us a generous check today sincerely yours."

Who were these high-minded patriots, operating by mail out of Goldsmith's residential suite in the Waldorf Tower to elect senators to represent the people of Nevada? The list at the left side of the letter-head included McKee as chairman, Wetmore Willcox, Jr., as treasurer, and Goldsmith, as secretary. The "execu-

INDIA AND INDO-CHINA

Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru of India has stated that American planes ferrying French combat troops to Indo-China will not be permitted to fly over Indian territory. In taking this stand he is within his rights as leader of a neutral nation. Whether or not his action is wise and in the interest of his country is another question.

If the Communists win in Indo-China its people will be farther than ever from getting their independence. In no instance where the Communists have come to power has real independence or personal liberty been granted. At the moment their success in Indo-China seems to be sounding the death knell for its freedom.

But the bell is not tolling for these people alone. Communist success there could mean that all of Asia would be overrun by communism. India is far from safe from possible aggression and its present neutrality would be poor protection.

Every effort is needed at the moment to forestall a Red victory in Indo-China. The position of India on refusing American planes permission to fly over Indian territory on these missions is a hindrance rather than a help. Prime Minister Nehru may live to regret the day that he put a barrier in the way of those who are attempting to help check communism.

So far Nehru's barrier is theoretical only, for the routes of these planes are not passing over his country. But it could make trouble.

SPY STORY

Few spy stories of fiction have been more thrilling than the true story of Mrs. Vladmir Petrov, who was freed from Russian agents by the intervention of the Australian government.

A short time ago Mrs. Petrov's husband, a Russian diplomat, fled his post and delivered information about a spy ring to Australian officials. His wife issued a statement saying that he had been kidnapped. Many who read the statement believed that she had been forced to make it.

Later the Russians were going to take her to Moscow. A large throng of Australians went to the airport to see her depart. She was dragged aboard a plane and was heard to cry out for help. When the plane landed in another part of Australia police officials disarmed her Russian guards and set her free. She was given time to make up her mind and elected to remain in Australia as a refugee.

It is good to know that Mrs. Petrov made her escape, that she will not be forced to pay for her husband's decision to break with Communist tyranny. There may be repercussions about Australia's action in helping her but free men all over the world will agree that the Australian officials behaved in a humane and courageous manner.

Everyone loves a spy story—especially a story such as this one which had a happy ending. At least everyone hopes it has thus ended.

What goes up must come down, we have always been told. Gravity we can understand, but the one-way path of prices is harder to follow.

SMOKE SCREEN

By severing diplomatic relations with Australia and taking other stern measures, some of them economic, the Soviet Union is not merely revealing the depth of the wound suffered when Vladimir Petrov, MVD official, defected and sought political asylum.

The Russians are trying mightily to suggest that Australia is guilty of some serious diplomatic infraction.

Actually, in granting asylum to Petrov and his wife, Australia is following time-honored practice in free countries. In enlarged form, this was the principle at stake in the Korean truce fight over repatriation of Red prisoners.

The Russians complain about Australian treatment of diplomatic "couriers" who tried to spirit Mrs. Petrov out of the country. In truth these were nothing but armed strong boys who were doing a modern shanghai job. They merited no consideration as "diplomats."

This new Kremlin move is undoubtedly the first in a propaganda drive to discredit the damaging disclosures now sure to follow Petrov's dramatic defection.

LEAD AND ZINC

There has been considerable discussion during the past year or so on the relationship of metals and minerals to the effort to lower the American tariff. Some internationalists, such as Harold Stassen, are so anxious to lift the economies of other nations that they, perhaps witlessly, hurt our own. As in most things, a sense of proportion seems to be indicated.

I cite lead and zinc as objects worthy of our attention because should we go to war, these essential commodities will have to be mined on the American continents and may have to be transported on land once the sea lanes are closed down, as they well might be.

Lead and zinc are produced widely in the United States, including such states as New York and New Jersey, which one does not think of as mining states. The principal lead and zinc-producing areas are, of course, in the Rocky Mountain States.

The lead and zinc industry is always in peril from the dumping of low-priced imports on our market. This can result in the closing of American mines. There are those who might assert that if the American miners cannot produce these commodities in competition, let us say, with African miners, the Americans should shut down. On the other hand, in time of war, should the sea lanes be unavaflable. shall we have to have a wildcat frenzy to reopen these mines and to get them working again?

The United States Defense Materials Procurement Agency is reported to have advanced up to $680,000 for the development of Algerian lead production. The company in Constantine, Algeria, is French-owned and it was reported that it would repay the loan by deliveries of lead. This might or might not be a good deal for this country, provided the American mines remain open and are available in time of war.

Otto Herres, chairman of the National Lead and Zinc Committee, quotes a news item from Northern Rhodesia which gives some picture (in 1952 and it is not likely to have changed much) of the American miners' difficulties:

"The African Mine Workers Union called its 23,000 members out on strike today to support demands for a two shillings and eight pence (37c) per shift raise. . . . During negotiations the union rejected a fourpence (5c) per shift raise offer by the companies. The average pay of an African underground worker is four pounds sterling ($11.20) a month plus room and board."

American wages for comparable workers are approximately $360 a month. Wages run about $1.94 an hour. In a word, the American mine worker receives for one day's work about the same amount as an African receives in a month.

Our economy has become so complex because of the condition of permanent war that it is impossible to view any problem from a peacetime standpoint. For instance, the Malay Peninsula and adjacent countries are important to us not only politically but because Singapore controls our supply of raw rubber. In time of peace, whatever the political conditions in Malaya, we should probably be able to purchase supplies of raw rubber; but in modern warfare, the sea lanes could be shut down or imperiled either by the schnorkel submarines or the air power of the Soviet Universal State. Then, we should again become wholly dependent upon synthetic rubber. No matter how optimistic a politician may be about the future, prudence dictates that a country such as ours must be prepared for such an emergency.

The same is true about lead, zinc, vanadium, titanium and every other important metal and mineral. It is foolhardly to trust to our ability to keep the sea lanes open. We may or we may not; we shall only know about that should war actually take place.

The usual State Department argument that American industry can match low wage-scale industries abroad because Americans are more efficient is incorrect. A coolie can operate a semi-automatic machine as competently as a Harvard graduate and I have seen the coolies do it in China. That is not the issue. The issue is how can we keep our mines open if foreign governments dump goods into this country without regard to price. The only practical answer today is that in any industry where the danger of shutting down is real and imminent, the tariff should be used to keep the American industry open.

GAMMA GLOBULIN IN POLIOMYELITIS

Older physicians watch the experimental work being done by investigating physicians into the causes of cancer, poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) and other diseases with a great deal of interest and the results of the use of gamma globulin throughout the civilized world. It will certainly be a great victory for medical science if gamma globulin and procaine prove to be life-saving.

In Review of Clinical Medicine for Children, Drs. F. Ragazzone, M. Guisti, A. Pazzglia, Italian investigators, report that since May, 1951, they have been treating poliomyelitis patients by injecting gamma globulin into the large blood vessel of the heart (the aorta) and procaine into the veins in an intense passive immunization in the early stage in the disease. The procaine has a protective action on the nerve and blood vessel apparatus during the same phase of the disease and during the phase of recovery and convalescence.

These physicians classify their patients as having severe cases when both legs are involved, very severe cases when there is bulbar (paralysis) and all four extremities are invoved, moderate when only one group of muscles is affected.

They inject from 4 to 14 cc. of gamma globulin into the aorta (sometimes with plasma after an injection of from 5 to 10 cc of procaine into the aorta). This is repeated 3 or 4 times in the following days. At the same time the injection of procaine is given into the veins, not into the muscles. This treatment is supplemented by antibiotics (germkillers) and vitamins B1, C and E, and is continued for three or four to 15 to 20 courses.

"When injections into the aorta are too dangerous for patients in whom all the extremities (both legs, both arms) are involved, the injections into the veins alone are used; in mild cases the gamma globulin is injected into the muscles."

Physical therapy (massage, passive exercises and electricity) are used after the painful phase has passed. These physicians treated 95 patients with poliomyelitis. Disease was very severe in 31 patients severe in 24, moderate in 20. All but two cases received some benefit from the above treatment.

Athough it is too soon to make a definite statement regarding the use of gamma globulin and procaine in poliomyelitis, the above results give us good ground to feel that research physicians everywhere are on the right track and that gamma globulin and procaine may meet our expectations.

The New New Look

Edson's Washington News Notebook

By PETER EDSON

Washington — (NEA) — The American delegation at Geneva is playing its diplomacy by ear. The United States probably never went into any international conference with a less clear idea of what might be gotten out of it.

The fact that the fighting in Indochina was still going on as the conference opened, plus the instability of the French political situation, make any predictions on the outcome impossible.

For instance, when Secretary of State Dulles left Washington, he planned to come home at the end of the first week. But up to the time his return plane was scheduled to leave Geneva, there could be no certainty he would be aboard.

The original plan for the conference was to take up the Korean peace first—for as much as 90 days—then go on to the Indochina question. French insistence on moving up the Indochinese talks could easily upset that schedule and make it necessary for Dulles to stay at Geneva indefinitely.

Whether Dulle's early departure from Geneva would tend to reduce the chances of conference success is argued both ways. On the one hand, the Russians might say for propaganda purposes that his departure showed the United States did not want peace and did not want to relieve tensions in the Far East.

On the other hand, there is even betting that if Dulles leaves the conference, Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov will leave not far behind. On this theory, British and French Foreign Ministers Anthony Eden and Georges Bidault would leave shortly thereafter—if not before.

The three just couldn't afford to lower their prestige by staying on after Dulles had departed.

If the Geneva conference is turned over to working technicians there is a possibility that peace for Korea and Indochina might be dragged on for years like the Austrian peace negotiations.

There were two reasons why Dulles thought he could leave Geneva early. First was that Geneva was only overnight by air from Washington. He could return any time he was needed.

The second reason was that he did not feel it necessary for him to be present during all the negotiations on the Korean peace treaty. He could see the peace train on the conference track—then leave.

Though no advance text has been given out, there has been general agreement among the 16 United Nations defending Korea on the acceptable terms for a peace treaty. No other goal than complete unification or a free and independent Korea to the Yalu has ever been considered.

There is some difference on how this unification may be attained. That's the job to be worked out at Geneva. It centers around the question of whether new elections shall be held in all of Korea to set up a new government, or whether the present Republic of Korea government under President Syngman Rhee shall be continued in South Korea, with new elections held only in North Korea.

To achieve unification and have it accepted by the Communists, the United Nations have one principal bargaining point. That is the ultimate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Korean soil.

The sticker here is that the Chinese Communists want to talk about troop withdrawal first, with elections to come later. The UN position is that unification must come first, to be followed by troop withdrawal.

The United States has made only three commitments to President Rhee on Korean peace:

1. The United States will not force the Republic of Korea to accept a peace not in the best interests of the Korean people.

2. If after the Geneva conference has gone on for 90 days and it is apparent no satisfactory peace can be made, the United States and Republic of Korea will withdraw from the conference and "consult further regarding the attainment of a free and independent Korea . . ."

3. Under an American-Korean mutual security pact, if Korea should then be attacked, the United States "will act to meet the common danger in accordance with its constitutional processes."

Communists Are Riding Propaganda Wave, Because of Anglo, French Weaknesses

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Geneva, May 3—International conferences have their ups and downs, and this is one of those stages in which things are decidedly down. Sometimes it looks as if the entire Western alliance is just a myth and as if the Communists are riding high to bigger and bigger propaganda victories.

This comes about because one sees here the transparent weaknesses of both France and Britain who shy away from even the mildest proposals for collective action and collective security in Asia and reveal an awe of, if not a submissiveness to, Moscow's demands. It makes one wonder how long Uncle Sam can keep on pouring billions into the coffers of Allies who, with the best intentions in the world, feel helpless with their own public opinion to stand up in the clinches.

As one surveys Europe and Asia to find the real Allies of the United States today, it looks as if Spain—which has granted us air bases—will not quibble about our right to throw an atom bomb back at Russia if we are attacked. It looks as if Turkey, with her excellent Army, will stand firm. It also looks in Asia as if we could depend upon the really powerful Army of South Korea and the armies of Pakistan, the Philippines and Japan when a crisis comes.

But as for France and Britain, they have apparently gone isolationist and seem unconcerned about the possible loss of Southeast Asia to the Communists and would make a deal tomorrow with Moscow if they could do so gracefully and without too much offense to America. Prime Minister Churchill's latest speech, too, indicates he is willing to make a deal in Europe with Soviet Russia. It is significant that, for the first time in all his utterances, he wishes "happiness and ever-increasing and ever-expanding prosperity" to the Soviet government as well as the Soviet people and wants to see them both "play a proud and splendid part in the guidance of the human race."

This is the first time since 1945 that any western statesman has had such flattering words for the murderers in the Kremlin who are responsible for 140,000 American casualties and who have committed flagrant acts of aggression in both Asia and Europe. This Churchill speech sounds more like Chamberlain at Munich in 1938 than the expression of a resolute or formidable unity among the western allies in 1954.

What is most disconcerting here is the way Anthony Eden ran out last week on his pledge made to Secretary Dulles in London before the Geneva conclave began. At that time, it was understood that Great Britain would support a Southeastern Asia collective pact like NATO. Nobody asked Britain to announce any military commitments at this time. In fact, the French appeal for immediate military aid in Indo-China had been turned down by both Britain and the United States as not the right step to take at the moment, since Britain and America alone could not hope to get the support of Asian peoples by such a move. What America sought was a permanent setup like that in Europe. Secretary Dulles asked in vain that the British send a representative to Washington to explore the possibility of setting up a standing committee of governments for a Southeast Asia alliance, similar to the one established for the Korean situation and for NATO. This was a powerful countermove and it worried the Communists, so they got busy and stirred up Nehru of India, who in turn stirred up some of his satellites in a suddenly convened conference at Ceylon. There only Pakistan stood up against his efforts to torpedo the Dulles plan.

But it was London's turnabout which caused the most commotion here, and it seemed as if the British government were more anxious not to offend Nehru than the United States.

Meanwhile, French Forign Minister Bidault has tried valiantly to keep the situation fluid so his cabinet would not be overthrown in the midst of the negotiations here. He has struggled to put forth some kind of plan for the partition of Indo-China. To the American delegation, the word "partition" has been an anathema. Then, out of a clear sky and without advance warning to the delegation here, President Eisenhower discussed at his press conference the idea of partition in principle. It was promptly seized upon here as meaning a repudiation of what Dulles was trying to do.

Actually there wasn't much difference between what the President said and what the Secretary was trying to accomplish as an ultimate objective— namely, to achieve a "modus vivendi" in a military sense— but the European press distorted it into an Eisenhower willingness to accept a surrender of southeast Asia. It would be much better if the White House made no comments at all in these delicate situations while a conference of such importance is in progress, as even the most innocent words are misinterpreted deliberately by the anti- American press in Europe.

The cause is by no means lost here, however, and it is a good thing Secretary Dulles has decided to go back to Washington for a brief interval, because American public opinion needs to be informed on exactly what the issues are here and members of Congress need to be told how some of them have been inadvertently weakening the hand of their own delegation in Geneva. For, whether it is called "partition" or a "truce line," the important thing is for the allies to be able to say that they will defend such a line and that any transgression across that line will mean war, just the same as any aggressive action across the line drawn in Europe and across the 38th Parallel in Korea today means war. For it's the only way out—to draw a line in Asia as well as in Europe and tell the Communists to stay behind it under penalty of massive retaliation.

But what if our European allies do not go along and want to continue to appease the Communists? Then comes the "agonizing reappraisal" of American aid to Europe of which Secretary Dulles spoke several months ago. Maybe the time to make the reappraisal is nearer than most Europeans think.

AS PEGLER SEES IT

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

New York, May 2—Regarding the efforts of Arthur J. Goldsmith of the Waldorf Tower and his clandestine political following to elect senators from other states, let me cite today a letter from Goldsmith to a young man who was put up to run against Pat McCarran in the Nevada Democratic primary in 1950. There will be other information in this instalment further exposing a ruse put out by The Associated Press which had the purpose of covering Goldsmith's tracks. That ruse was a handout from one of Goldsmith's stooges trying to create an impression that "southwestern" fortunes were doing the very thing that Goldsmith's secretive clique of eastern millionaires were trying to do in western states, New England, West Virginia and Tennessee. That is to swing elections with secret slush-funds.

A letter dated July 10, 1950, from Goldsmith to George Franklin, Jr. of Las Vegas, said he would pass along information to Franklin as it came to him. Then it told Franklin that "M", meaning Senator McCarran, was in Europe on Oct. 9, 1949, and so neither voted nor was paired on the "Korean Aid Bill."

"In other words," Goldsmith told Franklin, "when he tries to indicate how right he has been in wanting the United States to protect itself in the Far East, it can be called to the public attention that on a major measure dealing with the problem he did not even bother to indicate his position." Of itself, of course, this letter merely establishes the connection.

Another letter, dated two days earlier, from Frederick C. McKee, 724 Oliver Bldg., Pittsburgh, "chairman" of a letter-head front called "Committee on National Affairs," with headquarters in Goldsmith's apartment in the Waldorf Tower referred to a personal meeting with Franklin in New York. Franklin had come to New York from Nevada on a political mission with a woman married to a man who had been born in Russia. This woman, who was very active in Nevada politics for a brief time, arranged the pilgrimage to the Waldorf Tower. In Las Vegas she had organized something called "The Atlantic Union" and George Franklin, Jr., had been elected local president.

McKee, whose name occurs often in Goldsmith's tangled and mysterious political affairs, told Franklin that "we very much appreciated the privilege of meeting you and hearing your clear-cut presentation of the Nevada situation."

"I am enclosing a list of the contributors to Senator McCarran's 1944 campaign which I copied from the records in the Archives Bldg., in Washington," McKee continued. "It is rather peculiar that all the large out of state contributions are reported with one initial only. Am enclosing some printed matter which we used effectively in the Pittsburgh area in 1942 and which might offer some suggestions for use for some of the material which Dr. Birkhead is sending."

Birkhead is a weary old professional practitioner in the same field of politics who ran a layout called the Friends of Democracy, which employed John Roy Carlson, described by a U. S. court in Chicago as a professional liar and sneak. The Friends of Democracy is out of the New York telephone book now and the disposition of its "files" which Carlson sometimes referred to is not known to me.

The total contributions to McCarran for both the primary and the election were only $7,510. The largest single donation was $5,000 from the senatorial campaign committee of the national Democratic party. There were only two contributions for $500, both from Nevada citizens, two of $250, each, and of the total, only $905 came from outside the state.

On the other hand, a mooching letter from the "Committee on National Affairs," dated May 15, 1950, and signed with McKee's rubberstamp, as "chairman," said: "We need money now because the outcome of the primary in several states this summer rather than the elections in November will determine who will represent those states in the Senate."

So these impudent interlopers had the gall to claim a right to use outside money to elect senators in states where they had neither residence nor, as far as any evidence indicates, even business interests, which in theory, at least, are not entitled to a vote.

"If McCarran wins the primary, he is almost assured of election. Had enough of him? Or do you want six years more of the same? We think the gentleman should be retired to private life—and we are working toward that end.

"Do you agree with us? If so, please send us a generous check today sincerely yours."

Who were these high-minded patriots, operating by mail out of Goldsmith's residential suite in the Waldorf Tower to elect senators to represent the people of Nevada? The list at the left side of the letter-head included McKee as chairman, Wetmore Willcox, Jr., as treasurer, and Goldsmith, as secretary. The "execu-

NEGLECTED VALUES

Values begging to be bought are being neglected by thousands of investors all over America. Bankers and brokers with research facilities know of these values.

Today I will discuss a sample value and try to show how it should be judged by prospective purchasers. The pattern of analysis may well be followed generally. This value happens to be the common stock of one of the world's leading financial institutions.

A school boy with about $65 can buy one share and get over 5 per cent a year on his savings. A capitalist can buy (without pushing the price too high) a thousand shares for $65,000 and get (1) a liquid value with high collateral standing and (2) a fine return and (3) sound growth.

From the March 31, 1954 statement of condition, I take these figures:

1) Capital account:
   a) Capital $100,000,000
   b) Surplus 200,000,000
   c) Profits 94,868,000

   Total $394,868,000

The par value of this stock is $20. Thus, with capital of $100,000,000 one can see that there are 5,000,000 common shares outstanding. There is no debt and no preferred stock. Dividing the total capital account of $394,868,000 by 5,000,000 (the number of outstanding shares) one arrives at a book value of $78.99 a share.

But, please note, the bank's real estate is carried in the balance sheet at $8,205,000. Yet, it is assessed for tax purposes at $21,925,000 and real estate men tell me it is worth $40,000,000. So, if the bank's accounting principles were not very conservative, from $10,000,000 to $30,000,000 could be added to the capital account to the increase of the book value of the common stock.

Now, in connection with this underpriced value, it is pertinent to ask some leading questions:

1. How are the other assets of the bank evaluated? Do they carry inflation and are some of the prices subject to rapid market fluctuation?

Well, the government bond account is $683,000,000. No worry there. Uncle Sam pays off his obligations 100 cents on the dollar. Loans and discounts total $1,333,000,000 and, as every big bank borrower knows, these are well secured.

2. How are the labor and wage situations?

They are excellent. No trouble there.

3. How can the bank stand present economic trends?

Well, with federal expenditures declining and the future tax reductions on the agenda in Washington, the common stock holders of this institution can look cheerfully ahead into 1955-1956.

4. Why does such good stock with a book value of $78.99 (and far more if the real estate is carried at its worth) sell for $65-66?

Because there aren't enough bankers and brokers in America calling the attention of this value to potential investors.

And, remember, this is only one value out of a hundred I might write about.

Balance sheets mean precious little to most investors. But even today in the world's economic, social and political confusion, a brief analysis of many balance sheets will point to the fact with which I started: that values are begging to be bought.

(Q) "Isn't there a big market smash ahead—like the one in 1929-1933?"

(A) No, with federal expenditures of around $65,000,000,000 annually and with monetary and economic controls over the national economy, such an eventuality, in my opinion, is out of the question. Stock prices may sell off. But 1929-1933 experienced an economic collapse. This is not in the cards.

Wonderly Store Is Remodeled

A complete renovation and remodeling of The Wonderly Co., Inc., store at 314 Wall street, is now about completed and shoppers will find departments more conveniently arranged. Plans were made some time ago for modernizing the entire three floors and basement of the store and for a re-arrangement of departments and the inclusion of a new men's furnishing department on the main floor at the right of the entrance. Work on the first two floors has been completed, and on the top floor which houses the decorative and drapery departments, alterations will be completed later. A complete air condition system has been installed with a cooling unit on each floor. Fluorescent lights of the latest type have been installed throughout and new fixtures for better display have been installed. The entire interior has been redecorated. A new tile floor also has been laid. The new men's wear department which will specialize in better men's wear, sports wear and equipment and in fact a complete line of men's wear except men's suits, has been conveniently located on the main floor at the front of the store. The dry goods department, draperies department and women's wear sections have all been modernized and enlarged and equipped with new fixtures for better display and greater convenience to customers. (Freeman photo)

Volcano Explodes

Goma, Belgian Congo (AP) — A mountain is growing on the border between the Belgian Congo and the Belgian trust territory of Ruanda. February 21 the low saddle linking an extinct and an active volcano—the Nyaragongo and the Nyamuragira—blew up with a bang that was heard 50 miles around and flames started to shoot out of the hole, mixed with ash and pumice. Lava poured out and ran down the mountain threatening an important road. A few days later, the new crater started to build a new cone of cinders and hot stones around the first hole. The wild animals living fled, elephants and buffaloes wandering boldly through native villages and plantations, destroying everything in search food.

FALSE TEETH
That Loosen
Need Not Embarrass

Many wearers of false teeth have suffered real embarrassment because their plate dropped, slipped or wobbled at just the wrong time. Do not live in fear of this happening to you. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH, the alkaline (non-acid) powder, on your plates. Hold false teeth more firmly, so they feel more comfortable. Does not sour. Checks "plate odor" (denture breath). Get FASTEETH at any drug counter.

Investor Forum

Harry C. France

NEGLECTED VALUES

Values begging to be bought are being neglected by thousands of investors all over America. Bankers and brokers with research facilities know of these values.

Today I will discuss a sample value and try to show how it should be judged by prospective purchasers. The pattern of analysis may well be followed generally. This value happens to be the common stock of one of the world's leading financial institutions.

A school boy with about $65 can buy one share and get over 5 per cent a year on his savings. A capitalist can buy (without pushing the price too high) a thousand shares for $65,000 and get (1) a liquid value with high collateral standing and (2) a fine return and (3) sound growth.

From the March 31, 1954 statement of condition, I take these figures:

1) Capital account:
   a) Capital $100,000,000
   b) Surplus 200,000,000
   c) Profits 94,868,000
   Total $394,868,000

The par value of this stock is $20. Thus, with capital of $100,000,000 one can see that there are 5,000,000 common shares outstanding. There is no debt and no preferred stock. Dividing the total capital account of $394,868,000 by 5,000,000 (the number of outstanding shares) one arrives at a book value of $78.99 a share.

But, please note, the bank's real estate is carried in the balance sheet at $8,205,000. Yet, it is assessed for tax purposes at $21,925,000 and real estate men tell me it is worth $40,000,000. So, if the bank's accounting principles were not very conservative, from $$10,000,000 to $30,000,000 could be added to the capital account to the increase of the book value of the common stock.

Now, in connection with this underpriced value, it is pertinent to ask some leading questions:

1. How are the other assets of the bank evaluated? Do they carry inflation and are some of the prices subject to rapid market fluctuation?

Well, the government bond account is $683,000,000. No worry there. Uncle Sam pays off his obligations 100 cents on the dollar. Loans and discounts total $1,333,000,000 and, as every big bank borrower knows, these are well secured.

2. How are the labor and wage situations?

They are excellent. No trouble there.

3. How can the bank stand present economic trends?

Well, with federal expenditures declining and the future tax reductions on the agenda in Washington, the common stock holders of this institution can look cheerfully ahead into 1955-1956.

4. Why does such good stock with a book value of $78.99 (and far more if the real estate is carried at its worth) sell for $65-66?

Because there aren't enough bankers and brokers in America calling the attention of this value to potential investors.

And, remember, this is only one value out of a hundred I might write about.

Balance sheets mean precious little to most investors. But even today in the world's economic, social and political confusion, a brief analysis of many balance sheets will point to the fact with which I started: that values are begging to be bought.

C of C Releases Data on Survey of New Employment

The impact of new or additional industrial employment on local business was recently reported by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States after the completion of a detailed study in 11 widely scattered counties of the country. The results were released today by the Kingston Chamber of Commerce.

The results were reported in terms of the effect of each 100 new permanent industrial jobs in the area. For each 100 such workers, the population increased 338. There were 117 new households established, 172 persons became employed and 62 school children were added, 165 new car registrations resulted, 46 truck and bus registrations and 54 new residence telephones were reported.

Annual retail sales increased $375,000 over a period of 10 years for each 100 manufacturing employes. As to who shares in the increased retail sales the survey indicated the following: Grocery stores $70,000; eating and drinking places, $30,000; department and variety stores, $45,000; clothing and shoe stores, $30,000; auto dealers, $50,000; building material dealers, $20,000 and all others $130,000 including professional services and service establishments.

Trial Term Convenes

The May trial term of Supreme Court was convened at 11 a. m. today with Justice Harry E. Schirick presiding. Jurors reported at the morning session and ten jurors who answered roll call were excused by the court. The day calendar will be called at 2 p. m. at which time jurors reported back for duty.

Theft of Tools Reported

The theft of approximately $25 worth of tools from a crane on the Thruway construction project in the Hurley avenue area was reported to the sheriff's office and Kingston police this morning. The Ottaviano Construction Company said the tools, which were taken sometime over the weekend, included screw drivers, pliers, open-end wrenches and other items.

Two Plead Guilty

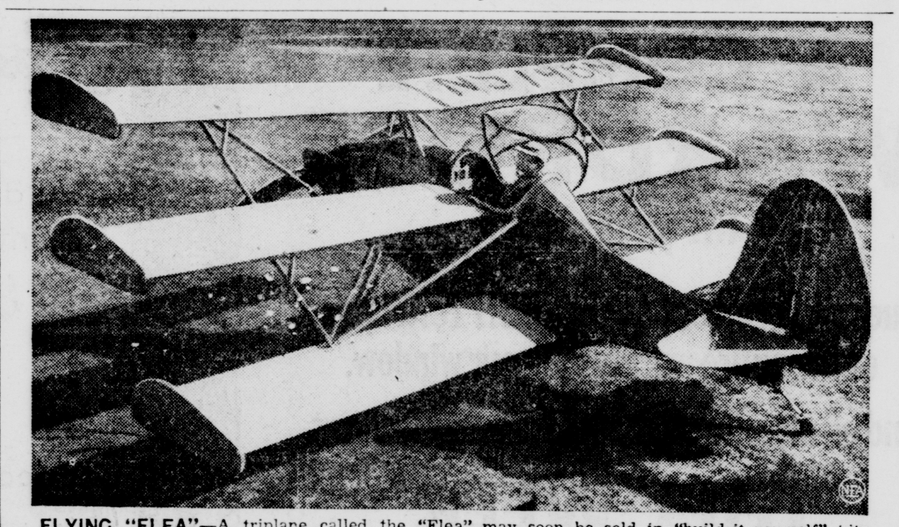
Poughkeepsie, May 3 (AP)—Harry Kurlansky, 46, and his wife, Lucille, today pleaded guilty to an indictment charging perjury in connection with a gambling investigation. Dutchess County Judge John R. Schwartz set next Friday for sentencing. Mrs. Kurlansky's complaint in April last year that her husband was losing money to gamblers touched off the gambling investigation. Mr. and Mrs. Kurlansky were among six persons indicted on perjury charges last December. They were picked up in North Miami, Fla., waived extradition and were brought back here.

Says Light Pole Struck

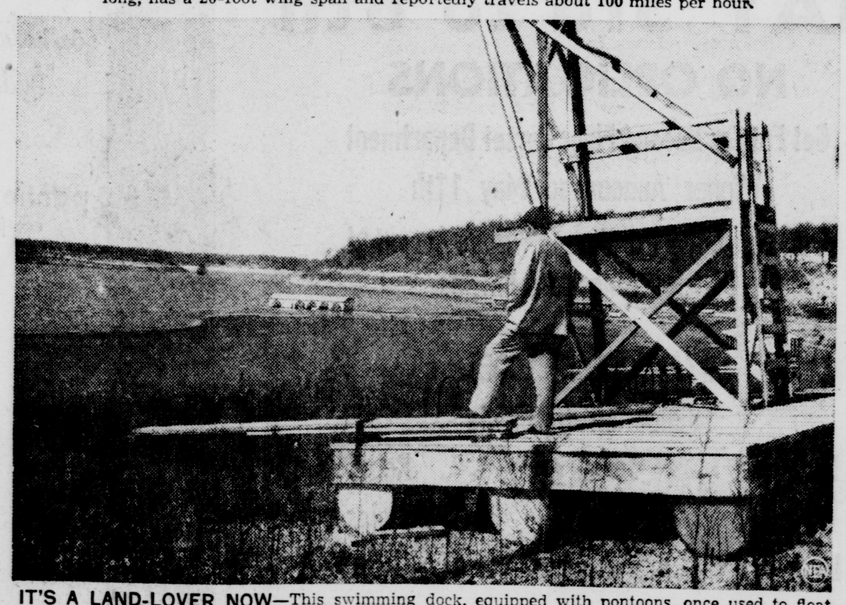
Louis Ellenboker, of 64 Broadway, notified police headquarters at 2:36 a. m., today that a light pole at Broadway and West Union street, had been struck and damaged by a vehicle. Officers Everett Emmick and Francis Buchanan, investigated and notified the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. Police were also notified at 12:12 a. m., Sunday by Officers Joseph Kivlan and Hydrect Armstrong that a water line had apparently broken under the sidewalk at 72 Broadway. It was being repaired today.

Bad Luck Feared

Naples, Italy, May 3 (AP)—Catholic Neopolitans feared today the city faces a year of bad luck—the hardened blood of their patron, St. Januarius, was a day late in melting this year. The blood is kept in two silver phials in the Naples Cathedral. For the past four centuries, it is said, it has softened the first Saturday of May in answer to prayers. Three times the blood remained hard—before a bubonic plague in 1527, a cholera epidemic in 1884 and the 1944 eruption of Vesuvius.



FLYING "FLEA"—A triplane called the "Flea" may soon be sold in "build-it-yourself" kits for less than $1000. George Frisbee, its inventor, demonstrates the plane in Milwaukee, Wis. It still has to pass several CAA tests before he'll be able to market the Flea. The plane is 15 feet long, has a 20-foot wing span and reportedly travels about 100 miles per hour.



IT'S A LAND-LOVER NOW—This swimming dock, equipped with pontoons, once used to float in Grand Lake, near Grove, Okla. But it is now landlocked as a result of the severe drought that moved the lake's shore line. The springboards now extend over weeds that grow where the water was once 20 feet deep.

Experts Check Automobile Spots

Harrison, N. J., May 3 (AP)—Experts today examined a snappy convertible, which police say was borrowed recently by Benedetto Macri of New York, in an effort to determine whether stains in the trunk were that of human blood.

The car was parked here last Thursday. Macri has been missing since last week, when his brother, Vincent, was found shot to death in the luggage compartment of a car in the Bronx.

Bronx police say they are considering the possibility that Benedetto also may have been killed. Vincent had been shot twice in the head.

Benedetto was said to have switched cars with a car dealer acquaintance, Edward Cohen of the Bronx, early last month. Cohen was quoted by police as saying Benedetto apparently feared that his own car would be repossessed because he was behind in his payments.

Cohen, when he heard about Vincent's slaying, notified police of the switch in cars.

Cohen Questioned

Harrison police questioned Cohen for three hours yesterday. Cohen said that at the time of the car switch Benedetto told him he was expecting a "considerable amount of money" in a few days.

Several days later, Cohen told police, Benedetto called to say he was going to get the money in 48 hours to pay the finance company.

Harrison Deputy Police Chief Arthur Ford said a resident here reported that a well-dressed man parked the car and walked away. Police say the description of the man doesn't coincide with that of Benedetto Macri.

Hudson County Prosecutor Frederick T. Law impounded the blue convertible.

Benedetto was acquited of murder in the 1949 death of Labor Leader William Lurye. Later, a key witness at Benedetto's trial admitted he lied because of threats to his life.

Vincent Macri's widow, Betty, has told Bronx police she hasn't seen Benedetto for about a year. However, the police said yesterday they have information that the brothers were seen together a week before Vincent's body was discovered.

Both Vincent and Benedetto have been bodyguards of Albert Anastasia, notorious underworld figure who resides in Fort Lee.

Bill Is Approved

Washington, May 3 (AP)—The Senate agriculture committee today approved a bill intended to provide for economic disaster loans to potato farmers hit by price declines. Secretary of Agriculture Benson would be authorized to make up to 15 million dollars in emergency loans during the rest of 1954 "for any agricultural purpose" in areas where he determines there is a need that cannot be met any other way. Committee sources said the measure was requested primarily to aid potato farmers in Maine, Colorado and Idaho.

Fire Damage Is Checked

Firemen inspect the damage to the Wendell Jones property on the Woodstock-West Hurley road, which was caused during a fire early Friday afternoon. Quick thinking on the part of Ernest Muller, a neighbor, probably saved the building from destruction, it was reported. Mr. and Mrs. Barry Neher, who had resided in the cottage for about a week, were not at home at the time of the blaze. (Freeman photo)

Rally and Parade Begin Tuesday at 7

The annual rally and parade of the Kingston District, Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America, will begin at 7 p. m. Tuesday at the Empire parking lot, Broadway and Albany avenue.

The parade, which will feature all Boy Scout and Cub Scout groups, with music furnished by Troop 12 drum and bugle corps, will get underway at 7 p. m. and proceed down Broadway to the municipal auditorium where the rally will start at 7:30 p. m. In case of rain the parade will not be held and the rally will start at the regular time.

During the rally each Cub Pack and Boy Scout Troop is scheduled to participate in some event. The rally will be opened with an impressive flag ceremony, and will close with a second ceremony presented by Troop 9.

The commissioner staff of the Rip Van Winkle Council will be in charge of the rally, with judges for competitive events furnished by the Kingston Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Poughkeepsie Ferry Slated for Museum

The Brinckerhoff, Poughkeepsie's old ferryboat built in 1899, recently condemned to the scrap pile, will be preserved at Marine Museum, Mystic, Conn., it was reported yesterday in the Poughkeepsie New Yorker.

The ferry continued to operate even after the Mid-Hudson bridge was opened to traffic but when tolls were reduced in 1941, it was unable to compete with the modern span.

Shot Is Investigated

Patrolman Edward Leonard, of 75 Ravine street, reported to police headquarters Sunday that at about 5 p. m., a .22 calibre pellet crashed through a pane of glass and venetian blind and landed on the floor of a bedroom in his house. Officers Bernard Fowler and William Snyder were assigned to investigate and the sheriff's office was notified because it was believed that the pellet came from a rifle fired from a wooded area on the Connelly side of the Rondout creek.

Late Bulletin

New York, May 3 (AP)—Frederic H. Bontecou, sportsman and veteran Dutchess county Republican chairman, disclosed today that he has resigned as a member of the Republican state committee in protest against a new law which bars politicians from racing horses in the state.

Bontecou also said that "I probably will resign as county chairman within the next day or two."

Bontecou said he submitted his resignation as state committee member to Dean P. Taylor, Republican state chairman.

May Sell Butter Lower

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson indicated today that the government may soon change its policy and offer surplus butter abroad at prices below the domestic level. Heretofore, the government has followed a policy of keeping its prices the same for both domestic and export markets, although the foreign market is now between 10 and 15 cents a pound below the domestic price. As a consequence no U. S. butter has been moving abroad. Benson told a news conference that negotiations are being carried out for the possible sale of 40 million pounds to Great Britain at 47 cents a pound. The government owns surplus stocks of more than 350 million pounds, acquired under a dairy price support program.

Benson Cites Support

Washington, May 3 (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Benson said today that his mail indicates that sentiment out in the country is growing for the administration's program of flexible farm price supports. The secretary told an annual meeting of the newspaper Farm Editors Assn., that this sentiment was reflected in action of the Senate last week in defeating 48-40 a rider to an administration wool bill which would have extended the present high, rigid supports another two years.

Fog Blankets City

New York, May 3 (AP)—Heavy fog blanketed the city early today and disrupted air traffic at LaGuardia and Idlewild Airports. However, harbor police reported there was no interruption of ocean-going or ferryboat traffic despite visibility of only ⅛ of a mile at the Battery. LaGuardia Field closed shortly after midnight (EST) when fog reduced visibility and dropped the ceiling to 200 feet. Idlewild closed down about three hours later.

400 Workers Idle At Alsen Cement

Approximately 400 men were idle today at the Lehigh Portland Cement Company plant at Alsen due to a strike of employes who refused to continue work after their contract ran out April 30.

Over half the men off the job are construction workers who are employed on a plant expansion program.

About 215 workers at the North American Cement Corporation plant at Alsen were scheduled to go off the job at 11 p. m. today.

Lehigh employs about 150 men. North American Cement Corporation's contract with the workers also ran out April 30. No comment was available from union officials as to the situation at the Alpha Portland Cement Company plant at Cementon where the contract expired April 1.

Wouldn't Cross Line

When the Lehigh workers went off the job at 11 p. m. Sunday, construction workers on the job refused to cross the picket line which was thrown about the plant and today some 250 construction workers were idle. About 100 of the idle construction workers are carpenters, George E. Yerry, Jr., reported today.

North American workers at the Howe's Caverns plant were also expected to go out some time today.

Efforts to contact the Lehigh company management to ascertain the company's viewpoint was unavailable, it being reported at the plant that the official who could make a statement was not available.

Luther Leaguers Name Area Youths As New Officers

The annual convention of the mid-Hudson district Luther League was held Sunday at the Lutheran Church of the Redeemer. The district, which includes the youth from churches on both sides of the Hudson and includes the Liberty-Middletown area as well, chose Miss Kay Simmons of Atonement Lutheran Church, Saugerties, as its president for the coming year with Paul Yakutis of St. John's Church, Middletown, vice president; Miss Gretchen Stier of Christ Church, Germantown, secretary and Miss Carol Gaise of Redeemer Church, Kingston, treasurer. The newly elected officers were installed by the host-pastor the Rev. David C. Gaise at the evening session.

200 Attend Meeting

As they arrived in groups, the 200 leaguers took part in a get-acquainted recreational program headed by Bill Daum, advisor of Redeemer's league. After the business session which followed the parents of the local leaguers served supper in the assembly room. The Rev. Paul M. Young, Jr., pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church of Hudson and former resident of Kingston, introduced the speaker at the supper hour, Miss Irma Kunnmann of Roosevelt, L. I. Her theme was The Christian Vocation, to which she brought much interesting material gathered from her work in leadership training and Luther League promotion throughout the country.

Filing out of the dining room in silence, the young people and their advisors entered the darkened nave of the church where the members of the Elcor-teens, Redeemer's youth group, conducted the closing candle-light rededication service. Participating were Dale Spalt, Carol DuBois, Richard and Patricia Gendreau.

The district will gather for its next meeting in October when the traditional fall rally will be held in St. Paul's Lutheran Church in Narrowsburg.

Two Plead Guilty

Poughkeepsie, May 3 (AP)—Harry Kurlansky, 46, and his wife, Lucille, today pleaded guilty to an indictment charging perjury in connection with a gambling investigation. Dutchess County Judge John R. Schwartz set next Friday for sentencing. Mrs. Kurlansky's complaint in April last year that her husband was losing money to gamblers touched off the gambling investigation. Mr. and Mrs. Kurlansky were among six persons indicted on perjury charges last December. They were picked up in North Miami, Fla., waived extradition and were brought back here.

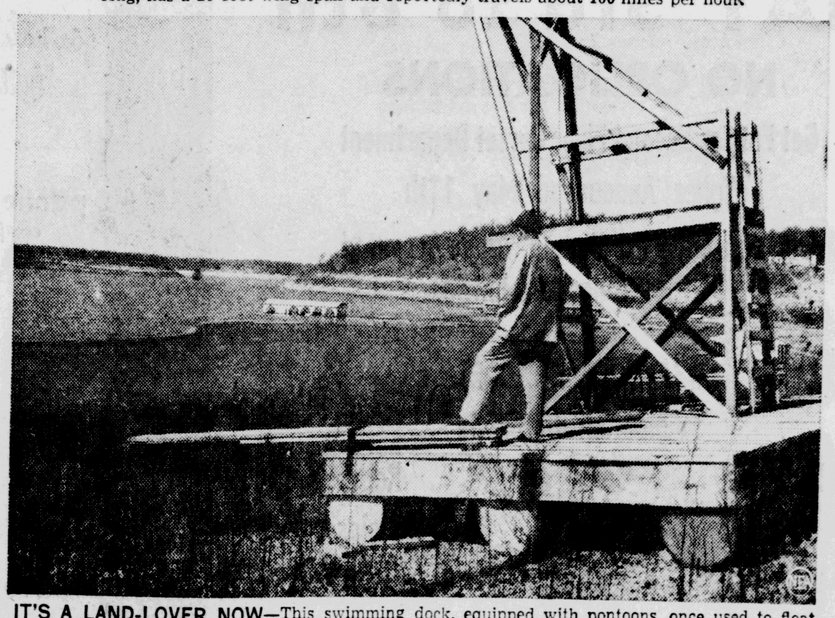
Says Light Pole Struck

Louis Ellenboker, of 64 Broadway, notified police headquarters at 2:36 a. m., today that a light pole at Broadway and West Union street, had been struck and damaged by a vehicle. Officers Everett Emmick and Francis Buchanan, investigated and notified the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp. Police were also notified at 12:12 a. m., Sunday by Officers Joseph Kivlan and Hydrect Armstrong that a water line had apparently broken under the sidewalk at 72 Broadway. It was being repaired today.

Bad Luck Feared

Naples, Italy, May 3 (AP)—Catholic Neopolitans feared today the city faces a year of bad luck—the hardened blood of their patron, St. Januarius, was a day late in melting this year. The blood is kept in two silver phials in the Naples Cathedral. For the past four centuries, it is said, it has softened the first Saturday of May in answer to prayers. Three times the blood remained hard—before a bubonic plague in 1527, a cholera epidemic in 1884 and the 1944 eruption of Vesuvius.

It still has to pass several CAA tests before he'll be able to market the Flea. The plane is 15 feet long, has a 20-foot wing span and reportedly travels about 100 miles per hour.



IT'S A LAND-LOVER NOW—This swimming dock, equipped with pontoons, once used to float in Grand Lake, near Grove, Okla. But it is now landlocked as a result of the severe drought that moved the lake's shore line. The springboards now extend over weeds that grow where the water was once 20 feet deep.

Experts Check Automobile Spots

Harrison, N. J., May 3 (AP)—Experts today examined a snappy convertible, which police say was borrowed recently by Benedetto Macri of New York, in an effort to determine whether stains in the trunk were that of human blood.

The car was parked here last Thursday. Macri has been missing since last week, when his brother, Vincent, was found shot to death in the luggage compartment of a car in the Bronx.

Bronx police say they are considering the possibility that Benedetto also may have been killed. Vincent had been shot twice in the head.

Benedetto was said to have switched cars with a car dealer acquaintance, Edward Cohen of the Bronx, early last month. Cohen was quoted by police as saying Benedetto apparently feared that his own car would be repossessed because he was behind in his payments.

Cohen, when he heard about Vincent's slaying, notified police of the switch in cars.

Cohen Questioned

Harrison police questioned Cohen for three hours yesterday. Cohen said that at the time of the car switch Benedetto told him he was expecting a "considerable amount of money" in a few days.

Several days later, Cohen told police, Benedetto called to say he was going to get the money in 48 hours to pay the finance company.

Harrison Deputy Police Chief Arthur Ford said a resident here reported that a well-dressed man parked the car and walked away. Police say the description of the man doesn't coincide with that of Benedetto Macri.

Hudson County Prosecutor Frederick T. Law impounded the blue convertible.

Benedetto was acquited of murder in the 1949 death of Labor Leader William Lurye. Later, a key witness at Benedetto's trial admitted he lied because of threats to his life.

Vincent Macri's widow, Betty, has told Bronx police she hasn't seen Benedetto for about a year. However, the police said yesterday they have information that the brothers were seen together a week before Vincent's body was discovered.

Both Vincent and Benedetto have been bodyguards of Albert Anastasia, notorious underworld figure who resides in Fort Lee.

The second gadget is a Builder-Upper, an instrument which will make the average person feel a hundred feet tall. It is known as a miscroscope.

Here's how I use these dingises . . .

Whenever I get to thinking I'm quite a chunk of something, I set up the telescope on my back porch and take a peek into the wild black yonder. Then, to check on exactly how small I am by comparison with what I see in my telescope, I thumb through a book by one or another of the younger astronomers. At the moment, it's "The Nature of the Universe" by Fred Hoyle of Oxford University.

For instance, this book tells me that if I were to build a scale model of the visible universe and place a marble on my desk to represent the earth, the sun, about the size of a basketball, would be 200 yards away. However, the nearest star, Alpha Centuri, would be somewhere south of Singapore—11,000 miles from the marble on my desk.

This star, to take it a step further, would be practically on top of me as compared with most other stars. For example, the constellation called Andromeda would be two-and-a-half billion miles away from my marble.

And, mind you, I'm only talking about our own cozy little galaxy, the Milky Way. The Milky Way, according to Hoyle, is only one of millions of galaxies which powder-puff the night sky I see through my telescope.

The crusher, according to astronomers, is that we will never know how far our universe extends, if, indeed, there is an end to it. The most distant galaxies are skidoodling away from us at a speed approaching the speed of light—186,000 miles a second—and if there are galaxies further out in space, they are probably going faster than the speed of light, and consequently their rays will never reach any telescope on earth.

So, you can see why, after half an hour of playing celestial Peeping Tom, this fat head of mine shrinks down to normal proportions—billard-ball size . . .

Now for the Builder-Upper—the microscope.

As good a way as any to start using this gadget is to take a smear of water from the old millpond and inspect the critters in it. You'll see squirming blobs of jelly called amoebas; slipper-shaped animals called Paramecium; microscopic fleas which, in turn, have fleas, and other Protozoa in the shape of bells, stars, trumpets and globes. In fact, every quart of warm sea water contains a whole lilliputian empire of whatchamacallits — 4,000,000 of them—more than the population of Chicago. And, as you'll soon discover, these bantam bugs live the full life, eating, fighting, multiplying, loafing and occasionally killing each other, very much like the people of Chicago.

How can this pint-size panorama prop up a droopy ego? Well, for one thing, it always make a little fellow feel good when he sees something littler. (I am speaking from experience. I never miss a Mickey Rooney picture.)

Actually, though, even the the world under the microscope is gigantic compared to the atoms and molecules which our finest electron microscopes can't make out. A billion molecules would fit comfortably on the head of a pin and, if you think that's small, each molecule is made up of atoms which, in turn, are composed of electrons spinning around a nucleus at up to 50,000 miles a second.

In other words, dear reader, a good second hand microscope is the Rose Jim-Dandy System for building yourself up after somebody has laid you out flat. The thing you've got to watch out for, I find, is that the microscope and telescope, taken together, may make you more confused than you already are.

If that happens, to steady yourself, I recommend you open any of the standard books on organic chemistry. You'll find that in 1944, had your carcass been cooked down properly, the chemicals in it would have been worth exactly 37 cents. Today, thanks to inflation, everybody is worth a heck of a lot more—72 cents. By 1970, who knows, each of us may be worth as much as a buck.

Reds Are Overshadowed

New York, May 3 (AP)—Radical left-wingers, who once celebrated May Day here as their own particular fete, were overshadowed and almost crowded out of the picture Saturday when New Yorkers celebrated Loyalty Day. Crowds estimated at 100,000 lined 5th avenue for the Veterans of Foreign Wars Loyalty Day parade. Police counted another crowd of 10,000 gathered at Union Square for patriotic speeches and a youngsters' sports festival. The Square, historically the scene of radical soapbox oratory, was turned over to leftist groups at 5:30 p. m. Police counted a crowd of only 2,000, instead of the 15,000 expected by sponsors of the rally.

Pays Record Price

Hollywood, May 3 (AP)—Producer Darryl F. Zanuck says he has paid a record sum—two million dollars—for screen rights to "The Greatest Story Ever Told," the late Fulton Oursler's account of the life of Christ. Twentieth Century-Fox Studios, where Zanuck is production head, announced yesterday that the cumulative price was agreed upon in conferences between Zanuck and executors of Oursler's estate. Oursler's book is reported to have sold more than 3,300,000 copies in the United States. It has been translated into 12 languages. Production of the picture is scheduled to start next year.

Cashier Foils Holdup

New York, May 3 (AP)—John Curls, cashier in the change booth of the IRT elevated station at 238th street and White Plains road station reported an unidentified Negro, his hand held menacingly in his pocket, told Curls: "Give me everything you got." Curls looked at the door of a nearby men's rooms and replied: "There's a detective in there." The would-be robber fled. The quick-thinking cashier later told police there had been no detective in the room.

New York, May 3 (AP)—A threatened strike against the Western Electric Co., has been postponed until further notice and 17,000 affected employes in 44 states and the District of Columbia will continue temporarily to work without a contract, a CIO union spokesman says. A strike had been threatened for last midnight as negotiations failed to produce a company-union agreement. The workers involved are the installers of heavy telephone equipment for Western Electric, manufacturing branch of the Bell Telephone System.

Bontecou May Quit As Dutchess Boss; Protests New Law

New York, May 3 (AP)—Frederic H. Bontecou, sportsman and veteran chairman of the Dutchess County Republican Committee, was reported today to have said he may resign his party post in protest against a new law which bans politicians from racing horses in the state.

The New York Herald Tribune said Bontecou made the statement yesterday when reached at Rally Farms, a 3,000-acre estate near Millbrook, N. Y., where he raises horses and Black Angus cattle.

The Herald Tribune added:

"It was also learned that John Hay (Jock) Whitney, co-owner of the Greentree stable and new chairman of the state party's United Republican Finance Committee, may be forced to give up his fund-raising position under the terms of the law. It is not likely that he would surrender his racing interests...."

Bontecou was quoted as saying the new law was passed without proper consideration in the closing rush of the legislative session.

"I resent the stigma the law placed upon chairmen of political organizations," said Bontecou, GOP chairman in Dutchess county since 1931.

'Position of Racketeers'

"It puts us in the position of racketeers and criminals. It also blackens the sport of thoroughbred racing, which has not been involved in any scandal in this state."

The new law grew out of last year's harness race tracks scandals, in which public office holders, politicians, criminals and labor racketeers were revealed to be interested in harness tracks. At Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's request, the Legislature passed more stringent regulations of racing.

The legislation, in part, banned public or party officials from owning stock in racetracks, working for tracks, or holding licenses to own race horses in the state. Although thoroughbred racing on the flat tracks—Belmont, Jamaica, Aqueduct and Saratoga—was not involved in the trotting scandals, it was included in this new prohibition.

Worth More, and Buyers are Proving it!

FORD is America's best seller!

National new car registration figures* for a seven-month period show Ford out front by thousands!

*SOURCE: R. L. Polk & Company. Registrations for period September through March, the latest month for which figures are available.

DURING THE SEVEN-MONTH PERIOD ending with March—the latest seven-month period in which national registration figures are available—Ford outsold its nearest competitor by thousands.

The main reason why Ford is so definitely the buyer's choice is simply that:

Ford is, without doubt, the "Worth More" car—America's best buy on a dollar-for-dollar basis!

Check the 1954 Ford, feature for feature, part for part, and you'll quickly see why!

Take engines—Ford is the only car in its field which offers a 130-horsepower Y-block V-8 engine—the most significant engine advance since the original Ford V-8. Further, Ford is the only car in its field to offer the 115-horsepower I-block Six—a wholly new concept of six-cylinder design.

These engines are the most modern in the entire industry! Both have rigid, extra-deep cylinder blocks for smooth, quiet running. Both have low-friction design, free-turning overhead valves and high-turbulence combustion chambers.

Take comfort—Here again Ford, and Ford alone, has the qualities you'd expect in the higher-priced cars. For example, Ford is the only car in its field with Ball-Joint Front Suspension, for easier riding and handling.

Beauty, too, is a point where Ford rates with cars in the "higher brackets." A glance will show you why each one of Ford's 28 models is truly "at home" wherever it travels . . . wherever it is parked.

Take power assists—Driver aids are offered as optional extras in other cars in the low-priced field, it is true. But, only those in the finest cars can be compared with those you'll find in Ford.

For example—Fordomatic Drive is the only automatic drive in its field that combines an automatic intermediate gear with a torque converter. Power-Lift Windows offer push-button control of all four side windows. Master-Guide Power Steering cuts in only when you need it, leaving natural steering feel on the straightaway. Ford's 4-Way Power Front Seat goes up-or-down as well as forward-or-back at the touch of separate controls. And Swift Sure Power Brakes are just as easy to operate as regular brakes, should power ever fail.

Resale Value? It is a matter of statistical record that Ford cars return more of their original cost when sold than any other competitive make.

As for performance. Ford's advantage here is best understood by personal experience. Your Ford Dealer will gladly make a '54 Ford available for a personal Test Drive . . . and we believe one Test Drive will convince you that Ford . . . STARS AND STAGNANT WATER

Up at my place in Mt. Kisco, 've got a couple of gadgets which ome in mighty handy whenever get confused. Which is practically every hour on the hour.

One of these gadgets is a Breaker-Downer, a device guaranteed to shrink a swelled head. t is called a telescope.

The second gadget is a Builder-Upper, an instrument which vill make the average person feel hundred feet tall. It is known as a miscroscope.

Here's how I use these dingises . . .

Whenever I get to thinking I'm quite a chunk of something, I set up the telescope on my back porch and take a peek into the wild black yonder. Then, to check on exactly how small I am by comparison with what I see in my telescope, I thumb through a book by one or another of the younger astronomers. At the moment, it's "The Nature of the Universe" by Fred Hoyle of Oxford University.

For instance, this book tells me that if I were to build a scale model of the visible universe and place a marble on my desk to represent the earth, the sun, about the size of a basketball, would be 200 yards away. However, the nearest star, Alpha Centuri, would be somewhere south of Singapore—11,000 miles from the marble on my desk.

This star, to take it a step further, would be practically on top of me as compared with most other stars. For example, the constellation called Andromeda would be two-and-a-half billion miles away from my marble.

And, mind you, I'm only talking about our own cozy little galaxy, the Milky Way. The Milky Way, according to Hoyle, is only one of millions of galaxies which powder-puff the night sky I see through my telescope.

The crusher, according to astronomers, is that we will never know how far our universe extends, if, indeed, there is an end to it. The most distant galaxies are skidoodling away from us at a speed approaching the speed of light—186,000 miles a second—and if there are galaxies further out in space, they are probably going faster than the speed of light, and consequently their rays will never reach any telescope on earth.

So, you can see why, after half an hour of playing celestial Peeping Tom, this fat head of mine shrinks down to normal proportions—billard-ball size . . .

Now for the Builder-Upper—the microscope.

As good a way as any to start using this gadget is to take a smear of water from the old millpond and inspect the critters in it. You'll see squirming blobs of jelly called amoebas; slipper-shaped animals called Paramecium; microscopic fleas which, in turn, have fleas, and other Protozoa in the shape of bells, stars, trumpets and globes. In fact, every quart of warm sea water contains a whole lilliputian empire of whatchamacallits — 4,000,000 of them—more than the population of Chicago. And, as you'll soon discover, these bantam bugs live the full life, eating, fighting, multiplying, loafing and occasionally killing each other, very much like the people of Chicago.

How can this pint-size panorama prop up a droopy ego? Well, for one thing, it always make a little fellow feel good when he sees something littler. (I am speaking from experience. I never miss a Mickey Rooney picture.)

Actually, though, even the the world under the microscope is gigantic compared to the atoms and molecules which our finest electron microscopes can't make out. A billion molecules would fit comfortably on the head of a pin and, if you think that's small, each molecule is made up of atoms which, in turn, are composed of electrons spinning around a nucleus at up to 50,000 miles a second.

In other words, dear reader, a good second hand microscope is the Rose Jim-Dandy System for building yourself up after somebody has laid you out flat. The thing you've got to watch out for, I find, is that the microscope and telescope, taken together, may make you more confused than you already are.

If that happens, to steady yourself, I recommend you open any of the standard books on organic chemistry. You'll find that in 1944, had your carcass been cooked down properly, the chemicals in it would have been worth exactly 37 cents. Today, thanks to inflation, everybody is worth a heck of a lot more—72 cents. By 1970, who knows, each of us may be worth as much as a buck.

Would Return Body

New York, May 3 (AP)—An attorney said last night tentative plans have been made to bring the body of wealthy Thomas Fortune Ryan II back to Poughkeepsie from California for burial in the family plot. Joseph W. Drake, of Rye, Ryan's New York attorney, said the present plan is for Ryan's burial in the plot at St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Church at Poughkeepsie. Ryan, 53-year-old grandson of the noted mining and railroad financier of the same name, died Friday at his home at La Jolla, Calif., where he had been living for several years. He previously had a home at Greenwich, Conn.

Think It Through

By EDWARD F. HUTTON

Strange how that old tramp, "Supply and Demand" comes in the back door every time we drive him from the front. "Do it yourself" proves he never sleeps. A big new industry has sprung up, supplying the tools and instruction books to this zooming home market.

Mr. Hutton

How come? There was Demand. But Supply priced itself out of reach; and grew sour with loafing, featherbedding, short hours and monopolistic building codes.

The amateurs said: "To heck with you. Lay your own 400 bricks and don't strain yourself. We'll furnish our own Supply and work for ourselves at our price."

So Supply and Demand shook hands again as they always do. No exceptions. Folks who think they can keep Supply and Demand locked up with laws and codes, while they milk John Q. P. have a lesson to learn.

For twenty years the public has been milked. But science, invention and technology are causing the "Dealers'" heads to roll. New Ideas, inventions and substitutes are flooding the market — making the keys to turn the prison locks.

Big Unions, Big Capital, Big Government, watch your step. The people vote every day with their dimes and dollars; and if you don't play fair, they'll vote you out of office and jobs, and "do it themselves."

Church Music Conference

A church music conference for organists, choir directors, ministers and others interested in church music will be held May 15 beginning at 9 a. m., at Drew University, Madison, N. J. Alfred B. Haas, associate professor of practical theology at Drew, will open the program at 10 a. m., with an interpretation of the church hymnal and a demonstration of its uses as a source book for a choir. A choral workshop is scheduled at 11 a. m. by Lester W. Berenbroick and Dika Newlin and will include a demonstration of rehearsal techniques with a chorus selected from the conference audience. Dr. Berenbroick is organist, choral director and instructor in church music at Drew, also organist and choir director at the West End Presbyterian Church in New York. Dr. Newlin is associate professor of music at Drew.

To Address Meeting

The Rev. Lynn Harold Hough, former dean of Drew Theological Seminary, will address the annual meeting of the Historical Society of the New York Conference of the Methodist Church May 6 at 6 p. m., at a dinner meeting at the Fort Washington Collegiate Church, Fort Washington avenue at 181st street, New York. His subject will be Remembering Thomas Coke. Coke was presbyter of the Church of England and superintendent of the Methodist Episcopal Church in America sent by John Wesley in 1784 to ordain Francis Asbury. The Rev. C. W. Christman, Jr., of Peekskill is president of the association and Morton C. Lindsey of Montrose is in charge of dinner reservations.

Official Toll Fixed

Athens, Greece, May 3 (AP)—The Greek government has fixed the official toll from last Friday's earthquakes in central Greece at 24 killed and 137 injured. Damage is estimated at 10 million dollars.

Local Marine at Inspection

Two Aboard Midway

Joseph P. Cardinale, aviation machinist's mate third class, USN, son of Mrs. F. K. Cardinale, Shokan, and Stephen R. Jennison, boatswain's mate first class, USN, son of Mrs. Ernest Jennison, and husband of Mrs. Rosalyn Jennison, all of Milton, are serving aboard the attack aircraft carrier Midway in the Mediterranean area. The Midway, a unit of the Sixth Fleet, is the flagship of the Commander of Carrier Division Four. She has participated in two combined exercises with NATO allies Greece and Turkey since her arrival in January.

Completes Training

Pvt. Lavoid Coddington, Jr., Headquarters Company 3rd Battalion, 503rd Airborn Infantry Regiment of the 11th Airborn Division and son of Mr. and Mrs. Lavoid Coddington of Stone Ridge, New York has successfully completed the Basic Airborne School at Fort Campbell. After three weeks of intense training and five parachute jumps, Pvt. Coddington will now be given the full status of a qualified parachutist. Pvt. Coddington is married to Dolores Hoffman Coddington of Stone Ridge. Prior to entering the service, he was employed by the Channel Master Corporation of Ellenville.

To Join Maneuver

The 44th Infantry Division, Fort Lewis, Wash., and supporting units from all over the U. S. will engage in a full-scale training maneuver, Exercise Hill Top, at Yakima, Wash., firing center the last three weeks in May, and two area men are scheduled to take part. They are Pvt. Lawrence J. Machione, Jr., 20, whose parents live in Glasco, and Pvt. Cpl. Peter F. Tiano, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michale Tiano, Route 1, Kingston.

As Pegler Sees It

tive committee" included G. Barry Bingham, Birkhead, Russell Davenport, George Fielding Eliot, Newbold Morris and Telford Taylor, the synthetic general who won his stars prosecuting second-string Germans at Nurnberg in cooperation with the Russian partners-in-crime of those same defendants. They also included Clark M. Eichelberger, who put out the A.P. story warning the American people that rich "southwestern" citizens were using their wealth to elect nationalist Americans and thus to promote race-hatred. And, perhaps most important of all, they included Raymond S. Fanning, not further identified, whose interesting background will be developed in these dispatches in due time.

And what were the contributions of this "Committee on National Affairs?" By contrast with the modest total expenditures of Pat McCarran in the 1944 campaign (only $2,510 beyond the lump sum from the National Committee, under Roosevelt), the "Committee on National Affairs" hosed $5,000 into West Virginia to elect Mat Neely and remove Chapman Revercomb, the author on an anti-Communist immigration bill, plus $4,000 to the West Virginia State Democratic Committee. And, although Goldsmith claims to be a Republican this Goldsmith outfit in 1948 gave $1,500 to Estes Kefauver, Democrat, against Carroll Reese, Republican in Tennessee; $1,000 to Paul Douglas, Democrat against Curley Brooks, Republican, in Illinois; and $600 to James E. Murray, New Deal, left-wing Democrat, against Tom J. Davis, Republican, in Montana.

In spite of all this, President Eisenhower autographed a mysterious dream-book to the fine citizenship of this plotter in the Waldorf Tower; two of his brothers, Arthur and Milton, held secret consultations with Goldsmith at the Tower after the 1952 campaign; and Arthur Eisenhower, on a trip to Nevada, took special occasion to blast Senator Joe McCarthy for his work in rousting traitors out of the government.

Something funny goes on here.

Dimes Grow Thin

San Francisco (AP)—Alert city officials nipped a "flattened dime" racket by a few municipal bus drivers. Officials said flattened dimes registered as pennies when an operator dropped them into the cash box while making change for riders, giving the operator a 9 cent "profit." The company soon stopped the thievery.

First law school in the United States was established by Tapping Reeve, a lawyer from Litchfield, Conn., in 1784.

Yorkville Man Slain

New York, May 3 (AP)—The owner of a Yorkville delicatessen was shot to death early today during a $65 holdup. Dead of a bullet wound near the heart was Alfred Diedrich, 49, of Bellerose Manor, Queens, the father of 14-year-old twin sons. His wife, Emily, 45, told police she was in a rear room when the shooting occurred. It was preceded, she said, by what sounded like scuffling. She rushed into the storeroom and found her husband's body slumped against a wall. She looked into the front of the store in time to see four men disappear.

Police Ketchup

Springfield, Mo. (AP)—Sheepishly, the teen-age youngster wiped the ketchup off his arm and the police let him and his companion off with a warning. The youngster had daubed the ketchup on his arm and then hidden in an automobile trunk with the gory arm dangling. His accomplice drove around town. Citizens called the cops.

Retired Man, 72, Takes Own Life

Domenico Canale, 72, retired boardinghouse proprietor, committed suicide by shooting himself in the barn behind his home on the south Ohioville road, town of New Paltz, about 8:30 p. m. Sunday, state police and Coroner Francis J. McCardle reported.

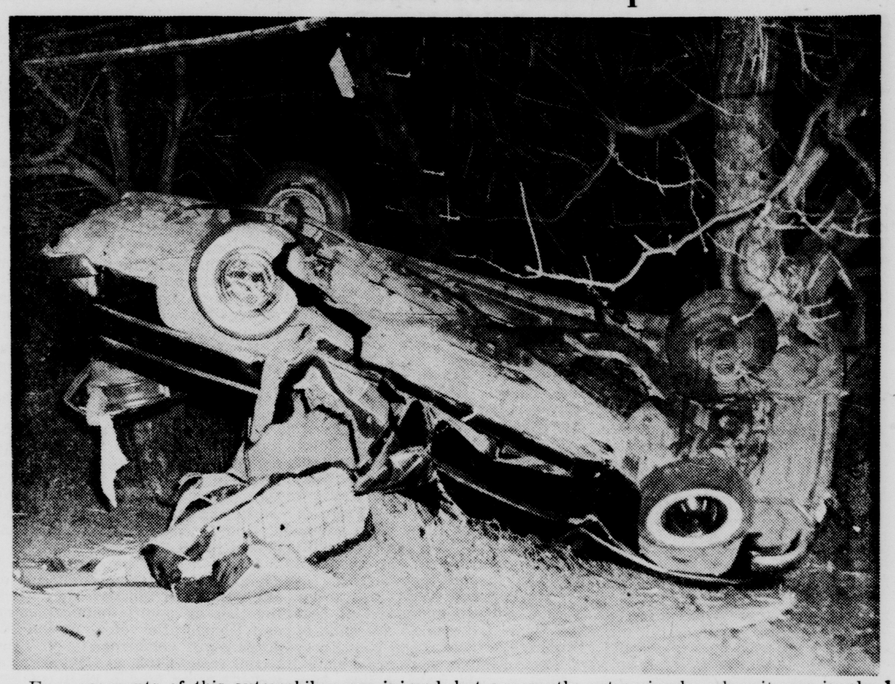
The aged man had been under a doctor's care for a cardiac condition, the authorities said, and left a note written in Italian explaining that he had been suffering for a period of time and decided to take his own life.

Canale apparently wrote the note, then retired to the barn where he shot himself in the head with a .32 calibre pistol, Coroner McCardle said. Death was apparently instantaneous.

The aged man had only been missing about 20 minutes when his body was discovered by his wife, Josephine LoCascio Canale. State police and the coroner were summoned, and a verdict of death by suicide was issued by Coroner McCardle. The body was taken to the Pine Funeral Home in New Paltz.

He was born in Italy, son of the late Philip and Rosalie Viscarvi Canale. He had lived in New Paltz for many years. Surviving is his widow, the former Josephine LoCascio; two brothers, Joseph of Highland and Carmelo of Italy and several nieces and nephews. He was a member of the New Paltz Reformed Church and Masonic Lodge 276 of Garfield, N. J. Funeral services will be held at the residence at 2 p. m. Wednesday with burial in the Lloyd Cemetery. Masonic services will be held at 8 p. m. Tuesday at the home. Friends may call at the residence from this afternoon until the funeral. Services are under the direction of the Pine Funeral Home.

Four Hurt in This Crackup



Four occupants of this automobile were injured, but apparently not seriously, when it was involved with two other vehicles in a collision on Route 9W at the River Road intersection in Port Ewen shortly before 3 a. m. Saturday, according to a sheriff's office report. One of the injured, Mrs. Willa B. Williams, 24, of 143 North Hamilton street, Poughkeepsie, was admitted to Kingston Hospital, where her condition today was reported as "good." The others, who were treated and released, were listed by the sheriff's office as Jefferson Williams, 24, also of 143 North Hamilton street; Catherine Edmones, 24, of 215 North Hamilton street; and Frank L. Alexander, 27, of Philadelphia, the driver. No one was reported injured in either of the two other automobiles involved. They were driven by Charles Lee Clark, 21, of Poughkeepsie and Roy M. Mayes, 40, of Kingston, sheriff's deputies said. (Anner Photo).

and as was done in Flushing Meadows to build the site of the World's Fair in the late 1930's.

The proposal, however, drew an objection Saturday from Fifth Ward Alderman Samuel J. Perry, who said he is "strictly against the project." He claimed that 300 residents of the ward were opposed to it.

Inspects Project

Perry went with the mayor and other city officials to inspect a land fill project in Newburgh, and he said he felt one would not be satisfactory in the Kingston Point area because of the swamp condition and the tides. He felt also that the project would require the steady use of trucks and a bulldozer.

Mayor Stang, in his Friday announcement, noted that many cities are now using the method, and he indicated the local project would reclaim about 23 acres on the east side of North street and on the south side of Delaware avenue.

The mayor stressed that the present Wilbur avenue dump was no answer to the city's dump problem and that if a land fill project were authorized it would not only solve the dump problem, but would reclaim land that is now useless without having the dump menace as it was formerly known in the city. Refuse would be sealed in daily with sand and dirt, he explained. He considered the system an "economical operation."

Alderman Perry, in his Saturday statement said, James G. Connelly, former corporation counsel, "has been engaged to advise us."

Talk on Navaho, Hopi Indians at Meeting Of Atharhacton Club

Mrs. Frederick E. Hyde, Jr., upon whom the Lafayette baton was recently bestowed, spoke of her work among the Navaho and Hopi Indians, at the annual dinner meeting of Atharhacton Club held at the Nieuw Dorp, Wednesday evening.

Among the facts told about these American Indians, was that the two tribes are bad brothers. The Hopi are the best dry farmers, meaning that even in a drouth they can produce green food, Mrs. Hyde played Indian records, showed many photographs and pottery as well as rugs and paintings.

Mrs. Charles Arnold, chairman of the dinner committee, introduced the guest speaker at the meeting following the dinner.

The decorations carried out the theme of the year, America's Cultural Heritage. The table was centered with a large golden American eagle, with UN flags, and the American flag, as well as Dutch shoes, tiny plants in Indian pottery ornaments. Negro images and French relics to complete the setting.

Mrs. John Sterley, the new president, conducted the meeting. The committee planning the dinner was composed of Mrs. Arnold, chairman, and Mrs. Hamilton Boyd, Miss Helen Sheldon and Miss Emily Hoysradt.

Shultis School Names Dance Revue Dates For Benefit of Palsy

The Audrey Shultis School of Dancing will present its fourth annual revue at the George Washington School, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 15 and 16.

The revue entitled, Stepping Stars, will feature Kingston's most talented juvenile performers in the art of dancing. The program will include exhibitions of acrobatic, ballet, baton, character, musical comedy, tap, toe and several vocal selections. The orchestra will be under the direction of Jules Tellier.

The entire proceeds will be donated to the Cerebral Palsy Fund for the third consecutive year. The two slogans will again be as follows: Happy feet that dance that others may walk; Little feet dancing with grace that others may walk.

The tickets which are now on sale may be obtained from the pupils or by contacting Mrs. Ralph Shultis.

Miss Barbara Slater, Francis H. Repke Married in New Paltz

Wallkill, May 1—Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Barbara Jean Slater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Slater of New Paltz to Francis Hackett Repke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Repke of Wallkill at St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz. Decorations of Easter lilies and white ribbon provided the setting for the double ring ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. William McManus. Mrs. Eugene Trautwein was the organist while members of the glee club of New Paltz State Teachers College offered vocal selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported lace and tulle over satin. Her illusion veil was caught in a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones, and she carried an old fashioned nosegay of roses and rosebuds.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Peter Helmich of St. Remy, an aunt of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Jeanette DuBois of New Paltz, a cousin and Miss Theresa Fiore of Millbrook. The three wore gowns of nylon net over taffeta with headpieces to match the nosegays of spring flowers they carried.

John Repke of Wallkill, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man while Lawrence Devereaux of Brooklyn, a cousin, and Neil Freer of Poughkeepsie were ushers.

Flower girls were Arlina Mae Helmich of St. Remy and John Hornbeck of New Paltz, both cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Slater wore a dress of blue silk and linen with white trim, and the bridegroom's mother wore a pink and silver embossed cotton. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

About 85 guests attended a reception for the couple at Dixie Farms, Wallkill following the ceremony.

A teacher at Wallkill Central School, the bride was graduated from New Paltz High School and New Paltz State Teachers College.

Mr. Repke was discharged this month from the air force, after serving four years. He is a graduate of Wallkill Central School and attended Syracuse University and the University of Munich in Germany.

Juniors Will Show Original Slides Of Bible Story

Forsyth Park was transformed into the "Road from Jerusalem to Jericho" last week, as a group of junior high youngsters of the Old Dutch Church posed in Palestinian costumes before a 35-mm. slide camera.

The young actors had made a list of various Bible stories and parables related to their familiar Bible study, under the supervision of Miss Patricia Moore. Their choice for presentation through slides was the parable of the Good Samaritan. George Shivery donated equipment for the film, and Walter Tremper was photographic director.

The presentation of the colored slides accompanied by a narration written by the young people will be Sunday, May 16, at 4 p. m., the regular meeting of the group.

Those participating in the project directed by Penny Johnson, Bill Jameson and Rusty Peterson, were: Diana Moon, Sara Hill, Carol Haulenbeek, Judy Townsend, Ann Ewing, Janet Kearcher, Shirley Morrett, Jean Wolf, Andy Lord, and Mrs. Donald Jameson.

Democratic Women Announce Political Education Day

Final program plans for the Ulster County Day of Political Education for Democratic women were made at a recent planning meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

First of its kind in this area, the day will include speeches, a panel discussion, luncheon and a social hour.

Main speakers at the event, which will be held in Kingston, Saturday, May 15, will discuss the women's role in a gubernatorial year and significant state issues.

William A. Kelly, secretary of the Ulster County Board of Elections, will open the event at 11:30 a. m. with an explanation of voting and registration requirements. He will answer questions about election procedures.

A panel discussion of how workers at all levels of the party organization cooperate in a major election year will follow the luncheon.

Moderated by Mrs. Marion K. Sanders, of Nyack, panel members will discuss their individual roles in the party organization. Mrs. Sanders is an active party worker in Orange county and was a Democratic congressional candidate in 1952.

John J. Batten and Mrs. Thomas J. Shay, Jr., both of Highland, will tell how they work together as county committeeman and Democratic voter. Arthur M. Jorgensen, chairman of the Democratic Club of New Paltz, will describe how a club cooperates with party officials in the community.

Mrs. Marie A. Koenig, state committeewoman, and Thomas J. Plunket, county committee chairman, both of Kingston, will discuss the duties connected with their positions and how they relate to the state, county and local party set-up.

Miss Angela R. Parisi, vice chairman of the Democratic state committee, will describe the work of the state committee and how it depends upon the party workers at all of these levels.

The event will be co-sponsored by the Ulster county Democratic committee and a committee of woman representatives from various sections of the county. Mrs. Harriet Allen Kerr of New Paltz is chairman of the Women's group.

The group decided at their meeting Monday to send letters of invitation to every enrolled Democrat woman in the county.

"In addition to Ulster county women, we expect many women from neighboring communities outside the county," Mrs. Kerr said Monday. "All Democratic women will be welcome."

Registration blanks for the affair may be obtained from Mrs. Margaret Morris, registration chairman, 3 North Manheim boulevard, New Paltz.

Representing Kingston at the meeting were: Mrs. Catherine McAndrew, Mrs. Susan Houlihan, Mrs. Elsie Carpenter and Mrs. Edna Plunket.

Others who attended were: the Mmes. Vivian McLean, Lilian Geyer, Edith Van Wagenen, Wallkill; the Mmes. Kingston Residents For Many Years, Will Move to Delaware

Mr. and Mrs. M. Donald Lane of 36 Mountain View avenue are leaving today to make their home in Wilmington, Del., after being residents of Kingston for more than 28 years. Mr. Lane was honored at a party given by his co-workers at Hercules Powder Company, at the Capri Restaurant April 24.

Mr. Lane is retiring from his position at Hercules after 28 years of association with the plant in Port Ewen.

Immediate plans include a trip to California for several weeks prior to moving into the Monroe Park apartments in Wilmington. In talking to a reporter, Mrs. Lane remarked that they both hate to leave Kingston where they have made so many friends. She also remarked that Kingston has a fine group of merchants, and that she has enjoyed dealings with them over the years.

Mr. Lane has been an active member of the board of directors of the Ulster County Chapter of American Red Cross; the board of education; and the board of the Old Dutch Church. He sang his "farewell concert" with the Mendelssohn Club Friday night, after having been a member of the choral group for 28 years.

Mrs. Lane has been on the board of the YWCA, the Children's Home, the Ulster County Chapter of American Red Cross and the Home for the Aged. She is also a member of the Old Dutch Church.

The Lanes have two sons, David and M. Donald Lane, Jr. David and his wife are now in Concord, Mass., and M. Donald Lane, Jr. and Mrs. Lane are living in Chatham, N. J.

Many luncheon and dinner parties were given the Lanes by their many friends in the community, who wish them well in their new home.

Metropolitan Club Plans Flower Festival And Fashion Show

Plans for the second annual Flower Festival Fashion Show, date to be announced, were discussed at the recent meeting of the Metropolitan Recreation Organization.

Mrs. Carol Jackson was elected as the new secretary during the business meeting, and the Misses Margaret Burhans and Joyce Barringer were elected captains of the two softball teams that are now being organized.

Miss June Palen was appointed chairman of the new refreshment committee that was appointed for the next two months. Those assisting her will be the Misses Jacqueline Lake, Dottie Pisano, and Edna Fiske.

Refreshments were served directly following the business meeting.

Musical Americana Gave Portrayal in Song And Dance of Country's Musical Heritage

A glorious part of America came to life at Kingston High School Saturday night as the Mary Hunter ensemble of singers and dancers brought Musical Americana to the members of Community Concerts Association. Hardly does anyone realize the fabulous wealth of material available in our folk music and history until recalled to mind in such a delightful manner.

The ensemble gave a comprehensive view of Americana via music, dance and a goodly bit of drama starting with the prim and precise Revolutionary Days, progressing through the trials of the pioneers, the flamboyancy of the Gold Camp night life, the romantic antics involved so closely with the new inventions of automobile, telephone, phonograph, nickelodeon; to those inevitable blues.

The choreography was especially fine and the integration of songs and dances an unique whole, at times bordering a musical comedy production but always with the finest taste and refreshing entertainment. Accompaniment was provided by piano, violin, and guitars as well as sung choruses. In fact several exceptional solo voices were heard in some of the numbers as well as an excellent "gay ninetics" quartet.

Familiar folk songs as well as music composed for the production were used. Among those well known were Shenandoah, Across the Wide Missouri, Stars in the Summer Night.

Costuming Colorful

Costuming for each of the numbers was colorful and appropriate and lighting effects with simple props made the wharf for the sailor's hornpipe in the Yankee Clipper scene, the Saturday night barn dance at the farm, the Boston Singing school, and the stories of the plainsmen. Other numbers were done most cleverly in front of the curtain so that no time was lost.

Probably the one criticism might be that some of the numbers could be cut a bit, although in thinking over the scope of material this would be difficult.

However, the program is so completely different and refreshing for concert audiences that it was an evening of pure joy and perfect for springtime refreshment.

Added notes by a concert-goer: Photographer and representative George Eells from Look Magazine spent hours at KHS with Musical Americana troup before performance Saturday, getting material for a proposed picture-story of Mary Hunter's production. . . . They traveled with group from Shamokin, Pa., Friday snapping shots en route in company bus, rehearsals, etc. . . . Kingston might be featured prominently in article. Photographer executed ballet steps like a professional to show dancers effect he wanted. . . . Musical Americana jaunt began Jan. 4 in Malverne, L. I., and moved to the west coast, then south before coming east again. . . . the company finished its extremely successful tour Sunday in Norwalk, Conn. . . . This fine group of young professionals provided a thoroughly entertaining evening with the extremely well done modern choreography and the blend of acting, singing and dancing . . . the American heritage, a rich one in music and dance alike, caused some "humming along" by members of the audience to well-known tunes. . . . Comments heard . . . this program "could stand repeating" in concert plans for another season . . . would also be a perfect program to send on a tour abroad. . . . Searched program for name of person responsible for remarkable lighting effects. . . . Closing concert was a high point in series. . . . Drive for next year's memberships begin today. (M.D.)

Talk on Navaho, Hopi Indians at Meeting Of Atharhacton Club

Mrs. Frederick E. Hyde, Jr., upon whom the Lafayette baton was recently bestowed, spoke of her work among the Navaho and Hopi Indians, at the annual dinner meeting of Atharhacton Club held at the Nieuw Dorp, Wednesday evening.

Among the facts told about these American Indians, was that the two tribes are bad brothers. The Hopi are the best dry farmers, meaning that even in a drouth they can produce green food, Mrs. Hyde played Indian records, showed many photographs and pottery as well as rugs and paintings.

Mrs. Charles Arnold, chairman of the dinner committee, introduced the guest speaker at the meeting following the dinner.

The decorations carried out the theme of the year, America's Cultural Heritage. The table was centered with a large golden American eagle, with UN flags, and the American flag, as well as Dutch shoes, tiny plants in Indian pottery ornaments, Negro images and French relics to complete the setting.

Mrs. John Sterley, the new president, conducted the meeting. The committee planning the dinner was composed of Mrs. Arnold, chairman, and Mrs. Hamilton Boyd, Miss Helen Sheldon and Miss Emily Hoysradt.

Shultis School Names Dance Revue Dates For Benefit of Palsy

The Audrey Shultis School of Dancing will present its fourth annual revue at the George Washington School, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, June 15 and 16.

The revue entitled, Stepping Stars, will feature Kingston's most talented juvenile performers in the art of dancing. The program will include exhibitions of acrobatic, ballet, baton, character, musical comedy, tap, toe and several vocal selections. The orchestra will be under the direction of Jules Tellier.

The entire proceeds will be donated to the Cerebral Palsy Fund for the third consecutive year. The two slogans will again be as follows: Happy feet that dance that others may walk; Little feet dancing with grace that others may walk.

The tickets which are now on sale may be obtained from the pupils or by contacting Mrs. Ralph Shultis.

Miss Barbara Slater, Francis H. Repke Married in New Paltz

Wallkill, May 1—Announcement is made of the marriage of Miss Barbara Jean Slater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Slater of New Paltz to Francis Hackett Repke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Repke of Wallkill at St. Joseph's Church, New Paltz. Decorations of Easter lilies and white ribbon provided the setting for the double ring ceremony, which was performed by the Rev. William McManus. Mrs. Eugene Trautwein was the organist while members of the glee club of New Paltz State Teachers College offered vocal selections.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported lace and tulle over satin. Her illusion veil was caught in a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones, and she carried an old fashioned nosegay of roses and rosebuds.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Peter Helmich of St. Remy, an aunt of the bride. Bridesmaids were Miss Jeanette DuBois of New Paltz, a cousin and Miss Theresa Fiore of Millbrook. The three wore gowns of nylon net over taffeta with headpieces to match the nosegays of spring flowers they carried.

John Repke of Wallkill, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man while Lawrence Devereaux of Brooklyn, a cousin, and Neil Freer of Poughkeepsie were ushers.

Flower girls were Arlina Mae Helmich of St. Remy and John Hornbeck of New Paltz, both cousins of the bride.

Mrs. Slater wore a dress of blue silk and linen with white trim, and the bridegroom's mother wore a pink and silver embossed cotton. Both wore corsages of pink carnations.

About 85 guests attended a reception for the couple at Dixie Farms, Wallkill following the ceremony.

A teacher at Wallkill Central School, the bride was graduated from New Paltz High School and New Paltz State Teachers College.

Mr. Repke was discharged this month from the air force, after serving four years. He is a graduate of Wallkill Central School and attended Syracuse University and the University of Munich in Germany.

Juniors Will Show Original Slides Of Bible Story

Forsyth Park was transformed into the "Road from Jerusalem to Jericho" last week, as a group of junior high youngsters of the Old Dutch Church posed in Palestinian costumes before a 35-mm. slide camera.

The young actors had made a list of various Bible stories and parables related to their familiar Bible study, under the supervision of Miss Patricia Moore. Their choice for presentation through slides was the parable of the Good Samaritan. George Shivery donated equipment for the film, and Walter Tremper was photographic director.

The presentation of the colored slides accompanied by a narration written by the young people will be Sunday, May 16, at 4 p. m., the regular meeting of the group.

Democratic Women Announce Political Education Day

Final program plans for the Ulster County Day of Political Education for Democratic women were made at a recent planning meeting at the Governor Clinton Hotel.

First of its kind in this area, the day will include speeches, a panel discussion, luncheon and a social hour.

Main speakers at the event, which will be held in Kingston, Saturday, May 15, will discuss the women's role in a gubernatorial year and significant state issues.

William A. Kelly, secretary of the Ulster County Board of Elections, will open the event at 11:30 a. m. with an explanation of voting and registration requirements. He will answer questions about election procedures.

A panel discussion of how workers at all levels of the party organization cooperate in a major election year will follow the luncheon.

Moderated by Mrs. Marion K. Sanders, of Nyack, panel members will discuss their individual roles in the party organization. Mrs. Sanders is an active party worker in Orange county and was a Democratic congressional candidate in 1952.

John J. Batten and Mrs. Thomas J. Shay, Jr., both of Highland, will tell how they work together as county committeeman and Democratic voter. Arthur M. Jorgensen, chairman of the Democratic Club of New Paltz, will describe how a club cooperates with party officials in the community.

Mrs. Marie A. Koenig, state committeewoman, and Thomas J. Plunket, county committee chairman, both of Kingston, will discuss the duties connected with their positions and how they relate to the state, county and local party set-up.

Miss Angela R. Parisi, vice chairman of the Democratic state committee, will describe the work of the state committee and how it depends upon the party workers at all of these levels.

The event will be co-sponsored by the Ulster county Democratic committee and a committee of woman representatives from various sections of the county. Mrs. Harriet Allen Kerr of New Paltz is chairman of the Women's group.

The group decided at their meeting Monday to send letters of invitation to every enrolled Democrat woman in the county.

"In addition to Ulster county women, we expect many women from neighboring communities outside the county," Mrs. Kerr said Monday. "All Democratic women will be welcome."

Registration blanks for the affair may be obtained from Mrs. Margaret Morris, registration chairman, 3 North Manheim boulevard, New Paltz.

Representing Kingston at the meeting were: Mrs. Catherine McAndrew, Mrs. Susan Houlihan, Mrs. Elsie Carpenter and Mrs. Edna Plunket.

Others who attended were: the Mmes. Vivian McLean, Lilian Geyer, Edith Van Wagenen, Wallkill; the Mmes. Margaret Morris, Harriett Kerr, Bernice Stork and Shirley Swain, New Paltz; Mrs. Rosalind D'Albis, Woodstock; Mrs. Ruth Marshall, Mrs. Mary Dennin, Accord; also Miss Lilian Courter, Modena; Mrs. Lorania Haver, Ashokan; Mrs. Catherine Carlson, Shokan; Mrs. Church, Ellenville; and Mrs. Irma Coty, Napanoch.

Metropolitan Club Plans Flower Festival And Fashion Show

Plans for the second annual Flower Festival Fashion Show, date to be announced, were discussed at the recent meeting of the Metropolitan Recreation Organization.

Mrs. Carol Jackson was elected as the new secretary during the business meeting, and the Misses Margaret Burhans and Joyce Barringer were elected captains of the two softball teams that are now being organized.

Miss June Palen was appointed chairman of the new refreshment committee that was appointed for the next two months. Those assisting her will be the Misses Jacqueline Lake, Dottie Pisano, and Edna Fiske.

Refreshments were served directly following the business meeting.

A glorious part of America came to life at Kingston High School Saturday night as the Mary Hunter ensemble of singers and dancers brought Musical Americana to the members of Community Concerts Association. Hardly does anyone realize the fabulous wealth of material available in our folk music and history until recalled to mind in such a delightful manner.

The ensemble gave a comprehensive view of Americana via music, dance and a goodly bit of drama starting with the prim and precise Revolutionary Days, progressing through the trials of the pioneers, the flamboyancy of the Gold Camp night life, the romantic antics involved so closely with the new inventions of automobile, telephone, phonograph, nickelodeon; to those inevitable blues.

The choreography was especially fine and the integration of songs and dances an unique whole, at times bordering a musical comedy production but always with the finest taste and refreshing entertainment. Accompaniment was provided by piano, violin, and guitars as well as sung choruses. In fact several exceptional solo voices were heard in some of the numbers as well as an excellent "gay nineties" quartet.

Familiar folk songs as well as music composed for the production were used. Among those well known were Shenandoah, Across the Wide Missouri, Stars in the Summer Night.

Costuming Colorful

Costuming for each of the numbers was colorful and appropriate and lighting effects with simple props made the wharf for the sailor's hornpipe in the Yankee Clipper scene, the Saturday night barn dance at the farm, the Boston Singing school, and the stories of the plainsmen. Other numbers were done most cleverly in front of the curtain so that no time was lost.

Probably the one criticism might be that some of the numbers could be cut a bit, although in thinking over the scope of material this would be difficult.

However, the program is so completely different and refreshing for concert audiences that it was an evening of pure joy and perfect for springtime refreshment.

Added notes by a concert-goer: Photographer and representative George Eells from Look Magazine spent hours at KHS with Musical Americana troup before performance Saturday, getting material for a proposed picture-story of Mary Hunter's production. . . . They traveled with group from Shamokin, Pa., Friday snapping shots en route in company bus, rehearsals, etc. . . . Kingston might be featured prominently in article.

Photographer executed ballet steps like a professional to show dancers effect he wanted. . . . Musical Americana jaunt began Jan. 4 in Malverne, L. I., and moved to the west coast, then south before coming east again. . . . the company finished its extremely successful tour Sunday in Norwalk, Conn. . . . This fine group of young professionals provided a thoroughly entertaining evening with the extremely well done modern choreography and the blend of acting, singing and dancing . . . the American heritage, a rich one in music and dance alike, caused some "humming along" by members of the audience to well-known tunes. . . . Comments heard . . . this program "could stand repeating" in concert plans for another season . . . would also be a perfect program to send on a tour abroad. . . . Searched program for name of person responsible for remarkable lighting effects. . . . Closing concert was a high point in series. . . . Drive for next year's memberships begin today. (M.D.)

Spring Musicale Will Be Given in Highland; Soloists and Glee Club

A Spring Musicale under the joint sponsorship of Highland Chapter No. 385 OES and Adonai Lodge 718 F & AM will be presented at Masonic Temple, Highland, Wednesday, at 8 p. m.

A two-hour program has been arranged consisting of selections by violinist Alison Swords, accompanied by Laura Buck Seitz; flutist Elmer Reade, accompanied by Mrs. William Nevel, and the Highland Glee Club, accompanied by Mrs. Kirsten Scott and directed by Mrs. June Thorn.

Mrs. Swords has played with the Tri-City Symphony Orchestra of Davenport, Iowa, and the Denver Symphony Orchestra, of Denver, Colorado, and has presented recitals in numerous cities in Iowa, Colorado and New York. At present Mrs. Swords is a member of the Dutchess County Symphony Orchestra.

Mrs. Seitz has studied the piano under the late Aurelio Giorni, at the Northwestern University School of Music, at the Goodman Theatre School of Drama, and in Berlin. For some time she was percussion accompanist for Erika Thimey.

Mr. Reade has participated in many concerts throughout the United States and at present is director of musical activities at Stewart Air Base, Orange County, New York. His accompanist, Mrs. Nevel, is a graduate of the Barker College of Music and is the accompanist for the Wallkill Valley Community Chorus.

The Highland Glee Club, accompanied by Mrs. Kirsten Scott, and directed by Mrs. June Thorn, has presented numerous concerts in neighboring cities, among which are Newburgh, Kingston and Poughkeepsie.

The selections to be played by Mrs. Swords and Mr. Reade have not been announced. The program of the Glee Club is as follows: Brothers Sing On, Greig; Grant Us to Do With Zeal, Bach; Wher'er You Walk, Handel; Were You There, Negro Spiritual, Arr. Burleigh; The Holy City, Weatherly-Adams; Ride The Chariot, Negro Spiritual, Arr. Smith; I Believe, Drake, Graham, Shirl, Stillman; In My Arms, Loesser-Grouya; Nothing Like A Dame, Rodgers-Hammerstein.

The sponsors hope to make the presentation of a concert an annual affair, and to bring as many artists as possible to this area.

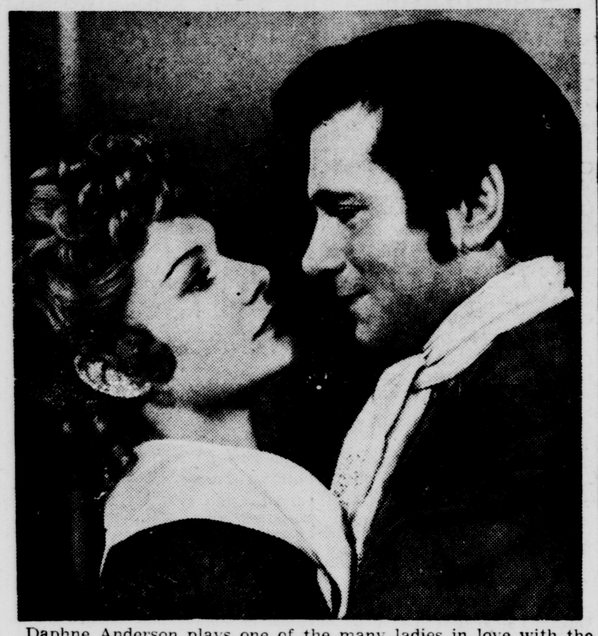
Beggar's Opera Sponsored by Kings Chorus



Daphne Anderson plays one of the many ladies in love with the daring Captain Macheath, played by Laurence Olivier in, The Beggar's Opera. The Warner Bros. Technicolor version of John Gay's all-time favorite will be the next film in the Curtain at 8:40 spring series, at the Kingston Theatre, Wednesday, May 5.

Romance During Reformation Period In England Is Theme of Screenplay

When John Gay wrote his immortal, The Beggar's Opera, it was in the temper of the times that the women were portrayed. It was the gay reformation period in England when romance ruled and many a broken heart was mended quickly at the approach of a new love affair. From the ladies of the court to the bawds of Old Newgate Gaol love was the keynote. It was this spirit of ribaldry that John Gay captured in his play within a play.

Showing one night only, Wednesday, May 5 at the Kingston Theatre in the Curtain at 8:40 spring series, a revitalized version of The Beggar's Opera will be brought to the screen in Technicolor, starring Laurence Olivier. The Kings Chorus, singing group in Kingston directed by Donald R. Romme, is sponsoring this showing, the second unusual motion picture in the Curtain at 8:40 series. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. Warren Simmons, RD No. 3, or Mrs. William Lahl, 108 W. O'Reilly street.

This film is true to the original manuscript. Christopher Fry, celebrated English author, and Denis Cannan, who wrote the screenplay, have written of the loves of Captain Macheath in the style and tradition of 18th century England.

The three women whose hearts and souls are captured by the roguish Macheath are played by Dorothy Tutin, Daphne Anderson, and Yvonne Furneaux.

Reports from London, where the film enjoyed its world premiere during the coronation celebration, said that the three beauties are well suited in face and figure to their roles and their 18th century gowns.

Dorothy Tutin is seen in the role of Polly Peachum, the lovely but somewhat naive daughter of the malicious Mr. Peachum, the man who betrays Macheath for 40 pounds. Lucy is played by Daphne Anderson. She is the daughter of the jailer and she too has been beguiled by the daring highwayman.

Bridal Shower Fetes Miss Shirley Myers

A DANGEROUS BEGINNING

A reader tells me: "I am the mother of a 14-year-old daughter She belongs to a group off about 12 boys and girls all around the same age. They have been having wonderful times together at parties at each other's houses. These parties have always been chaperoned. That is, one of the parents is always at home when the young people are there. Two new boys have recently joined the group and when the parties have been at their houses, the parents went out for the evening and turned the house over to them. It is not that I don't trust these boys and girls but I do not think they should be left entirely alone, and I do not approve of my daughter going to these two houses. Most of the other mothers feel as I do. How can we let these new mothers know of our disapproval without seeming stodgy?"

I think you will have to explain that the parties given at the other houses have always been chaperoned, that the children are used to the idea of having someone in the house, and that if they are given complete freedom in these new houses they are going to hate the idea of surveillance when they go to the other houses. I am sure if you explain the situation they will be willing to comply. However, if they don't, as a last resort, all of you other mothers together can put these new houses "out of bounds" to your children.

Paying Bus Fare

Dear Mrs. Post: When a girl meets a man she knows who is waiting for the same bus and he attempts to pay her bus fare, should she let him?

Answer: This casual payment by a man of a woman's fare embarrasses most people. She therefore should have her fare ready in her hand and when he makes a gesture to pay for her, she says quickly, "I have it in my hand." However, if he still insists so that it becomes awkard to refuse, it is usually better to say "thank you" and let it go!

Asked To 'Fill In'

Dear Mrs. Post: If a person is asked to "fill in" at a bridge club does this call for a return invitation on the part of the "filler-in"?

Answer: No. This is because you are really doing the club a favor, rather than receiving one.

The three women whose hearts and souls are captured by the roguish Macheath are played by Dorothy Tutin, Daphne Anderson, and Yvonne Furneaux.

Reports from London, where the film enjoyed its world premiere during the coronation celebration, said that the three beauties are well suited in face and figure to their roles and their 18th century gowns.

Dorothy Tutin is seen in the role of Polly Peachum, the lovely but somewhat naive daughter of the malicious Mr. Peachum, the man who betrays Macheath for 40 pounds. Lucy is played by Daphne Anderson. She is the daughter of the jailer and she too has been beguiled by the daring highwayman.

Good Taste Today

By EMILY POST

(Author of Etiquette, Children Are People, etc.)

A DANGEROUS BEGINNING

A reader tells me: "I am the mother of a 14-year-old daughter She belongs to a group off about 12 boys and girls all around the same age. They have been having wonderful times together at parties at each other's houses. These parties have always been chaperoned. That is, one of the parents is always at home when the young people are there. Two new boys have recently joined the group and when the parties have been at their houses, the parents went out for the evening and turned the house over to them. It is not that I don't trust these boys and girls but I do not think they should be left entirely alone, and I do not approve of my daughter going to these two houses. Most of the other mothers feel as I do. How can we let these new mothers know of our disapproval without seeming stodgy?"

I think you will have to explain that the parties given at the other houses have always been chaperoned, that the children are used to the idea of having someone in the house, and that if they are given complete freedom in these new houses they are going to hate the idea of surveillance when they go to the other houses. I am sure if you explain the situation they will be willing to comply. However, if they don't, as a last resort, all of you other mothers together can put these new houses "out of bounds" to your children.

Paying Bus Fare

Dear Mrs. Post: When a girl meets a man she knows who is waiting for the same bus and he attempts to pay her bus fare, should she let him?

Answer: This casual payment by a man of a woman's fare embarrasses most people. She therefore should have her fare ready in her hand and when he makes a gesture to pay for her, she says quickly, "I have it in my hand." However, if he still insists so that it becomes awkard to refuse, it is usually better to say "thank you" and let it go!

Asked To 'Fill In'

Dear Mrs. Post: If a person is asked to "fill in" at a bridge club does this call for a return invitation on the part of the "filler-in"?

Answer: No. This is because you are really doing the club a favor, rather than receiving one.

From the very beginning of French, over 35 years ago, our success has been based on a desire to please. Our aim has always been to gain new "friends" instead of merely gaining customers. These friendships have lasted through the years - - - and are being carried on from generation to generation. Mothers are proud to tell their daughters that they have found the perfect blend of quality, value, service, courtesy, skill and on-time dependability in French. This is the kind of honest recommendation that could only be given to a truly superior service. Drycleaning that can be depended on to fulfill your every wish and desire. TRY FRENCH AND SEE.

Onteora Central

The P-TA spelling team of the Onteora Central School downed the student team by a score of 33-11 in the first annual spelling bee contest between parents and pupils of the school. Herbert Epstein of Mt. Tremper, past president of the Onteora P-TA, was crowned as champion speller of the contest. Doris Muhlich, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Muhlich of Phoenicia, was awarded a prize as the top speller of the student team. Members of the teams were as follows: Student team: Rosalie Jones, Doris Muhlich, Judy Frischberg, Jane Lane, Joan Costa, Charles Craig, Sandra Bonesio, Lena Forlini, Mary Hansen, Margaret Halstead. P-TA team: Rose Holmstock, Adele Sparber, Herbert Epstein, Florence Epstein, Marion Umhey, Janice Frankle, Frances Leyman, Edna Hoyt, Mrs. Mary Hansen, Charlotte Carle.

John H. Moehle, principal of the school, acted as the pronouncer of the words. A special cheering guard composed of Harry Allen of Pine Hill, president of the P-TA, Mrs. Belden Hyatt and Mrs. Marie Kleine of Shady, and Mrs. Joy Connaughton of Krumville, led the audience in special cheers.

Superintendent Reginald R. Bennett of Phoenicia spoke briefly on the advantages of a spelling contest.

Members of the audience participated in the contest by means of paper and pencils furnished by the school. Fred Cure, Pine Hill, the Rev. Purdy Halstead, Phoenicia and Mrs. Samuel Friedman, Ashokan, acted as judges.

Some of the words that caused the downfall of the contestants including the plural of my, the spelling of the word mizzle.

Prizes were awarded to the winners and each member of the student team received a fountain pen.

It was decided that the three months' spelling contest conducted in the school was so successful it would be conducted for another year and outside schools would be invited to participate.

Lost in Transit

Memphis, Tenn. (AP)—A trailer truck loaded with 28 head of Brahma cattle was barrelling through the Mississippi when the tailgate fell off. In Memphis the driver found one lonely cow in the truck. A motorized roundup found 18 of the animals, three so badly injured they had to be slaughtered at once.

Although some 2,700 earthquakes a day jar the earth, only about 100 a year are sufficiently strong to do serious damage.

WHY a Vegetable Laxative is better for CONSTIPATION

Vegetable laxatives are much better for you than harsh, jolting ones. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a pure-vegetable formula. They give you a complete cleaning out yet are so gentle. Olive Tablets give more 'natural-like' bowel movements. No griping! No purging! No sudden inconvenience! Take one or two tonight to give complete satisfaction at the desired time in the morning.

Syracuse Conference

Four seniors and five juniors journeyed to Syracuse April 30 to attend the ninth annual Citizenship Conference at Syracuse University.

The senior representatives, Elizabeth Nussbaum, Edwin Strong, Curtiss Swezy, and Paula Weiner, discussed "What conflicting loyalties will be involved in a good citizen's attitude toward accepting public responsibility?"

The junior delegates, Christina Keith, Roxanne Gershuny, Barbara Swartzberg, George Dixon, and Robert Nash discussed, As a leader, should your primary loyalty be to your principals or to your followers?

These group discussions were followed by Town Hall meetings. Students elected from these Town Hall meetings will be members of a panel discussion to be presented over the radio.

Delegates from KHS were chosen on oratorical ability in competitive speech contests. They were chaperoned by Arthur Kurtznacker, faculty member of Kingston High School. Awards were made at the close of the conference.

They were accompanied by three faculty members, Arthur G. Kurtznacker, Harry Streifer and Harold Hathaway.

Class Night

A committee of seniors is working on a "top secret" program for Class Night under the direction of Miss Madeleine Tarrant. The committee is headed by the four senior officers, Roger Billings, president; Barbara Chmura, vice-president; Betty Ortlieb, secretary and Joan Erena, treasurer.

Plans for the skit are in charge of Frieda Cohen and a committee composed of Helen Bellswinger, Barbara Warnecke, Paula Weiner, Anita Pinkus, Bob Shellenberger, Liz Nussbaum, Don Terry, Carolyn Meeker, Werner Palak, Anita Musal, Charlie Hoffay, Gerry Fisher and Scott Comstock. Other members include Joanne Lee, chairman of the will committee, Linda Motter, Robin Strongin, Ray Roux, Marjorie Smith, Ann Griffin, John Helmer, Carol Tegart, Bob Weisman, Evelyn Ruhmann, Ed Strong and Betsy Rigby.

The skit has been written and work will soon be underway. It has not been decided whether Class Night will be held on the last Saturday in May or the first Saturday in June.

Girls' Softball Intramurals

The girls of KHS have now formed teams for softball intramurals. Eight class teams are entered in the spring contest. Captains of these teams include senior Gail Kias, senior; Ann Dugan and Margie Setera, juniors; Mercides Steltz and Jane Schipp, sophomores; Georgette Dunn, Kari Ilves and Pat Van Kleeck, freshmen. The teams will start the softball season next week.

Science Club

Science Club traveled to Ladycliffe College in Highland Falls May 1. There they entered the Southeastern Zone Science Fair and Congress.

Among those who went were John White, Joel Bonacci, Bob Donnaruma, Jerry Fisher, Clifford Terry, Mary Whitford and Emily Bight.

Accompanying these students were their advisor, Miss Ione Kinkade.

Attends Conference

Mrs. Marion Murray left Thursday afternoon for Manchester, N. H., where she is serving as consultant for the Northeastern Regional Conference of the National Education Association.

FNA Tours Hospital

As a club project, the Future Nurses of America were taken on a tour of the interior of Benedictine Hospital. Two senior nurses acted as guides for the 18 members and faculty advisor, Miss Ione Kinkade.

Two hours were spent in visiting the operating rooms, the nursery, and children's wards. The group was shown various instruments used in operations.

The FNA is a club organized to enable girls interested in nursing to become better acquainted with their proposed life work.

Choir Concert

The annual KHS choir concert, under the direction of Leonard Stine, will be held May 7 and 8 in the high school auditorium.

The soloists for this year are Estelle Fautum, Jackie Foure, Jackie Haulenbeck, Margaret Danford, Jane Gunter, Doris Herdman, Edith Palen, Kenneth Hotaling, William Roosa, Rocco Autorino, Edward Granberg, James Nerone, and Roland Greene. Cameron Rylance will play a piano solo.

The program to be sung by the choir will include music by Bach, Schumann, and Rachmaninoff, some European folk songs, spirituals, and Fred Waring arrangements.

Junior Prom

The annual Junior Prom sponsored by the Junior Class was held Saturday night at the Kate Walton Field House with music by Wendell Scherer's Band.

Those heading committees were Myron Epstein, chaperone; Barbara Hasty, centerpiece; Elaine Macholdt, wall decorations; Esther Schaffer, refreshments; Ethel Viterius, program; Ann Schwalback, tickets; Bernard Carpinelli, advertising; Bob Maines, band; and Margaret Danford, table and chairs.

Chaperones were Mr. and Mrs. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Maines, Mr. and Mrs. Epstein, Mr. and Mrs. Etienne, Mr. and Mrs. Bailey and Mr. and Mrs. Hathaway.

Lillian Garrity was general chairman.

Card Party

Kingston High School Chapter of Future Homemakers of America is sponsoring a card party for the benefit of its service fund Thursday, May 6, at 8 p. m. Students, teachers and their families and friends are invited to attend. The club is hoping to have a good crowd to make its efforts worthwhile.

Committees for the party are: General chairman Faith Gersbach, Athena Snyder, Helen Irwin and Helena Palen, refreshments.

Prize committee includes Donna Scholten and Faith Gersbach, Jean Kelder, Joanne Maxwell and Nancy Weidner, decorations; Thelma Shaver, tickets.

Those serving on the clean-up committee include Joanne Maxwell and Susan Bailey.

May's Snack Bar Is Sold to Nick Vladich

Charles and Magda Henn of Lake Katrine have sold their business property, known as May's Snack Bar and Esso Gas Station to Nick Vladich of Brooklyn. This parcel, which takes in wide frontage on both the old and the new 9-W highways at the intersection of the Route 32 connecting highway, includes an operating restaurant, living quarters and gas station.

The former owners, who have temporarily leased an apartment, plan to make their future home in the south. The new owners, who have already taken possession, plan to make extensive alterations to the buildings and to continue the restaurant on a larger scale.

This transaction was negotiated through Harold W. O'Connor, realtor. Guido Napolitano represented the purchasers at the closing of title and the seller's interests were handled by Thomas Saccoman.

One sixth of the U. S. national total of Indians live on reservations in Arizona.

Statements Made On Progress of Plans for School

New Paltz, May 1—Statements concerning the progress of additional school facilities for New Paltz and the aims of the Citizens Advisory Committee were made this week by the leaders of those groups.

Dr. Virgil B. DeWitt, school board president, explained the present status of plans submitted by Architect Jedd Reisner several weeks ago.

Dr. DeWitt said everyhing is progressing satisfactorily, and a sub-committee recently met with the school board to agree upon the facilities that would be needed in an addition to the high school. He also said the plans are again in the hands of the architect and should be ready within a week in their final form.

Mrs. John Jacobson, chairman of the Citizens Advisory Committee, discussed the make-up of that group, which will aid the school board in familiarizing the people of the district with the school plans.

Mrs. Jacobson said: "The citizens committee is a group of men and women, representative of all sections of the school district, who try to be a line of communication between the people and their elected school board members."

In Advisory Capacity

The committee acts in an advisory capacity in its report to the school board what it judges to be the desires of the majority of the community concerning the needed school building program.

The citizens advisory committee originated in November when the school board asked a group of representatives to serve. This group included Melvin Carroll, David Corwin, Harold Elsbree, John Fall, Joseph Foley, Herman Glantz, Eleanor Hoppenstedt, Miriam Day, Arthur Kurtz, B. H. Matteson, Adelaide McKinney, Miriam Jay, Arthur Kurtz, B. H. Matteson, Adelaide McKinney, Marion Pine and Mrs. Jacobson.

They in turn chose the following people to work with them; Alex Cuthbert, Walter Dyer, Frank Elliott, John Glancy, Ruth E. Jones, Joseph Krajicek, Jr., Frank Kelly, George Langwick, George Majestic, Michael Moriello, Jack Rasmussen, Chester Smith, Shirley Swain and Clifford Van Valkenburgh.

Since that time other persons who have shown interest in the work of the committee have been asked to attend meetings and become active members.

Science Workshop Is Scheduled May 8

New Paltz, May 1—The third non-credit science workshop given by the Division of Natural Science, State Teachers College, New Paltz, will be held Saturday, May 8, at 9:30 a. m.

Dr. Heinz Meng will talk on Birds of Prey and show his own colored movie. Dr. Meng received his doctorate from Cornell University for his work on the Cooper's Hawk. He has spent several years preparing the film which shows nesting habits, feeding of young, flight as well as training of hawks for falconry.

Following the lecture, the group will divide into small discussion sections led by members of the Science Division.

These workshops have been attended by over 100 teachers from the Mid-Hudson area.

Lake Springs Leak

Flagstaff, Ariz. (AP)—Water department officials found a leak in the lake from which the city gets its water supply. They estimated that one million gallons of water a day has been pouring into the hole leading to a subterranean channel ever since the dam was raised two years ago. The city will spend $20,000 to plug the hole.

CONSTIPATED?

Then read how Frank Della Penna of Holyoke, Mass. gets real relief!

"I'd been troubled with constipation for quite a while. But most of the laxatives I'd tried were either too harsh or too slow.

"Then, I heard about Sal Hepatica from a friend—and now I'm sold on it for life! I tell you, it really does the trick. Now when I get that logy, constipated feeling in the evening, I take Sal Hepatica a half hour before dinner, and I feel fine again by bedtime!"

Yes, take sparkling Sal Hepatica before breakfast and feel fine again . . . usually within an hour. Or, take in the evening one-half hour before supper and feel fine again by bedtime! Sweetens sour stomach, too! So keep Sal Hepatica handy in your medicine chest.

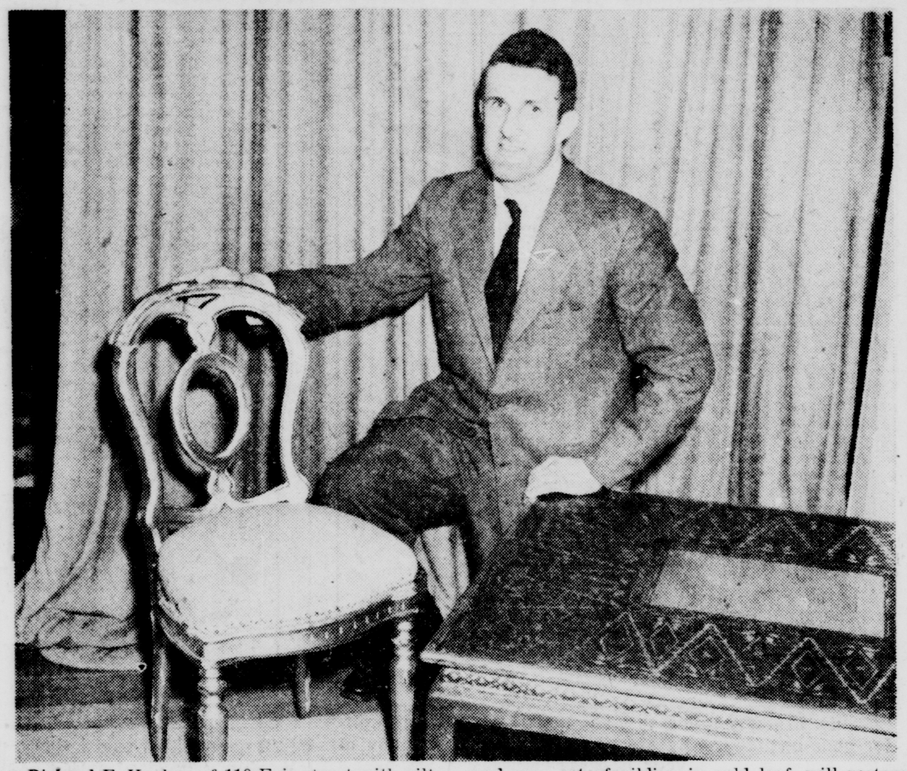
White House Chair Here to Be Restored



Richard E. Kuehne of 110 Fair street with gilt chair which stood in the East Room of the White House from 1851 to the beginning of the Hoover administration. Kuehne, an expert in the ancient and rare art of gilding in gold leaf, will restore the gold leaf to its original brilliance. Shown here also is a strikingly handsome coffee table in gold and silver leaf by Kuehne. (Freeman photo)

Vital Restoration Done by Kuehne in Kingston Studio

A former White House chair arrived in Kingston this week.

The chair, with its simple charming lines, stood in the East Room of the Presidential residence from 1851 to the beginning of the Hoover administration.

Carefully transported here by special "messenger," the chair will be re-gilded by Richard E. Kuehne of 110 Fair street. It will then be taken to the Smithsonian Institution, United States National Museum, where it will be a feature in a permanent display of Presidential rooms for the period 1853-1900. It will form part of a background for mannequins of Presidential ladies in their inaugural gowns.

In Father's Steps

Now in his middle thirties, Kuehne is following in the steps of his famous father, Max Kuehne, whose studio is in New York. Among patrons of his father's brilliant gesso art are some of the most distinguished names in the country.

Kuehne, who is married to the former Olive Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lewis of this city, hopes ultimately to succeed his father in the rare and ancient art which has been practiced for thousands of years. The Kuehnes moved to Kingston last September from Saginaw, Mich., where Kuehne was director of the Saginaw Museum.

The chair, which for three score and 17 history-making years stood quietly in the East Room at the hub of the nation, was originally decorated with gold leaf. Its style is Empire and reflects the extension of classical knowledge from Europe to America and its influence on furniture makers in this country.

Will Restore Chair

Kuehne will restore the chair's worn gold leaf to its original condition. He explains that the exquisite piece was a "side chair" in a group of gilt furniture in the East Room.

Gilt furniture, Kuehne points out, belongs particularly to the 17th and 18th Centuries and has an elegance and richness which cannot be surpassed. The burnished gold leaf, so thin that it is almost transparent when held to the light, takes on a patina dulled by exposure to the atmosphere and dust, producing a mellow quality improved by time.

The fact that chairs of this type were chosen for the White House "speaks eloquently for the quality of truly gilt furniture," Kuehne says.

He explains that decorative furniture using this medium has gone out of style partly because of the use of oil guilding and gold paint which when "used on furniture has a cheapening effect and is not to be mistaken for the original process of water gilding used when the White House chairs were made.

Process Is Ancient

"The process of gilding furniture is an interesting one, dating back to very early civilizations. Mention of it was made in the Scriptures and the process was used by the Egyptians, Greeks and Romans for the decoration of furniture, temples and dwellings. The gold leaf used in gilding was hammered out by hand into leaves that are incredibly thin. It can be beaten down so that there are some 254,000 thicknesses to an inch. The leaf used today in gilding is so thin as to be transparent. The gold was placed between pieces of ox intestines by the Egyptians and beaten out. The Greeks and Romans used parchment. In hand-beaten leaf it takes 30 minutes of beating with a 17-pound hammer, two hours with a nine-pound hammer and four hours with a seven-pound hammer. This effort would produce some 1,200 gold leaves of approximately three and three-quarter inches by three and three-quarter inches in size.

"The base over which gold leaf is laid is called gesso, a word used by craftsmen of the Italian Renaissance and is an Italian form of the Latin 'gypsum.' It is composed of whiting (a form of calcium carbonate, often termed Paris white, made up of organic material such as egg shells, oyster shells, coral, etc., ground or precipitated into the form of a very fine and soft powder.) The whiting is combined with water and glue to make a creamy mixture which may be applied to a wood surface with a brush. Slaked plaster of Paris or precipitated chalk may also be used in place of whiting. The resultant surface when rubbed down with pumice and water is smooth and marble-like to the touch. If necessary, this surface can be built up to various thicknesses and then carved with chisels or engraving tools to carry out a design or to emphasize the design carved in the underlying wood. A burnish size of red clay is than brushed on over the whitened surface to provide a smooth bed for the gold leaf. The gold leaf is then applied with a gilder's tip, a flat brush of single hairs (badger) laying the leaf down on the wetted surface. The leaf instantly adheres to the burnish size and when dry is burnished with an agate stone to give it its final smoothness and brilliance."

Has Varied Experience

Kuehne has had a varied background since graduating cum laude from Amherst College in 1941 with letters in football and squash. These include employment as junior draftsman, welder and shipfitter before World War 2, almost four years as an officer in the U. S. Naval Reserve from which he was discharged in September, 1946, with the rank of lieutenant (senior grade), an apprenticeship in the studio of his father learning the technique used in the construction of decorative furniture in gesso, establishment of his own studio in New York where he sold coffee tables in silver leaf to private collectors, interior decorators, etc. (retail outlets including the Mayhew Shop, Ltd., and Jacques Bodart Company), custodian of the Cloisters Museum, Fort Tryon Park and director of the Saginaw Museum.

He is now interested in establishing an independent studio for the reproduction of coffee tables, screens, etc., finished in burnished gold and silver leaf.

Father Made Own Frames

Kuehne's father, whose earliest reputation was in the field of painting, became interested in gesso through dissatisfaction with frames available for his paintings. The framing of each picture was to him a new problem and, according to a monograph by A. E. Gallatin, "he was one of the few modern painters who were not satisfied with atrocious stock mouldings fitted indiscriminately to any picture. Kuehne goes further than Whistler, for he not only designs his own frames but he carves and gilds them himself, old Spanish frames and designs on pottery often supplying the inspiration. We thus see that our painter has taste and, what is more, he is a keen judge of worth and quality in a painting: Kuehne is one of those rare beings whom Nature has endowed with a mind both creative and critical."

Kuehne's father, one of the original members of the Whitney Studio Club, a predecessor of the Whitney Museum in New York, studied as a young man in the same class with George Bellows, famous Woodstock artist. He also studied with Kenneth Hayes Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. Kuehne have three children, Helena, 3½, and twins, Margaret and Howard, 1½.

Girl Tied to Tree

Reading, Pa., May 3 (AP)—A pretty 20-year-old girl was found nude, beaten and tied to a tree with her own garments last night a short time after she attended a church reception. Reading police said Judith Annette Spang, daughter of a legal secretary, had been beaten and tied to the tree in the back yard of a northwest Reading home. The scene of the attack is less than a mile from the spot where the nude body of 15-year-old Dorothy Schlappig was found cramped in an ash barrel in January, 1953. The Schlappig girl had been raped. Her killer was never apprehended. Police said the girl was suffering from shock and could give no coherent explanation of what happened when admitted to the hospital shortly before midnight.

When today's hand was played, East was a very conservative gentleman. His overcall of two hearts, made with a silent partner against two bidding opponents, showed good, solid values.

Mind you, I'm not complaining about East's caution in bidding under such circumstances. Nevertheless, East's very dependability helped South play the hand at his rather difficult contract of three no-trump.

West opened his singleton heart, and South allowed East to hold the first trick with the ten. East returned the king of hearts, and south briefly considered winning with the ace.

South decided against doing so because he couldn't think of a convenient way to return to his hand after leading a spade to dummy's ace. It would be necessary to give East the lead with the king of diamonds or the king of clubs, and East would be able to defeat the contract with that king and four heart tricks.

South therefore refused the second round of hearts, and continued his little plot by refusing the third round likewise. East delayed so long for a good reason. He was now able to discard the ace of spades from the dummy.

This unblocking play put declarer in a position to take his five spade tricks. Declarer was could see that any shift to a new suit would help declarer, so he led a fourth heart.

South was finally forced to take his ace of hearts, but he had now sure of these five spade tricks and three other aces. The ninth trick was a little harder to find, since South felt sure that East had the missing kings of clubs and diamonds.

After some thought, South ran his five spade tricks, saving two clubs and two diamonds in the dummy. East discarded one club and one diamond promptly, but finally had to discard his last heart on declarer's last spade trick. South was obviously watching the discards very carefully, and if East had unguarded either king, South would have known about it.

When East likewise kept two cards in each minor suit, South led a diamond to dummy's ace and plunked East in with a second round of diamonds. East had to lead away from his king of clubs, thus giving declarer his well-earned contract.

South was finally forced to take his ace of hearts, but he had now sure of these five spade tricks and three other aces. The ninth trick was a little harder to find, since South felt sure that East had the missing kings of clubs and diamonds.

After some thought, South ran his five spade tricks, saving two clubs and two diamonds in the dummy. East discarded one club and one diamond promptly, but finally had to discard his last heart on declarer's last spade trick. South was obviously watching the discards very carefully, and if East had unguarded either king, South would have known about it.

When East likewise kept two cards in each minor suit, South led a diamond to dummy's ace and plunked East in with a second round of diamonds. East had to lead away from his king of clubs, thus giving declarer his well-earned contract.

No Link Is Seen In Brick Episode; Man in Hospital

A brick was reported tossed through a car window downtown early Sunday, a woman was arrested as the alleged tosser, and the woman's husband was reported treated for cuts at Kingston Hospital, but information available to the police indicated no sequence or connection between the brick-tossing complaint and the man treated at the hospital.

Peter Johnson, of 69 Liberty street, complained to police headquarters at 6:33 a. m., from the Meadow and Ann street area that someone had thrown a brick through a window of his car.

Report Woman Arrested

Officers John Crespino and Floyd Krom investigated and reported Joan Marshall, 24, of 54 Ann street, was arrested on a charge of malicious mischief by Peter Johnson. The charge was dismissed when the woman appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today, because of apparent lack of evidence, and it was reported by Johnson that Joan's husband had agreed to pay for the damage.

A call from Kingston Hospital at 7:02 a. m., notified police that Robert Marshall, 27, of 54 Ann street, who, police said, is Joan's husband, was treated for cuts of the right eye and on the left hand. Officers Krom and Crespino investigated and said Marshall told them he had fallen in front of his home.

Mayes Says Auto Did Not Strike Car in Accident

Referring to the report of a three-car collision on Route 9W at Port Ewen early Saturday morning, Roy M. Mayes, of 207 Clifton avenue, said today that the automobile he was driving did not come into contact with the automobile driven by Frank L. Alexander of Philadelphia.

The account of the accident which appeared in Saturday's issue of The Freeman said that according to a sheriff's office report an automobile driven by Charles L. Cark of Poughkeepsie was in collision on the curve near the River road intersection with a northbound automobile driven by Mayes, and that the impact caused the Mayes car to hit the Alexander vehicle in the rear.

According to Mayes, it was the Cark vehicle which was in collision with the Alexander car after the initial collision.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone, who investigated, was in New York today and could not be contacted for a clarification of the original report, which was indefinite as to which automobile had struck the Alexander vehicle.

No Link Is Seen In Brick Episode; Man in Hospital

A brick was reported tossed through a car window downtown early Sunday, a woman was arrested as the alleged tosser, and the woman's husband was reported treated for cuts at Kingston Hospital, but information available to the police indicated no sequence or connection between the brick-tossing complaint and the man treated at the hospital.

Peter Johnson, of 69 Liberty street, complained to police headquarters at 6:33 a. m., from the Meadow and Ann street area that someone had thrown a brick through a window of his car.

Report Woman Arrested

Officers John Crespino and Floyd Krom investigated and reported Joan Marshall, 24, of 54 Ann street, was arrested on a charge of malicious mischief by Peter Johnson. The charge was dismissed when the woman appeared before City Judge Raymond J. Mino today, because of apparent lack of evidence, and it was reported by Johnson that Joan's husband had agreed to pay for the damage.

A call from Kingston Hospital at 7:02 a. m., notified police that Robert Marshall, 27, of 54 Ann street, who, police said, is Joan's husband, was treated for cuts of the right eye and on the left hand. Officers Krom and Crespino investigated and said Marshall told them he had fallen in front of his home.

Before the election which made him Pope Pius XII, Eugenio Pacelli was secretary of state of Vatican City.

Mayes Says Auto Did Not Strike Car in Accident

Referring to the report of a three-car collision on Route 9W at Port Ewen early Saturday morning, Roy M. Mayes, of 207 Clifton avenue, said today that the automobile he was driving did not come into contact with the automobile driven by Frank L. Alexander of Philadelphia.

The account of the accident which appeared in Saturday's issue of The Freeman said that according to a sheriff's office report an automobile driven by Charles L. Cark of Poughkeepsie was in collision on the curve near the River road intersection with a northbound automobile driven by Mayes, and that the impact caused the Mayes car to hit the Alexander vehicle in the rear.

According to Mayes, it was the Cark vehicle which was in collision with the Alexander car after the initial collision.

Deputy Sheriff Thomas F. Mayone, who investigated, was in New York today and could not be contacted for a clarification of the original report, which was indefinite as to which automobile had struck the Alexander vehicle.

Says Sweden 'Anxious'

New York, May 3 (AP)—Helge Heilborn, managing director of two Stockholm newspapers, said today the Swedish people are "anxious and pessimistic" about the Indochina crisis. Heilbron and his wife arrived from Sweden on the liner Kungsholm for a business and pleasure trip of four weeks. They expect to visit Chicago and San Francisco before returning to Stockholm.

Horse Visits City

A horse which had apparently wandered to town from Hurley, was reported trotting down Pearl street at 5:03 p. m., Sunday. Officers Bernard Fowler and William Snyder investigated and located the horse on Washington avenue. It was temporarily "bedded down" on the property of Thomas Plunket, 276 Pearl street, and later returned to its owner.

Park Building Damaged

Harry Edson, of the city's recreation department, notified police Saturday that a door had been broken and a window smashed with rocks in a Block Park building. A hobby horse swing had also been removed from a stand, he said.

Preparing Hamburgers

Next time you buy hamburger, get it ready for cooking in a skillet as soon as you buy it. Make the meat into patties and layer them between squares of waxed paper, then wrap them all in another piece of the paper. Refrigerate the patties and use within two days.

Kingston Bowling Association Elects Edward Norton President

Independents Win Four Places; Thomas Re-Named

Norton's Margin Over Geo. Robinson, 148-51

Edward Norton of the Rosendale News League was elected president of the Kingston Bowling Association Sunday, as independent candidates won four contests in the annual KBA elections at the county court house.

Norton succeeds William R. Murray, who was named executive director.

A former member of the Ferraro Classic League and CYO Holy Name circuits, Norton, a resident of Kingston, has been rolling with the Rosendale News League the past two seasons. He said yesterday he plans to resume bowling in Kingston next fall.

Norton defeated George Robinson, the KBA's regular nominee, 148 to 51.

Thomas Re-Elected

Irwin J. Thomas, who was unopposed, was re-elected to his fourth term as secretary-treasurer.

Herman Arlensky was unopposed for the first vice-presidency post and William Lawrence had no opposition for the fourth vice-presidency.

John Fatum, independent, won over Randy Kelder, KBA nominee, 118 to 80.

Eltinge S. "Pop" Auchmoody (197) and Tom Orr (158) former KBA president, were among the four executive committeemen named yesterday. Dick Waltman, independent, was elected with 120 votes. Ex-president, William R. Murray, received 114 votes.

Three other candidates for the executive committee were Ross Ellis (27), Jack Martin (98) and Harry Hines (80).

The makeup of the KBA's executive committee for the 1954-55 season will be as follows:

President—Edward Norton.
1st Vice-President — Herman Arlensky.
2nd Vice-President — Edward Auclair.
3rd Vice-President — John Fatum.
4th Vice-President — William Lawrence.
Secretary-Treasurer — Irwin J. Thomas.
Executive Committeemen — Eltinge S. Auchmoody, Thomas Orr, Richard Waltman, William R. Murray.

A total of 21 leagues was represented with a combined voting strength of 199 votes. Harry Hines and George Muller served as tellers for the election.

Leagues represented:

Junior Major, Hercules, Booster, City Minor, Rosendale News, Central Rec League, Nocando, Everybody's Ferraro Classic, Central Rec Major, Merchants of New Paltz, Good Neighbor, Independent, Ferraro Major, Electrol Day, Chalet Leaders, Sunset League of New Paltz, Tavern Association, Ferraro Mixer. Also represented was Rapp's Express team of HVBL and eight members of the KBA executive board.

Amendment Approved

Two KBA-sponsored amendments concerning the recently passed ABC ruling on additional executive board directors also were unanimously approved by the directors Sunday. They deal with the added representation for affiliating communities with the KBA—i.e., New Paltz and Rosendale. Both of these communities may now select their own representatives (one each) to act on the executive committee of the KBA. Their term of office will commence August 1.

Delegates approved the annual donation of $20 to the YMCA financial campaign.

Following the election results, President William R. Murray, who conducted the meeting, offered his congratulations to the newly-elected president, Ed Norton. Murray also extended his sincere appreciation to the KBA secretary-treasurer and to other members of the KBA executive committee for their cooperation during his term of office.

The meeting adjourned at 5 p. m., probably the shortest directors' meeting on record.

Buffalo Keglers Take Over First In State Tenpins

Clarence Buckwell and George Pero of Rochester retained their doubles lead with 1351.

Chris Nasella of Rochester held firm as singles leader with 735. John Ferraro's 693 net tops that division.

Sparando Assured Of ABC Singles Crown With 723

Seattle, May 3 (AP)—The 51st American Bowling Congress heads into its final round today with one 1954 championship already determined and leaders in other divisions almost certain of copping titles.

Tri-Par Radio of Chicago was listed as the open division champion with the windup of team competition last night. It appeared certain kingpins in singles, doubles and all-events would remain firm, although five sessions in the three divisions are scheduled for this afternoon and evening.

The Tri-Par Five, bowling in the early weeks of the tournament, missed the all-time record for team scores by only eight pins. The Chicagoans, headed by Joe Wilman, recorded 3226, for the second highest total in 51 years of ABC tourney play. Birk Brothers, also of Chicago, set the mark in 1937.

While eastern and midwestern teams dominated most of the standings, Washington Boat Center of Seattle carried off honors in the booster division. The host city team took first place with a 2847 pinfall.

Probable champions are Tony Sparando of Rego Park, N. Y., in the singles; Don McClaren, St. Louis, Mo., and Billy Weliu, Houston, Tex., doubles, and Brad Lewis, Ashland, O., all-events.

Sparando fired the tournament's only 300 game on his way to a 723 pinfall. McClaren and Weliu topped the doubles with 1335 and Lewis rolled 1985 in the all-events.

The fourth annual Masters' Invitational tournament was won Saturday by Eugene (Red) Elkins, of San Francisco. Elkins defeated the 1952 champion, Willard Taylor, South Charleston, W. Va., 805-727 in finals of the double elimination tournament Saturday night.

New Doubles Leaders in State Doubles

June Anstett and Judy Edel of Buffalo combined for a 1126 slam to oust the previous leaders, Gloria King and Grace Hillman of Niagara Falls who had 1112.

Miss Edel rolled one of the highest triples in the tournament—209-204-208 for 621—as she helped her team, the Parkridge Restaurant, move into fourth place in the team event.

Hegnauer Still Leads

Emma Godert of Springville leads the all-events with 1689 and is fifth in singles with 584.

Rose Schatzel and Charlotte Lapine of Kingston hold down fifth place in the doubles with 1082.

The tourney has two more week ends to run.

X-RAY REPORT:
Condition Excellent!

The X-RAY TAG which accompanies every garment bearing the "BOTANY" "500,"* Tailored by DAROFF label reports the diagnosis of clothing physicians as skilled and learned as their medical brethren.

These Botany diagnosticians not only pass or reject every minute item that goes into the complicated business of making a suit of clothes, but they constantly ask us: "Can you do it better?" In our designing rooms, and in our great sun-filled workrooms, the most skilled tailors that years of experience afford never cease trying to answer that question affirmatively.

The result of this endless search is "BOTANY" "500," Tailored by DAROFF Clothing. Just shrug your shoulders into one of our suit coats. Feel the fabric, observe the casual well-bred drape. You will realize that this is clothing without equal anywhere at or above its price range.

(Shooting Editor)

In the spring a young man's fancy lightly turns to thoughts of love; and in the winter the legislator turns to thoughts of how sportsmen and their shooting equipment can be buried in red tape.

I have no idea what causes this annual rash of ill-informed and harmful gun legislation. For some reason our elected representatives think less straight on gun subjects than they do on taxes and what's to be done about compulsory car insurance.

Very likely wherever you live the legal eagles already have in committee half a dozen assorted bills directly affecting your status as a sportsman and shooter. The basis forms are always the same—schemes to make it impractical if not impossible for the honest householder to purchase or own a sidearm. In effect it takes handguns out of the legitimate citizen's hand and in no sense keeps them from the criminals.

These schemes require the registration of all shoulder weapons, including shotguns, move directly contrary to the existing provisions of the Bill of Rights and the kind of move that makes easy the taking over of any country by quick disarming of the citizenry.

Some are plain nuisance schemes that may have a laudable end in view but succeed only in ensnarling Honest John Public in a net of strings.

In New York state, for example, there was proposed shoulder-arms registration bill applicable only to rifle owners living in cities of one million or more population. In New York, that means New York City which already has on its books the Sullivan Law on handguns—a law which has neither reduced crime nor the criminal use of pistol and revolvers.

What purpose would be served by licensing rifles and registering rifle owners? Any gun dealer, by the way—and this might be amusing to you but it wouldn't be to him—would have to set up a new department just to handle the legal side incidental to his business.

But the real danger of such proposals goes beyond the confines of metropolitan New York. This country presently has only five cities with more than a million people, as many more approaching the borderline—but why stop at a million? Why not shrink the size limit down to a hundred thousand, then fifty thousand, and finally down to East Bingville, your state, pop. 243.

Kingston Bowling Association Elects Edward Norton President

Norton's Margin Over Geo. Robinson, 148-51

Edward Norton of the Rosendale News League was elected president of the Kingston Bowling Association Sunday, as independent candidates won four contests in the annual KBA elections at the county court house.

Norton succeeds William R. Murray, who was named executive director.

A former member of the Ferraro Classic League and CYO Holy Name circuits, Norton, a resident of Kingston, has been rolling with the Rosendale News League the past two seasons. He said yesterday he plans to resume bowling in Kingston next fall.

Norton defeated George Robinson, the KBA's regular nominee, 148 to 51.

Thomas Re-Elected

Irwin J. Thomas, who was unopposed, was re-elected to his fourth term as secretary-treasurer.

Herman Arlensky was unopposed for the first vice-presidency post and William Lawrence had no opposition for the fourth vice-presidency.

In two contests for vice-presidents' posts, Edward Auclair, the independent nominee, defeated Dr. Saul Goldfarb, 128 to 71.

John Fatum, independent, won over Randy Kelder, KBA nominee, 118 to 80.

Eltinge S. "Pop" Auchmoody (197) and Tom Orr (158) former KBA president, were among the four executive committeemen named yesterday. Dick Waltman, independent, was elected with 120 votes. Ex-president, William R. Murray, received 114 votes.

Three other candidates for the executive committee were Ross Ellis (27), Jack Martin (98) and Harry Hines (80).

The makeup of the KBA's executive committee for the 1954-55 season will be as follows:

President—Edward Norton.
1st Vice-President — Herman Arlensky.
2nd Vice-President — Edward Auclair.
3rd Vice-President — John Fatum.
4th Vice-President — William Lawrence.
Secretary-Treasurer — Irwin J. Thomas.
Executive Committeemen — Eltinge S. Auchmoody, Thomas Orr, Richard Waltman, William R. Murray.

A total of 21 leagues was represented with a combined voting strength of 199 votes. Harry Hines and George Muller served as tellers for the election.

Leagues represented:

Junior Major, Hercules, Booster, City Minor, Rosendale News, Central Rec League, Nocando, Everybody's Ferraro Classic, Central Rec Major, Merchants of New Paltz, Good Neighbor, Independent, Ferraro Major, Electrol Day, Chalet Leaders, Sunset League of New Paltz, Tavern Association, Ferraro Mixer. Also represented was Rapp's Express team of HVBL and eight members of the KBA executive board.

Amendment Approved

Two KBA-sponsored amendments concerning the recently passed ABC ruling on additional executive board directors also were unanimously approved by the directors Sunday. They deal with the added representation for affiliating communities with the KBA—i.e., New Paltz and Rosendale. Both of these communities may now select their own representatives (one each) to act on the executive committee of the KBA. Their term of office will commence August 1.

Delegates approved the annual donation of $20 to the YMCA financial campaign.

Following the election results, President William R. Murray, who conducted the meeting, offered his congratulations to the newly-elected president, Ed Norton. Murray also extended his sincere appreciation to the KBA secretary-treasurer and to other members of the KBA executive committee for their cooperation during his term of office.

The meeting adjourned at 5 p. m., probably the shortest directors' meeting on record.

Buffalo Keglers Take Over First In State Tenpins

The team division in the New York State men's bowling tournament had a new leader today.

Marranca dropped 661 pins and Napierala 607.

Clarence Buckwell and George Pero of Rochester retained their doubles lead with 1351.

Chris Nasella of Rochester held firm as singles leader with 735. John Ferraro's 693 net tops that division.

Sparando Assured Of ABC Singles Crown With 723

Seattle, May 3 (AP)—The 51st American Bowling Congress heads into its final round today with one 1954 championship already determined and leaders in other divisions almost certain of copping titles.

Tri-Par Radio of Chicago was listed as the open division champion with the windup of team competition last night. It appeared certain kingpins in singles, doubles and all-events would remain firm, although five sessions in the three divisions are scheduled for this afternoon and evening.

The Tri-Par Five, bowling in the early weeks of the tournament, missed the all-time record for team scores by only eight pins. The Chicagoans, headed by Joe Wilman, recorded 3226, for the second highest total in 51 years of ABC tourney play. Birk Brothers, also of Chicago, set the mark in 1937.

While eastern and midwestern teams dominated most of the standings, Washington Boat Center of Seattle carried off honors in the booster division. The host city team took first place with a 2847 pinfall.

Probable champions are Tony Sparando of Rego Park, N. Y., in the singles; Don McClaren, St. Louis, Mo., and Billy Weliu, Houston, Tex., doubles, and Brad Lewis, Ashland, O., all-events.

Sparando fired the tournament's only 300 game on his way to a 723 pinfall. McClaren and Weliu topped the doubles with 1335 and Lewis rolled 1985 in the all-events.

The fourth annual Masters' Invitational tournament was won Saturday by Eugene (Red) Elkins, of San Francisco. Elkins defeated the 1952 champion, Willard Taylor, South Charleston, W. Va., 805-727 in finals of the double elimination tournament Saturday night.

Mayor to Speak At Lutherans' Sports Dinner

Mayor Fred Stang will be guest speaker at the third annual Sports Night dinner of Trinity Lutheran Church this evening at 6:30 at the church assembly hall.

The dinner is given in honor of the two basketball teams and three bowling squads of the congregation.

The Senior basketball team won the Church League title, while the No. 1 and No. 2 bowling squads also won pennants.

Louis G. Bruhn will be the toastmaster. Other speakers include Dick McCarthy, Sgt. Charles W. Awkerman, Louis Schafer and Donald Wolf, coach of the Senior basketball squad.

The members of the Senior basketball team are: Ronald Marks, George Baechtle, Donald Simmons, Ronald Brandt, David Madison, Ernest Madison, John Schoonmaker and Dennis Lenihan.

The members of the bowling teams are as follows:

No. 1—William Slover, captain, Percy Slover, Louis Bruhn, James Peterson, Herman Osmers.

No. 2—Frank Doyle, Jr., captain, Frank Doyle, Sr., Raymond Steward, Charles Rider, Adam Thiel.

No. 3—Burton Heldron, captain, James DeCicco, Darrel Meyer, Charles Troll, Edward Marks, Louis Schafer.

New Doubles Leaders in State Doubles

New doubles leaders cropped up in the New York state women's tenpin tournament at Rochester over the weekend.

June Anstett and Judy Edel of Buffalo combined for a 1126 slam to oust the previous leaders, Gloria King and Grace Hillman of Niagara Falls who had 1112.

Miss Edel rolled one of the highest triples in the tournament —209-204-208 for 621—as she helped her team, the Parkridge Restaurant, move into fourth place in the team event.

Hegnauer Still Leads

Pat Hegnauer of Poughkeepsie and Kingston maintained her singles lead with 598 and ranks third in the all-events with 1689.

Emma Godert of Springville leads the all-events with 1689 and is fifth in singles with 584.

Rose Schatzel and Charlotte Lapine of Kingston hold down fifth place in the doubles with 1082.

The tourney has two more week ends to run.

Musial's Five Homers New All-Time Record

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Now you know why they call Stan Musial, Stan the Man. No other hitter in major league history ever hit five home runs in one day. That goes for Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Hack Wilson, Hank Greenberg, Jimmy Foxx and all the others who swung for the fences in days gone by.

Only nine days ago Musial was bumping along at .250, gripped by the same slump that tortured him last spring. Now he is hitting an even .400 with eight homers and seven doubles among his 24 hits. The $80,000 salaried St. Louis Cardinal outfielder leads the majors with 21 runs batted in and shares the home run lead with Chicago's Hank Sauer.

Despite Musial's slugging, the Cards could get no better than an even break against the New York Giants yesterday, winning the first game 10-6, but losing the second 9-7.

Musial, the six-time batting champion of the National League, "slumped" to .337 last year, a few points below his 345 lifetime batting average. As late as mid-June he was struggling at the .250 mark.

"Just One Good Day"

"All I need is one of those four for four days," he said then.

Stan got his four for four yesterday in the first game—three home runs and a single. He added two more homers in the second game.

But Musial's clubhouse comment was typical of a team man: "You can't smile too much when you lose a ball game."

Musial's shiny day had no appreciable effect on the league race. The Philadelphia Phillies moved out front by a half game on the strength of their 4-3 edge over Cincinnati in the first half of a doubleheader. The second game was washed out. Bob Miller's effective relief pitching and Del Ennis' home run saved the day for the Phils.

Chicago and Pittsburgh also went on a homer spree with a total of eight, three by the Cubs Hank Sauer, as the teams split a pair. A Sauer homer and single gave Paul Minner enough cushion for a 5-3 first game decision over Vern Law. The Pirates ripped into the Cubs for eight runs in the first inning of the second game on the way to an 18-10 decision. Darkness mercifully put an end to the Slaughter at the end of eight innings after six home runs had been hit, two more by Sauer.

Dodgers Rained Out

Brooklyn's game at Milwaukee was rained out, as was the Baltimore at Boston doubleheader in the American League.

Cleveland gained ground on everybody in the American, winning a pair from Washington, 6-4 and 6-3 in 10 innings while the others split.

Chicago won its third straight shutout, 4-0 at Philadelphia with Don Johnson throwing a two-hitter, but lost the second game 2-1 on Elmer Valo's pinch single in the ninth, his first hit of the season.

The New York Yankees broke loose with the biggest inning, six runs in the third, to smother Detroit 12-4, but were shut out with one hit by Billy Hoeft 4-0 in the second game, cut to five innings by darkness.

Musial's third homer in the first game came off Jim Hern with two on, breaking a 6-6 tie. The first two were against Johnny Antonelli, a lefty.

In the second game Musial's pair came off Hoyt Wilhelm, who was struggling desperately to hold the lead the Giants piled up with eight in the fourth inning.

Sauer drove in three runs in each game at Chicago for a three-game total of nine RBI's. He also had a single and double as his average soared to .412, second only to teammate Ransom Jackson's .426.

Birdie Tebbets, manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, was graduated from Providence R. I., College with honors in 1934. He majored in philosophy.

Preakness Next For Determine, Derby Winner

Louisville, Ky., May 3 (AP)—A little grey colt with a terrific appetite and a decided dislike for work is going after two-thirds of the turf's coveted triple crown after breaking a jinx that plagued horses of his color through the 80 years of the Kentucky Derby.

No grey ever won America's No. 1 glamor race, and many have tried, until Andy Crevolin's Determine, a mite of a horse out of Alhambra, Calif., came from second place in the stretch to hang a length and a half defeat on the swift Hasty Road last Saturday.

Fifteen other 3-year-olds, including the favored Correlation, were up the stretch eating the dust of the leaders as Determine reached the end of the mile and a quarter in 2:03.

Determine's next stop is the Preakness at Pimlico on May 22. Then, according to present plans of his owner and trainer Willie Molter, he'll head back west where he racked up six straight stake victories before arriving in Kentucky where he bowed to Hasty Road by a head in the mile of the Derby Trial last Tuesday.

The little colt, who got his name because his owner was determined to find a good one, is not eligible for the Belmont Stakes, third race of the triple crown.

Whitfield Wins Board Walk Mile

Atlantic City, N. J., May 3 (AP)—Three top distance runners ran in the seventh annual Boardwalk Mile yesterday but an unofficial entry crossed the finish line ahead of them.

Alex Breckenridge, a Villanova student assigned to pace Mal Whitfield, Fred Wilt, John Joe Barry and Horace Ashenfelter the first half-mile, kept right on going the rest of the way in a time of 4:06.3. But the officials awarded first place to Whitfield, who was the first man among official entries in 4:06.8.

Wilt was second, Barry third and Ashenfelter fourth.

Dykes Meets Cartier In Parkway Contest

New York, May 3 (AP)—Bobby Dykes, 10th ranked middleweight contender, and Walter Cartier, oft-beaten New Yorker, top the Eastern Parkway show tonight. The bout will be seen in some sections of the nation on TV (Dumont).

Both fighters need an important victory to get back in the big money. Dykes was stopped by Tiger Jones in a major upset March 8 but came back to whip Joe Rindone. Cartier, knocked out by Joey Giardello in the first round Feb. 5, defeated Billy Kilgore in his last outing.

Ball Game Ends Abruptly

Altmore, Ala., May 3 (AP)—A ball game between two prison teams ended abruptly in the fourth inning yesterday when 19 of the spectators snipped their way through a steel mesh fence under a sleeping tower guard. Seventeen escapees from Atmore state prison were rounded up yesterday. The search for the two convicts still missing spread out today. Henry Sawyer, the tower guard who admitted falling asleep was fired immediately. Three other guards were suspended pending an investigation.

Welcome Is Given

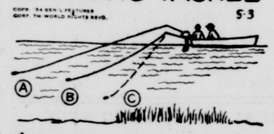
Cincinnati — Johnny Gonsalves, 136½, Oakland, Calif., outpointed Wallace (Bud) Smith, 138½, Cincinnati, 10.

SPORTSMAN'S DIGEST By hal sharp

TROLLING WITH SPINNING TACKLE



A SPINNING REEL'S DRAG IS IDEAL FOR TROLLING. IT PAYS OUT LINE WHEN A FISH STRIKES AND THUS PREVENTS BREAKING THE LINE WHILE BOAT STOPS.

TWO ANGLERS IN A BOAT CAN TROLL BEST BY TROLLING ONE LURE Ⓐ 50-FT. BACK OF LURE Ⓑ WHICH MAY BE WEIGHTED TO SINK DEEPER Ⓒ IF NEEDED.

HEAVY STRINGS OF SPOONS ABUSE SPIN-TACKLE. INSTEAD, TROLL DART-AND-WIGGLE LURES SLOWLY. IF ROD TIP OVER-ACTS, SLOW DOWN.

• The Weekly Roundup:

Art Davis' communication to Wiltwyck Golf Club members that "we have agreed upon a very satisfactory settlement with the State Thruway authorities" touched off some fanciful speculation as to how much the Thruway settled on the Hurley avenue course.

Estimates we heard ranged from $75,000 to $116,000. A man who keeps his ear pretty close to the ground on such matters told us the correct figure would run closer to the maximum than the minimum mentioned.

Having Robert Trent Jones, the nation's No. 1 golf architect on their side as an expert witness, certainly didn't hurt Wiltwyck's chances for a substantial settlement. Mr. Jones, who has taken great interest in Wiltwyck's future, is believed to have been highly influential in getting the Thruway Authority to hike their original offer by several thousand dollars.

When Jones came to grips with the Thruway Authority in behalf of another club—Suffern, which is bisected by Route 17—he got enough for his clients to build another new course. This wasn't the case with Wiltwyck, but Jones helped.

Jones, the man who recently toughened Bobby Jones' Augusta National course to such an extent that the world's best golfers were unable to match par in the 72-hole Masters, has been commissioned to build the new Wiltwyck 18-holer. This means that Wiltwyck patrons will get the most modern layout the terrain will permit—shallow traps, short roughs and large, undulating greens designed to handle modern golf pressure. That's the way Robert Trent Jones builds them. And golfdom accepts him as the finest in the business.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

Sam Snead scheduled for a late June appearance at IBM Country Club in Poughkepsie. Palm Beach Invitation golf championship at Meadow Brook Club, Westbury, L. I., May 12-16, a 90-hole affair has completed its entry list with 16 of the world's finest swingers including Jimmy Demaret, Porky Oliver, Ed Furgol, Gil Stewart, Doug Ford, Johnny Thomson, the long range bomber; Tommy Bolt, Walt Burkemo, 1953 PGA champion; Jackie Burke, Gene Littler, 1953 U. S. Amateur champion; Cary Middlecoff, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum, Bob Toski and the incomparable Sam Snead. Woodstock's new mothers—Mrs. Sylvia Hutchins and Mrs. Kathleen Elwyn—have resumed their golfing careers. "Golf," says Ben Hogan, "is a game of misses. I consider myself lucky if I make one or two good shots a round." Will Mr. Hogan please move his tongue to the other cheek now.

CHIPSHOTS: You can win a medal by beating or tying Ben Hogan with your allotment of handicap strokes on National Golf Day, June 5. Gene Sarazen believes today's crop of golf kids will make the old-timer look like dubs. "These kids today swing with the one-piece swing. They've learned there is no such thing as wrist action in golf, nor should there be. I found that out after I won the U. S. Open and two PGA titles. Believe me, they'll set up scoring marks we old-timers never thought of. It's like comparing the old Model T Ford with today's V-8 job. These youngsters are bold. In the old days we feared every shot. I've watched these modern players off the first tee at Augusta National. No one ever fears the shot. No one veers. In the old days we were trying not to do something bad. Today they are bold where we once were timid. Watch kids like Gene Littler or Bud Holscher in any championship from now on. They play golf with a one-piece swing, no wristing, no pronating, no other action than keeping the club face on the ball. . . ."

At a State Medical Convention tournament, Dr. Derman asked Dr. Grover, "How many strokes did Dr. Witherspoon have in that trap?" "Six in all," came the reply. "But only the last one counts."

"How come?" Dr. Derman persisted.

"It was apopplectic," said Dr. Grover.

Carruthers Retains Bantam Title in Memorable Joust Fought in Driving Rainfall

Bangkok, May 3 (AP) — It was a championship fight to be remembered wherever fans argue the ultimate in grueling classics.

For the record, Australian Jimmy Carruthers narrowly retained his world's bantamweight crown last night against Chamrern Songkitrat, the Bangkok police lieutenant who graduated from the drop-kicking Thailand school of fighting. Australian referee William Heneberry, the only official, gave Carruthers 32½ points and Songkitrat 27½ for the 12-round fight. Both weighed 117¼.

But that doesn't begin to tell the story.

Carruthers and Sonkitrat fought for the title on a Sunday night in a torrential downpour that spilled 1 inch of rain onto the canvas in less than an hour.

Fans began collecting in the morning at the outdoor National Auditorium. They stood, milled around and sat all day in the rain. By fight time it still was pouring and there were 50,000 people waiting to see the Bangkok beagle perform. There was $225,000 in the till. The sponsoring police welfare fund closed its weather eye and the fight was on.

Ring Flooded

The canvas was so slippery the fighters fought barefooted. That set the stage for a rare time-out in the third round when a floodlight fell and shattered glass fragments around the ring. It took two minutes to sweep up the canvas. Another falling bulb conked Carruther's second, Bill McConnell, on the head.

Songkitrat started fast but Carruthers found the range and held control in the middle rounds. In the 10th, Sonkitrat opened a deep cut over Carruther's right eye. A rivulet of blood partly blinded the champion and set the Thailanders to screaming for a knockout.

The rugged little Thai pressed hard in the final two rounds but Carruther's great left hand rocked back Sonkitrat every time he bore in.

Near Riot at End

However, Carruthers slipped and fell on his face in the 11th. Referee Heneberry said later he thought the champ had knocked himself out then. Carruthers paled noticeably and seemed to have hurt his left hand, but he recovered quickly.

Thailanders howled and booed when Heneberry raised Carruther's hand in triumph. A dozen policemen rushed to ringside to protect the Australians — champion and referee.

Sensing the situation, Songkitrat grabbed the microphone and shouted in Thai:

"It doesn't matter that I lost." His gesture stopped the booing.

How much of the fight fans away from ringside saw was anybody's guess. It rained so hard most photographers couldn't get pictures.

Britain Develops Bomb

London, May 3 (AP)—London's Daily Express said today that Britain has developed a hydrogen bomb "far simpler and cheaper" than the U. S. model—and isn't telling the secrecy-minded Americans any of the details. Asked about the report from Chapman Pincher, Express science writer, a spokesman for the British Atomic Energy Commission said he could make no comment. Pincher said the new weapon was tested successfully at the Woomera weapons range in Australia Oct. 26 and now is in production.

My Greatest Shot

By JIM TURNESA

The greatest shot I ever made was a No. 5 iron on the 18th hole at the Big Spring Country Club during the 1952 PGA championship. And it was a shot which brought a sigh of relief from the whole Turnesa family.

The shot won the tournament and the PGA, until that moment, had been an event which had plagued us Turnesas for 25 years, or ever since Joe lost a playoff to Walter Hagen in 1927.

I've lost a few of them myself, the most heartbreaking coming when I beat Jug McSpaden, Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan and then lost to Sam Snead, after being 3-up at the halfway mark, in the last match in 1942.

Now, at Louisville, I entered the final round, playing against Chick Harbert. For 35 holes, we were all even. On the 18th hole of the second round, Harbert hit a poor drive to open play on the 450-yard par 4. Mine was down the middle.

But it was the second shot which told the story. That was the No. 5 iron. I slammed it right for the green and that's where it stopped—six feet from the cup.

It enabled me to beat Harbert, 1 up, and it is a shot we'll never forget—meaning my golfing brothers and I.

Musial's Five Homers New All-Time Record

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Now you know why they call Stan Musial, Stan the Man. No other hitter in major league history ever hit five home runs in one day. That goes for Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Hack Wilson, Hank Greenberg, Jimmy Foxx and all the others who swung for the fences in days gone by.

Only nine days ago Musial was bumping along at .250, gripped by the same slump that tortured him last spring. Now he is hitting an even .400 with eight homers and seven doubles among his 24 hits. The $80,000 salaried St. Louis Cardinal outfielder leads the majors with 21 runs batted in and shares the home run lead with Chicago's Hank Sauer.

Despite Musial's slugging, the Cards could get no better than an even break against the New York Giants yesterday, winning the first game 10-6, but losing the second 9-7.

Musial, the six-time batting champion of the National League, "slumped" to .337 last year, a few points below his 345 lifetime batting average. As late as mid-June he was struggling at the .250 mark.

"Just One Good Day"

"All I need is one of those four for four days," he said then.

Stan got his four for four yesterday in the first game—three home runs and a single. He added two more homers in the second game.

But Musial's clubhouse comment was typical of a team man: "You can't smile too much when you lose a ball game."

Musial's shiny day had no appreciable effect on the league race. The Philadelphia Phillies moved out front by a half game on the strength of their 4-3 edge over Cincinnati in the first half of a doubleheader. The second game was washed out. Bob Miller's effective relief pitching and Del Ennis' home run saved the day for the Phils.

Chicago and Pittsburgh also went on a homer spree with a total of eight, three by the Cubs Hank Sauer, as the teams split a pair. A Sauer homer and single gave Paul Minner enough cushion for a 5-3 first game decision over Vern Law. The Pirates ripped into the Cubs for eight runs in the first inning of the second game on the way to an 18-10 decision. Darkness mercifully put an end to the Slaughter at the end of eight innings after six home runs had been hit, two more by Sauer.

Dodgers Rained Out

Brooklyn's game at Milwaukee was rained out, as was the Baltimore at Boston doubleheader in the American League.

Cleveland gained ground on everybody in the American, winning a pair from Washington, 6-4 and 6-3 in 10 innings while the others split.

Chicago won its third straight shutout, 4-0 at Philadelphia with Don Johnson throwing a two-hitter, but lost the second game 2-1 on Elmer Valo's pinch single in the ninth, his first hit of the season.

The New York Yankees broke loose with the biggest inning, six runs in the third, to smother Detroit 12-4, but were shut out with one hit by Billy Hoeft 4-0 in the second game, cut to five innings by darkness.

Musial's third homer in the first game came off Jim Hern with two on, breaking a 6-6 tie. The first two were against Johnny Antonelli, a lefty.

In the second game Musial's pair came off Hoyt Wilhelm, who was struggling desperately to hold the lead the Giants piled up with eight in the fourth inning.

Sauer drove in three runs in each game at Chicago for a three-game total of nine RBI's. He also had a single and double as his average soared to .412, second only to teammate Ransom Jackson's .426.

Birdie Tebbets, manager of the Cincinnati Redlegs, was graduated from Providence R. I., College with honors in 1934. He majored in philosophy.

Preakness Next For Determine, Derby Winner

Louisville, Ky., May 3 (AP)—A little grey colt with a terrific appetite and a decided dislike for work is going after two-thirds of the turf's coveted triple crown after breaking a jinx that plagued horses of his color through the 80 years of the Kentucky Derby.

No grey ever won America's No. 1 glamor race, and many have tried, until Andy Crevolin's Determine, a mite of a horse out of Alhambra, Calif., came from second place in the stretch to hang a length and a half defeat on the swift Hasty Road last Saturday.

Fifteen other 3-year-olds, including the favored Correlation, were up the stretch eating the dust of the leaders as Determine reached the end of the mile and a quarter in 2:03.

Determine's next stop is the Preakness at Pimlico on May 22. Then, according to present plans of his owner and trainer Willie Molter, he'll head back west where he racked up six straight stake victories before arriving in Kentucky where he bowed to Hasty Road by a head in the mile of the Derby Trial last Tuesday.

The little colt, who got his name because his owner was determined to find a good one, is not eligible for the Belmont Stakes, third race of the triple crown.

Whitfield Wins Board Walk Mile

Atlantic City, N. J., May 3 (AP)—Three top distance runners ran in the seventh annual Boardwalk Mile yesterday but an unofficial entry crossed the finish line ahead of them.

Alex Breckenridge, a Villanova student assigned to pace Mal Whitfield, Fred Wilt, John Joe Barry and Horace Ashenfelter the first half-mile, kept right on going the rest of the way in a time of 4:06.3. But the officials awarded first place to Whitfield, who was the first man among official entries in 4:06.8.

Wilt was second, Barry third and Ashenfelter fourth.

Dykes Meets Cartier In Parkway Contest

New York, May 3 (AP)—Bobby Dykes, 10th ranked middleweight contender, and Walter Cartier, oft-beaten New Yorker, top the Eastern Parkway show tonight. The bout will be seen in some sections of the nation on TV (Dumont).

Both fighters need an important victory to get back in the big money. Dykes was stopped by Tiger Jones in a major upset March 8 but came back to whip Joe Rindone. Cartier, knocked out by Joey Giardello in the first round Feb. 5, defeated Billy Kilgore in his last outing.

Ball Game Ends Abruptly

Altmore, Ala., May 3 (AP)—A ball game between two prison teams ended abruptly in the fourth inning yesterday when 19 of the spectators snipped their way through a steel mesh fence under a sleeping tower guard. Seventeen escapees from Atmore state prison were rounded up yesterday. The search for the two convicts still missing spread out today. Henry Sawyer, the tower guard who admitted falling asleep was fired immediately. Three other guards were suspended pending an investigation.

Welcome Is Given

Cincinnati — Johnny Gonsalves, 136½, Oakland, Calif., outpointed Wallace (Bud) Smith, 138½, Cincinnati, 10.

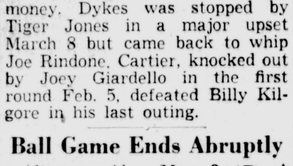
TROLLING WITH SPINNING TACKLE

5-3



A SPINNING REEL'S DRAG IS IDEAL FOR TROLLING. IT PAYS OUT LINE WHEN A FISH STRIKES AND THUS PREVENTS BREAKING THE LINE WHILE BOAT STOPS.

TWO ANGLERS IN A BOAT CAN TROLL BEST BY TROLLING ONE LURE (A) 50-FT. BACK OF LURE (B) WHICH MAY BE WEIGHTED TO SINK DEEPER (C) IF NEEDED.

HEAVY STRINGS OF SPOONS ABUSE SPIN-TACKLE. INSTEAD, TROLL DART-AND-WIGGLE LURES SLOWLY. IF ROD TIP OVER-ACTS, SLOW DOWN.

• The Weekly Roundup:

Art Davis' communication to Wiltwyck Golf Club members that "we have agreed upon a very satisfactory settlement with the State Thruway authorities" touched off some fanciful speculation as to how much the Thruway settled on the Hurley avenue course.

Estimates we heard ranged from $75,000 to $116,000. A man who keeps his ear pretty close to the ground on such matters told us the correct figure would run closer to the maximum than the minimum mentioned.

Having Robert Trent Jones, the nation's No. 1 golf architect on their side as an expert witness, certainly didn't hurt Wiltwyck's chances for a substantial settlement. Mr. Jones, who has taken great interest in Wiltwyck's future, is believed to have been highly influential in getting the Thruway Authority to hike their original offer by several thousand dollars.

When Jones came to grips with the Thruway Authority in behalf of another club—Suffern, which is bisected by Route 17—he got enough for his clients to build another new course. This wasn't the case with Wiltwyck, but Jones helped.

Jones, the man who recently toughened Bobby Jones' Augusta National course to such an extent that the world's best golfers were unable to match par in the 72-hole Masters, has been commissioned to build the new Wiltwyck 18-holer. This means that Wiltwyck patrons will get the most modern layout the terrain will permit—shallow traps, short roughs and large, undulating greens designed to handle modern golf pressure. That's the way Robert Trent Jones builds them. And golfdom accepts him as the finest in the business.

• The Nineteenth Hole:

Sam Snead scheduled for a late June appearance at IBM Country Club in Poughkepsie. Palm Beach Invitation golf championship at Meadow Brook Club, Westbury, L. I., May 12-16, a 90-hole affair has completed its entry list with 16 of the world's finest swingers including Jimmy Demaret, Porky Oliver, Ed Furgol, Gil Stewart, Doug Ford, Johnny Thomson, the long range bomber; Tommy Bolt, Walt Burkemo, 1953 PGA champion; Jackie Burke, Gene Littler, 1953 U. S. Amateur champion; Cary Middlecoff, Byron Nelson, Lloyd Mangrum, Bob Toski and the incomparable Sam Snead. Woodstock's new mothers—Mrs. Sylvia Hutchins and Mrs. Kathleen Elwyn—have resumed their golfing careers. "Golf," says Ben Hogan, "is a game of misses. I consider myself lucky if I make one or two good shots a round." Will Mr. Hogan please move his tongue to the other cheek now.

CHIPSHOTS: You can win a medal by beating or tying Ben Hogan with your allotment of handicap strokes on National Golf Day, June 5. Gene Sarazen believes today's crop of golf kids will make the old-timer look like dubs. "These kids today swing with the one-piece swing. They've learned there is no such thing as wrist action in golf, nor should there be. I found that out after I won the U. S. Open and two PGA titles. Believe me, they'll set up scoring marks we old-timers never thought of. It's like comparing the old Model T Ford with today's V-8 job. These youngsters are bold. In the old days we feared every shot. I've watched these modern players off the first tee at Augusta National. No one ever fears the shot. No one veers. In the old days we were trying not to do something bad. Today they are bold where we once were timid. Watch kids like Gene Littler or Bud Holscher in any championship from now on. They play golf with a one-piece swing, no wristing, no pronating, no other action than keeping the club face on the ball. . . ."

At a State Medical Convention tournament, Dr. Derman asked Dr. Grover, "How many strokes did Dr. Witherspoon have in that trap?" "Six in all," came the reply. "But only the last one counts."

"How come?" Dr. Derman persisted.

"It was apopplectic," said Dr. Grover.

Carruthers Retains Bantam Title in Memorable Joust Fought in Driving Rainfall

Bangkok, May 3 (AP) — It was a championship fight to be remembered wherever fans argue the ultimate in grueling classics.

For the record, Australian Jimmy Carruthers narrowly retained his world's bantamweight crown last night against Chamrern Songkitrat, the Bangkok police lieutenant who graduated from the drop-kicking Thailand school of fighting. Australian referee William Heneberry, the only official, gave Carruthers 32½ points and Songkitrat 27½ for the 12-round fight. Both weighed 117¼.

But that doesn't begin to tell the story.

Carruthers and Sonkitrat fought for the title on a Sunday night in a torrential downpour that spilled 1 inch of rain onto the canvas in less than an hour.

Fans began collecting in the morning at the outdoor National Auditorium. They stood, milled around and sat all day in the rain. By fight time it still was pouring and there were 50,000 people waiting to see the Bangkok beagle perform. There was $225,000 in the till. The sponsoring police welfare fund closed its weather eye and the fight was on.

Ring Flooded

The canvas was so slippery the fighters fought barefooted. That set the stage for a rare time-out in the third round when a floodlight fell and shattered glass fragments around the ring. It took two minutes to sweep up the canvas. Another falling bulb conked Carruther's second, Bill McConnell, on the head.

Songkitrat started fast but Carruthers found the range and held control in the middle rounds. In the 10th, Sonkitrat opened a deep cut over Carruther's right eye. A rivulet of blood partly blinded the champion and set the Thailanders to screaming for a knockout.

The rugged little Thai pressed hard in the final two rounds but Carruther's great left hand rocked back Sonkitrat every time he bore in.

Near Riot at End

However, Carruthers slipped and fell on his face in the 11th. Referee Heneberry said later he thought the champ had knocked himself out then. Carruthers paled noticeably and seemed to have hurt his left hand, but he recovered quickly.

Thailanders howled and booed when Heneberry raised Carruther's hand in triumph. A dozen policemen rushed to ringside to protect the Australians — champion and referee.

Sensing the situation, Songkitrat grabbed the microphone and shouted in Thai:

"It doesn't matter that I lost." His gesture stopped the booing.

How much of the fight fans away from ringside saw was anybody's guess. It rained so hard most photographers couldn't get pictures.

Britain Develops Bomb

London, May 3 (AP)—London's Daily Express said today that Britain has developed a hydrogen bomb "far simpler and cheaper" than the U. S. model—and isn't telling the secrecy-minded Americans any of the details. Asked about the report from Chapman Pincher, Express science writer, a spokesman for the British Atomic Energy Commission said he could make no comment. Pincher said the new weapon was tested successfully at the Woomera weapons range in Australia Oct. 26 and now is in production.

My Greatest Shot

By JIM TURNESA

The greatest shot I ever made was a No. 5 iron on the 18th hole at the Big Spring Country Club during the 1952 PGA championship. And it was a shot which brought a sigh of relief from the whole Turnesa family.

The shot won the tournament and the PGA, until that moment, had been an event which had plagued us Turnesas for 25 years, or ever since Joe lost a playoff to Walter Hagen in 1927.

I've lost a few of them myself, the most heartbreaking coming when I beat Jug McSpaden, Byron Nelson and Ben Hogan and then lost to Sam Snead, after being 3-up at the halfway mark, in the last match in 1942.

Now, at Louisville, I entered the final round, playing against Chick Harbert. For 35 holes, we were all even. On the 18th hole of the second round, Harbert hit a poor drive to open play on the 450-yard par 4. Mine was down the middle.

But it was the second shot which told the story. That was the No. 5 iron. I slammed it right for the green and that's where it stopped—six feet from the cup.

It enabled me to beat Harbert, 1 up, and it is a shot we'll never forget—meaning my golfing brothers and I.

WANT-AD WONDERS Trade Mark

Want Ad Used By Ben Franklin To Get Prayer Book

TAKEN out of a Pew in the Church some months since, a Common Prayer Book, bound in red, gilt, and lettered D. F. (Deborah Franklin) on each cover. The Person who took it is desired to open it and read the eighth Commandment, and afterwards return it into the same Pew again, upon which no further notice will be taken.

His wife's prayer book having vanished from their church pew, Benjamin Franklin ran a Want Ad in his newspaper, the Pennsylvania Gazette, to appeal for its return by the person who removed it.

Reports Air Hose Taken

Police were notified at 8:28 p. m., Sunday by Harvey Thompson, operator of a gasoline service station at Henry street and Broadway that a 50-foot air hose valued at $12 had been stolen from the station. It was apparently taken after closing time at 10 p. m., Saturday by someone who knew how to loosen it, he said.

ADVERTISEMENT FOR BIDS

Sealed proposals will be received by the Board of Education, City of Kingston, Ulster County, New York, in the office of the Board of Education, High School Building, Kingston, New York, until 11 o'clock A. M., Daylight Saving Time, on Tuesday, May 25, 1954, for alterations and additions to the electrical system, together with other work in connection therewith.

Instructions to Bidders, Form of Proposal, General Conditions, plans and specifications and other contract documents may be examined at the office of the Board of Education, and one (1) copy thereof may be obtained by each bidder upon deposit of the sum of Ten Dollars ($10.00). The deposit will be refunded to the bidder upon the return of the documents in good condition within five (5) days after the opening of the bids as called for in the Instructions to Bidders.

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check for five per cent (5%) of the amount of the bid, drawn upon an incorporated bank or trust company, payable to the Board of Education, City of Kingston, as a guarantee that in case the contract is awarded to the bidder, he will within two weeks thereafter, execute such contract and satisfactory performance bond. Upon failure to do so, he shall forfeit the deposit as liquidated damages and the acceptance of the bid will be contingent upon the fulfillment of this requirement by the bidder. The checks of all excepting the three lowest bidders will be returned within three (3) days after the opening of bids, and the remaining checks will be returned immediately after contracts and bonds have been executed.

No bidder may withdraw his bid for a period of 30 days after the date set for the opening thereof.

The successful bidder will be required to execute a performance bond in approved form as set forth in "Instructions to Bidders" under "Scope," which bond will be in the amount of the contract.

The Board of Education reserves the right to reject any or all bids, and or to accept the bid that in its judgment will be for the best interests of the City of Kingston.

By order of the Board of Education, City of Kingston, Ulster County, New York.

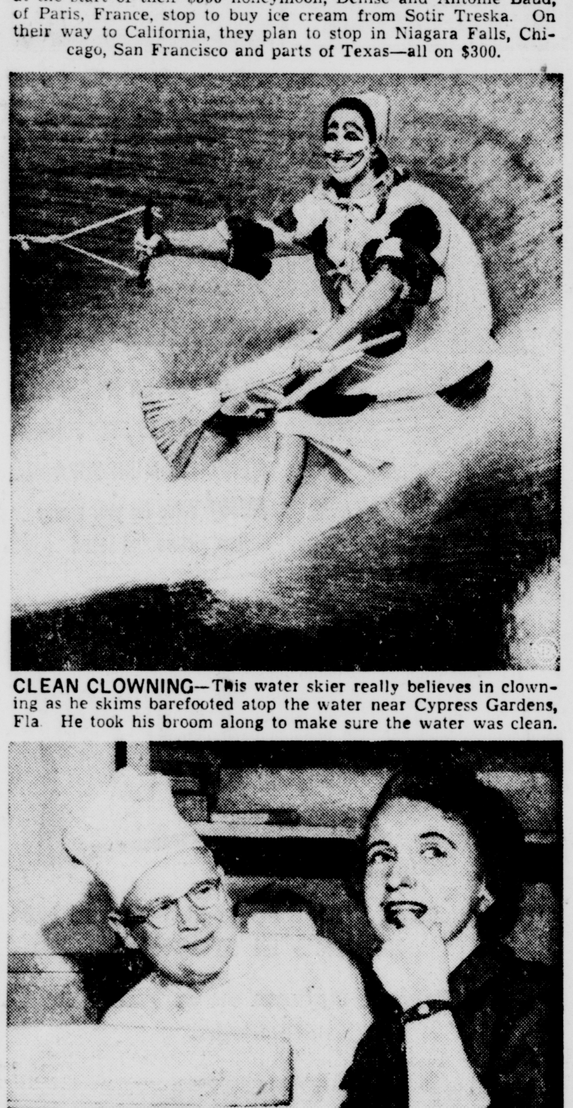
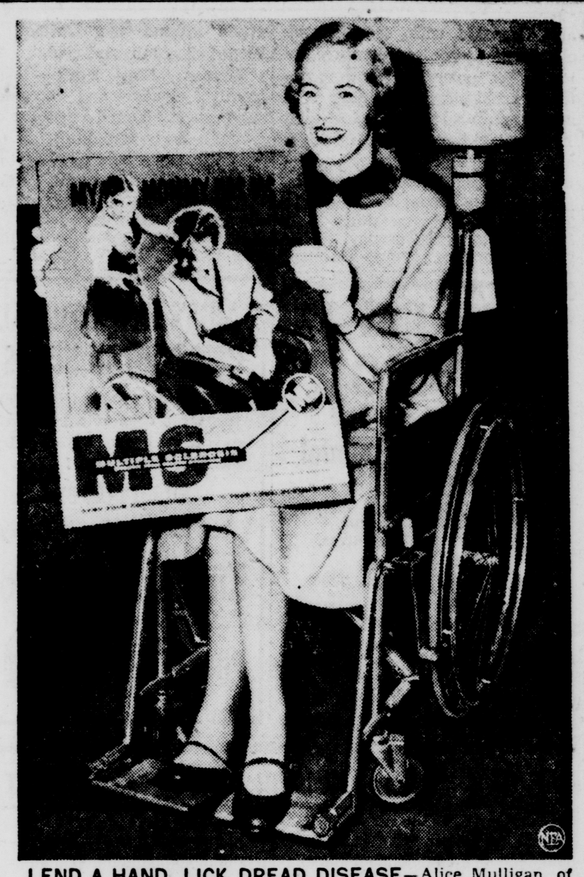
GETTING AROUND—Motor-scootering around New York City at the start of their $300 honeymoon, Denise and Antoine Baud, of Paris, France, stop to buy ice cream from Sotir Treska. On their way to California, they plan to stop in Niagara Falls, Chicago, San Francisco and parts of Texas—all on $300.

CLEAN CLOWNING—This water skier really believes in clowning as he skims barefooted atop the water near Cypress Gardens, Fla. He took his broom along to make sure the water was clean.



YUMMY—Margaret Truman is tasting some of the birthday cake baked for the celebration of ex-President Harry Truman's 70th birthday. Waiting for Miss Truman's verdict is Joseph Fleuriot, pastry chef of a well-known New York City hotel.

UNIVERSAL BEAUTY — Charlein Lander displays the form which won her the title of Miss Alaska and sent her to Long Beach, Calif., to compete in the forthcoming Miss Universe contest there. The 18-year-old beauty, daughter of an Air Force officer stationed in Alaska, won over 25 preliminary winners in her home town of Fairbanks.



LEND A HAND, LICK DREAD DISEASE—Alice Mulligan, of New York City, "Miss M S" of the 1954 Multiple Sclerosis Campaign, displays the official campaign poster for this year's drive. The theme of the poster, "My Mommy Has M S," stresses the emotional burden that children must carry when their parents have the dread disease. The organization seeks to raise $1,500,000 in the campaign, which runs through June 15, for an expanded program of research, rehabilitation and education.

WHAT AN EXCHANGE—Comedian Arturo Menendez receives a shock as Grace Von Borstel, a Mexico City, Mexico, salesgirl, tells him that his sheaf of Mexican money is now worth only one U. S. 20-dollar bill. Others found themselves in similar straits as the Mexican government devalued the peso from 8.65 to 12.50 to the dollar.

ROYAL FOURSOME—Tops with the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are their pet pug dogs, Trooper and Disraeli. They are shown aboard the Queen Elizabeth in New York City, shortly before sailing for England.

Building Permits Total $173,838

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy issued 46 building permits in April at a total estimated cost of $173,838.

This was $54,388 more than in March when 35 permits were issued at a total estimated cost of $119,450.

Of last month's total eight permits were issued for new dwellings at a total estimated cost of $72,600, five for private garages at $3,610, 21 permits for alterations, additions and repairs on residential buildings at $17,619, and five for the same on non-residential structures at $41,200.

A permit was issued for a fire escape at $537, five were issued for oil tanks and burners at $6,272, and one for a storage tank at $32,000.

Dog Bites Reported

Dogs apparently continued ugly over the week-end in the downtown area. Frank Landerway, Jr., 5, of 25 East Union street was reported bitten by a dog Saturday afternoon and at 2:30 a. m., Sunday, Kingston Hospital reported treating Walter John Ellsworth, of 25 East Union street, for dog bites on the face and left hand, as he apparently had leaned down to pick up change dropped on the sidewalk. A four-year-old boy was reported knocked down and attacked by a dog in the downtown area several days ago. Both victims over the weekend were treated at Kingston Hosital.

The Weather

MONDAY, MAY 3, 1954

Sun rises at 4:37 a. m.; sun sets at 6:46 p. m., EST.
Weather, rain.

The Temperature

The lowest temperature recorded on The Freeman thermometer during the night was 58 degrees. The highest figure recorded up to noon today was 61 degrees.

Weather Forecast

New York city and vicinity — Drizzle, fog and some showers this afternoon, with temperatures

in the 60s. Showers and a chance of thunderstorms tonight and early Tuesday, becoming partly cloudy by Tuesday afternoon. Continued mild tonight with lowest temperatures near 60 degrees but turning cooler Tuesday with afternoon temperatures in the low 50s.

Interior eastern New York — Showers and thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight and becoming windy and much cooler tonight, low 32 to 38. Tuesday cloudy with a few scattered showers and much colder than today. Colder Tuesday night.

City enginer's weather report: Temperature at 10 a. m., today 62, barometric pressure 29.57, humidity 83 and wind SE at 4 MPH. Rainfall .02 of an inch. High temperature yesterday 76 at 3 p. m., and low 59 at 8 a. m. Mean 68 and normal 57. Humidity 84 at 3 a. m., and 67 at 4 p. m. Barometric pressure 29.80 at 9 a. m., and 29.70 at 9 p. m. Rainfall .13 of an inch and wind SE at 5 MPH.

Antique Hazard

Hesperia, Mich. (AP)—A 52-inch circular saw screeching through a big beech log lost all its teeth when it had hit a woodsman's wedge imbeded deep in the log. Experts estimated the wedge had been there for 100 years, judging from the growth of the tree around it.

Regional Forecasts

Northern New York—Warm and humid, cloudy today, in 70s. Showers and thundershowers developing by late morning or early afternoon in the St. Lawrence valley areas, spreading to the Champlain and upper Hudson valleys by tonight. Mostly cloudy and much cooler Tuesday with showers ending. Outlook for Wednesday, fair and cool.

Western Mohawk and south-central New York—Warm and humid with considerable cloudiness today, temperature rising to the upper 70s and low 80s. Showers and thundershowers developing, tapering off into scattered light showers late tonight and ending Tuesday. Outlook for Wednesday, fair and cool.

Southeastern New York—Warm and humid with considerable cloudiness today, temperature rising to the upper 70s. Showers and thundershowers developing this afternoon or tonight, ending early Tuesday followed by mostly cloudy and much cooler weather. Low tonight in the low 50s, little if any rise Tuesday. Wind southerly 10-20 today becoming westerly 15-30 late tonight and Tuesday. 12-18 hours of wetting, average temperature around 60. Outlook for Wednesday, fair and cool.

Western New York — Windy, mostly cloudy and occasional showers or thundershowers through early tonight. High temperature near 80 dropping to 50 during late afternoon. Cloudy windy and cool tonight. Partial clearing, diminishing winds and cool tomorrow. Good drying likely late tonight into Wednesday.

Truman Has Topic

New York, May 3 (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman has selected a topic for his 70th birthday speech next Saturday—the President's key role in preserving basic liberties. Truman's speech plans were announced yesterday by Basil O'Connor, president of the Harry S. Truman Library, which is sponsoring his $70-a-plate birthday dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. O'Connor said Truman's talk will explain his belief that a president must, under current circumstances, take action to protect the constitution and basic liberties of the people.

Motorist Forfeits Bail

Harold C. Crumme, 21, of Glenford was arrested at 8:37 p. m., Sunday by Officers Edward Edwards and Julius Glassman at Broadway and St. James street on a charge of speeding 45 miles an hour. He forfeited $15 bail through failure to appear today before City Judge Raymond J. Mino.
